Events of the Week in Norfolk

Pleasures of the Week.

The occasion of Mrs. J. L. Baugh's birth anniversary, Tuesday was celebrated by four young married couples going fishing Monday on the Elkhorn near the Taft farm and serving a fish dinner on the lawn Tuesday evening.

A number of old friends gathered at the home of William Seifert on South Sixteenth street to help Mrs. Seifert celebrate her fifty-second birthday.

A very informal dancing party for the young people connected with the institution was given Tuesday evening at the hospital. Miss Fale Burnham and Miss Madge Mitche were guests from town.

The Christian endeavor social held in the parlors of the First Congregational church on Friday evening was a decided success. A nice little sum will be added to the Y. M. C. A. fund.

Mrs. Floyd Freeman, Mrs. S. Adams and Mrs. Weatherholt entertained the ladies aid society of the Methodist church at the home of Mrs. Weatherholt, Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Snyder observed their nineteenth wedding anniversary at their home, 604 South Eighth street, Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hays will give a reception this evening at the Oxnard hotel for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rolvin Hays.

Miss Edith Vile entertained the officers of the Eastern Star at her home Tuesday night.

Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Dishong returned from University Place Wednesday evening where they attended the wedding of Mrs. Dishong's sister, Miss Gace Beck to Charles Gorst, who is a son of Rev. Mr. Gorst, and at one time made his home in Norfolk.

Mrs. Wynn M. Rainbolt who has been visiting in the home of her father, Rev. J. C. S. Wells, will return to her home in Omaha on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Hays are in the city for a short visit with Mr. Hays' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hays on Norfolk avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Hays are enroute to their home in Denver after a wedding trip through the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gettinger have returned from their wedding trip and are nicely settled in their attractive new home on South Ninth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes of Murray, Neb., have been guests during the week of Mr. and Mrs. Mont Robb at the hospital.

Misses Lois Gibson and Mary Odorne returned today from Boston where they have attended school the past year.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Mathewson returned Wednesday from a delightful visit with friends in New York and Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Troutman expect to occupy their handsome new residence on Norfolk avenue next week.

Dr. Brush and mother have rented the A. J. Durland residence in The Heights and will occupy it next week.

Miss Ruth Shaw arrived home during the week from Crete, where she has been attending Doane college.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Reynolds and daughter Helen have returned from an extended visit in New York.

Mrs. G. A. Young and children visited her hother at Columbus a couple of days this week.

Jack Wells of Lincoln came up today to spend Sunday at home.

At the Brugeman home at 407 Phillip avenue Mr. Charles J. Haviland of Concordia, Kan., and Miss Clara Brugeman of Norfolk were married on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Headblood, pastor of the Baptist church officiating.

The beautiful ring ceremony was used. The wedding party consisted of the bride and groom, Miss Elizabeth McFarland of Madison as maid of honor and Ed Brueggeman, the bride's brother, as best man.

Both the bride and Miss McFarland carried American Beauty roses. The former wore a pretty French organdie, the latter a blue silk mill.

After congratulations a wedding breakfast was served. Twenty-five guests, close friends and relatives, were present.

After a wedding trip to Omaha and points in Kansas, where the young people will visit relatives of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Haviland will make their home in Concordia, where Mr. Haviland is manager of the Western Union telegraph office. The bride has been one of the popular teachers in the city schools of Norfolk. Mr. Haviland was until a few months ago manager of the local telegraph office.

FUZZY LIES IN STATE.

Remarkable Ceremony Follows Death of Mrs. Iselin's Pet Dog. New York, June 27.—Fuzzy, the little yellow Pomeranian dog owned by C. Oliver Iselin, and that gained international prominence as the mascot of the cup defender Reliance, died of a broken heart at New Rochelle.

Mrs. Iselin went to Europe several months ago, leaving Fuzzy with her daughter, Mrs. Phillip A. Livermore. When Fuzzy saw Mrs. Iselin leaving he chased her automobile down the road and when he could not catch it turned back home and became despondent. At times the animal became morbid and would remain in his kennel days at a time, refusing to eat.

Mrs. Livermore left for Europe on June 3, and Fuzzy, finding himself deserted by his fast friend, refused to eat and took little interest in life. Maids notified John G. Borensford, Mr. Iselin's brother-in-law, who called in a doctor to attend the pet. Dr. Nestler was unable to get the dog to eat, and his death followed.

Fuzzy lay in state at Mrs. Livermore's home in a white velvet coffin draped with the Reliance flag and the Union Jack for a day, and then he was buried in Mrs. Iselin's rose garden.

