HARRY LODER BREAKS HIS ARM

Falling From a Chair Norfolk Restaurant Man Breaks Arm.
Harry Loder, proprietor of the Calumet restaurant, broke his left arm by falling from a chair last evening. He stepped on a chair to turn out a light in the restaurant, and lost his balance. To save himself he extended his left arm, on which the weight came when he reached the floor. Mr. Loder had been sick during the day and was rather faint at the time of the accident.

Mr. Loder's arm was broken in two places, one fracture being near the wrist, and the other, a compound fracture, being between the wrist and elbow. He was attended by Dr. Brush, who says that the injury will take several weeks to recover from.

TO OPERATE ON HARTER AGAIN.

Tenth Surgical Operation For City Clerk

FURTHER AMPUTATE LEG.

For the Tenth Time Since He Was Shot Sixteen Years Ago, and for the Second Time Within Less Than a Year, Ed Harter Submits to Knife.

For the tenth time since he was accidentally shot by a friend sixteen years ago, City Clerk Ed Harter of Norfolk must climb upon a surgeon's table next week and submit to a surgeon's knife.

It will be the second time within less than a year that Mr. Harter will have been operated upon by the famous brothers Mayo, at Rochester, Minn., and it will be the third operation performed upon him in that time by them, two distinct operations having been performed last October.

Will Take Off More of His Leg.
Next week Mr. Harter will journey to Rochester for the purpose of having the Mayos take off still more of his left leg, which has been bothering him all summer, causing him to lose about three nights of sleep each week.

Limb Under Knife 6 Times Already.
Already the limb has been under the knife six distinct times, and next week will make the seventh for it. Mr. Harter hopes this one will be the last that will be necessary.

Every time he takes a slight cold, Mr. Harter has trouble with the limb and it has become essential that more of the bone and nerve be amputated.

Calls It a "Vacation."
Ed Harter doesn't make a fuss over a surgical operation. He's grown used to "em. He smiles when he refers to the forthcoming incident and says it's just "a little vacation."

Some people would be distressed for months in advance over this experience that Ed Harter goes through without being phased for a moment.

Stomach and Appendix Sliced.
The last time he was in a hospital Dr. Will Mayo took out a portion of Harter's stomach, reconnected his internal arrangements at a new point and then removed his appendix.

Those scars are scarcely healed even now, when his tenth surgical experience is about to be had.

The city clerk expects to be in the hospital over night. He is so accustomed to being cut to pieces that he really expects to be up the next day and back home within three days after the "work" is done.

Was Shot in 1892.
Ed Harter is a Norfolk native. Sixteen years ago, on February 29, 1892, he was accidentally shot in the left leg by a friend handling a loaded revolver. It was in the old office of the Nebraska Telephone company.

And since then he's had operations almost as regularly as birthdays. Last spring he was elected city clerk in Norfolk by the biggest majority ever given to any candidate for office in the town.

And he has made one of the very best city clerks Norfolk ever had.

All Norfolk will regret the necessity for this tenth operation and will join in best wishes for his speedy recovery from it.

Nebraska Teacher: Superintendent Frank S. Perdue of Madison county has a very encouraging situation this year in the fact that there are only eleven inexperienced teachers employed in his county. Last year there were thirty-three. This condition does not prevail in many counties, and of course is unusual in Madison. However, Mr. Perdue for several years has had a surplus of teachers and has sent quite a number to neighboring counties.

A cowboy from the west, Frank Friend, drifted into Battle Creek yesterday and jugged up. He was quarrelsome and looking for a row. He got what he was after at Tom Sessler's livery barn. Oscar Hantley, a farmer living ten miles out of town, stood Friend's abuse for a while, but got angry and hit the cowboy a couple of terrific blows on the head with a singletree. Friend was rendered unconscious, and it was feared that his skull was fractured. When revived he swore out a warrant for Hantley's arrest, but when the latter was brought into court Friend decided not to prosecute. In explanation he informed the court that he got what he was looking for and that his punishment was deserved.

ROYCROFT PHILOSOPHY.

By Fra Elbertus.

Graft, grand or petty, is moral, financial and spiritual skidoo for any man who indulges in it.

Enthusiasm is a lubricant that makes the wheels of trade go round; a grinch is sand in the bearings. Enthusiasm, like factory melancholia, is catching.

Do not gossip, either in or out of the shop, about your employer's business, nor complain, if things do not suit you, to your fellow employees or the heads of other departments, but go directly to the head of your department and lay your troubles before him. He will adjust your grievances. This is one of the things he is paid to do.

The Savings-Bank Habit is not so bad as the Cab Habit—not so costly to your thimble and wallet as the Cigarette Habit. The man with the Savings-Bank Habit is the one who never gets laid off; he's the one who can get along without you, but you cannot get along without him. The Savings-Bank Habit means sound sleep, good digestion, cool judgment and many independence. The most beautiful thing I know of is a Savings-Bank Book—there are no microbes in it to steal away your peace of mind. It is a guarantee of good behavior.

The most precious possession in life is good health. Eat moderately, breathe deeply, exercise out of doors and get eight hours' sleep.

Thoughtless, unnecessary defacing of walls, damage of burniture and fixtures or posted signs and notices, or reckless use of supplies, creates a waste in serious amount and strays pretty close to that disregard of the other man's property rights which the world reckons as dishonest.

Conversation about things not connected with the business should not be indulged in on "company time." The house can stand it but you can't.

FIVE GOVERNMENT TOWNSITES PICKED.

Lot Distribution Not Yet Public—Witten in Dallas.

Judge J. W. Witten, the government's representative, who will have charge of the Rosebud registration and drawing, will arrive at Dallas Saturday to open his headquarters. The government clerks, who will assist in the opening and drawing, will arrive from Washington before registration day, October 5.

The special allotting agents, Major Kelly and Col. J. H. Scrivens, have completed the selection of townsites in Tripp county—the Rosebud reserve. The townsites, of which there are five, have been selected with the view of an equitable distribution in the territory to be settled. The methods of disposing of the lots have not yet been made public.

Several large tents have already been erected at Dallas to shelter people during the rush, one tent owner claiming that he can care for 1,500 people