A NEW SOURCE OF HARDWOOD

Junco, Grown in Valley of Rio Grande, Will Class With Ebony.

Washington, June 27.—The junco is the missing link of the tree family. Restricted to a single valley, that of the Rio Grande, in Mexico and Texas, this tree, with its small crooked trunk bristling with thorns, is little known to the outside world. It is popularly supposed to bear no leaves, flowers, or fruit, but it really bears all three.

The minute leaves are scale-like, the flowers very small, and the fruit is a tiny berry. The junco, so far as is known, has always lived in one place and has always been the same dwarfed, crooked tree that it now is.

Except as fuel, it has not been put to any use. Thousands of cords might be cut in the valley of the Rio Grande, in Mexico and Texas. Of late, however, the growing scarcity of hardwood has called attention to the desolate junco tree as a possible substitute for some of the more popular woods, and the result is a surprise to those who thought the wood had no commercial value.

Clarence A. Miller, consul at Matamoros, Mexico, has called the attention of this government to the good qualities claimed for it.

The wood sinks in water. In color it ranges from brown to black. It receives a high and beautiful polish, fitting it to take the place of such expensive woods as ebony and rosewood for small cabinet work.

The junco is so short and crooked that only small pieces of timber can be obtained from them. Few trunks exceed seven feet in length and eight inches in diameter. The wood is said to be admirably suited for the keys of musical instruments, jewel boxes and other bureau cabinets, chess men, checkers, paper knives, knobs and other small turnery, inlaid work, and indeed for almost all purposes for which costly foreign woods, in small pieces, are new used.

BUILD MILWAUKEE ENGINES.

Shops Are Working Full Force, Turning Out New Locomotives.

That the return of normal conditions, so far as the construction of railway equipment is concerned, is at hand, is evidenced by the following announcement recently made regarding the new orders given at the West Milwaukee car shops of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway:

"A. E. Manchester, superintendent of motive power of the Milwaukee & St. Paul at Milwaukee, has received orders from headquarters to begin at once the construction of seventy locomotives of the highest type. This order means an outlay of $1,400,000 and will result in restoring to employment at the West Milwaukee shops of that company the full force of 5,000 men."

The seventy engines above mentioned are of the Prairie type and will be used exclusively for freight service on the new line to the Pacific coast west of the Missouri river.

In addition to these engines, work has been started at these shops on twenty freight engines of the Mikado type, as well as on thirty-five switch engines and 8,500 steel underframe freight cars, including 1,000 41-foot steel underframe box cars and 2,500 stock cars.

Ten locomotives per month are turned out at the West Milwaukee shops. These new orders mean a total expenditure of over $4,000,000, and will make it necessary to employ the full force of 5,000 men usually employed at the shops.

With the great amount of regular repair work and construction of new passenger and freight equipment for use on this railway, exclusive of the Pacific coast line, the West Milwaukee shops will be working full force during the greater part of the current year.

SONG BIRD COLONY GROWS

G. B. SALTER FINDS NORFOLK HAS MORE SONG BIRDS.

GOSSIP IN NORFOLK BIRD LAND

Year Shows Increase in Song Birds Nesting in Norfolk—Wrens That Eat And Drink From Mr. Salter's Hand.

"There is a marked increase over previous years in the number of song birds in and about Norfolk this year." So G. B. Salter, who is an authority on birds and their habits and who is, incidentally a member of the Nebraska Ornithology Union, says: "This increase," Mr. Salter continued, "is due to the growth of our shade trees and the attention given by providing nesting places and protecting from ignorant boys and domestic cats. The greatest enemy to our song birds is the domestic cat. The cat, not being properly fed at home, begins to prey upon the helpless birds and will in a short time kill an exceedingly large number of them. I wish every citizen of this city would take an interest in the welfare of birds and do what he can toward their protection as they contribute largely toward the benefit of humanity."

Mr. Salter has awakened of a morning and looking from his bedroom window has recognized six different species of birds, while within hearing distance he could distinguish the calls of several others. He takes great delight in watching the birds build their nests and, with his guide book and field glass, can readily classify most of the birds of this community.

He finds the most interesting bird to be the "chick-a-dee," which makes a sound like "Pee-wee" when calling its mate. They can be watched in both winter and summer and their nests easily found in the larger trees.

On the porch of Mr. Salter's home is the nest of two wrens, which, through the kind treatment of their host, have become tame. He can feed and water them from his hand. He has often watched the birds bathing while he was watering the lawn, and noted with interest how clean they kept themselves.

The Veery or Wilson thrush is one of the choicest birds known. It has a wired, plaintive call which can be heard toward evening. It builds its nest on the ground among the leaves, in hemlocks or in tangled masses of briar.

Birds' food consists mainly of insects, bugs, and worms. Their eating seems to be abnormal. An incident illustrates this. Some bronze grackles which made their home in one of Mr. Friday's trees, flew to Mr. Salter's yard one morning and devoured from sixty to seventy grub worms in the few moments they were being watched.

The blue jay is a pretty bird but is an enemy to most of the others, because it preys upon their eggs. At the corner of Ninth street and Koelngstein avenue in Mr. Valentine's yard, a bird built a peculiar nest within arm's reach of one standing on the porch. No one seemed familiar with the specie of the bird, so Mr. Salter was called and he identified it as a "Vireo." This bird builds a pendant nest, similar to the Baltimore oriole. It is well woven and often composed of thirteen or fourteen hundred pieces of materials. It takes the birds about three days to build such a nest. These particular birds were watched closely, but their nest must have been disturbed for they soon left. No bird will remain where its nest has been touched in any way.

The bird that is apparently useless and a great pest is the English sparrow, which is multiplying rapidly. Their food consists mainly of grain. They should be exterminated and the only conceivable manner to accomplish this, Mr. Salter says, is by the concentrated efforts of the citizens to prevent their building nests on their premises.

There are four hundred species of birds in the state, most of which can be found in or about Norfolk. This state has such a variety on account of its central location. Mr. Salter sincerely hopes that the citizens of this city will encourage the song birds by permitting them to nest in and about their yards, unmolested.

ENGINE MADE RECORD.

Northern Pacific Engine in Continuous Service 166 Hours.

Spokane, Wash., June 27.—Engine No. 384, on the North Coast Limited train, operated by the Northern Pacific railway and driven by John A. Miller and M. Clement, engineers of Spokane, scored a notable record by being in continuous service 166 hours and 25 minutes during the recent floods in Montana, when it pulled a train of nine coaches over six lines, a distance of 2,107 miles between Spokane and Fargo, N. D. and thence to Billings, Mont. The 175 marooned passengers were cared for by conductors Harry C. Peck and H. P. Litchfield of Spokane, who were assisted by E. C. Bradley and M. O. Lee, brakemen. The passengers presented a purse of $100 to the crews. Part of the train left the track because of spreading rails. In more than one instance the passengers believed they were being carried into the raging torrents as the sides of the coaches scraped the hanging banks in cuts but no mishaps followed. The alkali water ruined the boiler of the locomotive, which has been consigned to the roundhouse for general overhauling and will be put into service in a couple of weeks.

West Point News.

MANY NEW RESIDENCES

HOME BUILDING HEAVY IN MANY PARTS OF THE CITY.

AT LEAST 22 NEW HOUSES

The Demand For Homes in Norfolk Is Showing Itself in Building Activity in the Residence Section. Houses Being Built.

Building going on in different parts of the city reflects the demand for Norfolk homes. At least twenty-two houses are now in process of erection. Among those who are having houses built at this time are:

G. H. Bishop, three cottages for rent on corner of Eleventh street and Norfolk avenue; J. G. Troutman, a two-story house on West Norfolk avenue; F. W. Fwenger of Plainview, a house in Hayes addition; Messrs. Parker, Kuhn, Genung and Miller, each a house in the southwestern part of the city; Charles Dudley on South Fourth street and E. Brummond on South First street, a modern residence apiece; F. Cummins and W. S. Fox, two story houses on West Koelngstein avenue; C. E. Rouse, C. E. Doughty and J. C. Stitt, modern two story houses in The Heights.

J. L. Weaver and F. A. Blakeman intend to let contracts soon for modern two story residences. W. A. Buckley is excavating for a cottage on South Twelfth street. Excavations are made for three houses on South Eleventh.

It is a favorable time of year to build for lumber is low and climatic conditions excellent.

Battle Creek Postoffice Raised.

Battle Creek Enterprise: Postmaster Willis has just received word from the postoffice department that his office has been raised to the third class, to take effect July 1. Under this new class the department furnishes office rent, fuel, lights and allowance for clerk hire.

GOT FLIP WITH FRED WHITE

Tonsorial Artist Did Not Know at First Who He Was Up Against.

Sloux City, June 27.—When Fred S. White, candidate for governor on the democratic ticket, went into a barber shop for a shave this morning, the tonsorial artist whisking a towel under Mr. White's chin whiskers, thought he saw an opportunity for some fun at the expense of the rural appearing customer he was about to operate upon.

Mr. White's tanned countenance and bleached beard show evidence of contact with the wind and sun of the field and he appears exactly what he is—an agriculturist.

"Say, uncle, how's the roads?" asked the barber, adopting a nasal twang, after the manner of the average stage comedian who plays Uncle Josh Whitcomb.

"I believe they are all right," replied Mr. White courteously.

"Any chance for th' crop 'o' corn, d'ye think?" pursued the barber.

"Much more than there is for you to become a humorist," returned Mr. White pleasantly.

The barber hesitated and then stepped over to a broiler razor welder who had been a wig-wagging him.

"Shut up, you chump. That's the democratic governor," he said.

The joker, red in the face, resumed his job of shaving, while Mr. White's chin whiskers were agitated occasionally by a ripple of amusement.

OBSERVE ST. JOHNS' DAY

MASTER MASONS ATTEND SERVICES IN A BODY.

DR. C. W. RAY DELIVERS SERMON

Methodist Pastor Preaches to Members of Masonic Lodge on Friendship with God, with Country and with Neighbors.

St. John's day, the first day in the Masonic calendar, was observed Sunday by the members of Masonic lodge attending service at the Methodist church, where Dr. C. W. Ray delivered a special sermon. The Master Masons, clad in the regalia of their order, marched to the church in a body.

Dr. Ray's subject was "The Circle of Great Friends." He said in part:

"I am glad to welcome you as members of the order of the Ancient Free and Accepted Masons here for this service in observing St. John's day. I hope this subject will be of help and inspiration to every one in worshipping and serving God hereafter.

"There are some people who are forever making friends and forever losing them. I consider the making of a friend a great achievement, for it is an eternal and everlasting inheritance. It is greater to make a friend than was the battle of Waterloo or Gettysburg; for these were conquests of one enemy against another but this is the linking of two souls in one great bond.

"True friends look out from human nature, the blue sky and beyond the stary sky to a happy meeting as expressed in the sacrifice of Ion, the death devoted Greek. When about to yield his life as an offering to fate his beloved Clemanthe asked if they should not meet again and he answered, 'I have asked that dreadful question of the hills that look eternal, of the streams that flow forever, of the stars among whose fields of azure my raised spirit walked in glory; all were dumb. Yet while I gaze upon thy face there is a love that mantles then its beauty that cannot wholly perish. We shall meet again, Clemanthe.'

"Thousands are looking for true friends today; those who will not sell out, betray or forsake when they are needed but who will be true, strong, mighty and Godly. How much such true men and women are needed today as leaders in clubs, societies, lodges and churches.

"Here is the secret of a great friendship: 'And there went with him a band of men whose hearts God had touched.' Friendship with the dishonest, impure, fickle and unchangeable will fail you in the hour of great need. If there are people in a club, lodge or church who are enemies to each other, these always cause trouble sooner or later.

"I believe friendships are made in heaven.

"It is a great thing to have a country for a friend and carry a passport with you in a country like Turkey or Russia and know that your country demands for you protection and safety. I know the value of this myself for I saw people denied the rights I enjoyed in Turkey last year because I had a passport and they had none.

"So it is when you have God as your friend—when your soul passes out into eternity it will be beset by many evil spirits but if you are God's friend then all the hosts of heaven will be sent to protect you. That your circle of friends be complete you must admit God, the father, and Christ, the son. And if you Masons do this you have the promise of God's eternal blessings.

"What are the conditions to this? First, we are to accept the divine truths of God as a part of our daily practice. It must be the foundation of the building crumbles and falls away.

"Then there is fortitude, for often we must endure and suffer for our friends. It is God-like so to do.

"Then there is that love which reaches out and considers the human race one great family and which believes that we owe a duty to each member of it, to support and help, to try to make each life better and happier.

"We must be temperate; the conduct must be controlled by the spirit of God. Many a man and woman have gone down to shame and disgrace through intemperance. We must be temperate in all affairs.

"There is the virtue of prudence; the performance of right relations with all people and the full discharge of every Christian duty. We must ever remember that justice hangs over us, that every deed and act of ours tips the balanced scales either towards good or bad.

"As you look at the hour glass and see the sands dropping through, you are reminded that life is dropping into eternity. For the three stages soon pass and youth, manhood and old age is the ever repeated story of human life.

"As Masons you owe a duty to God, your neighbors and yourselves; so then be brave and loyal to perform your duties as God has revealed them to you. In parting I pray God to make you all loyal Christians every day of your earthly pilgrimage."

The services were marked by special music.
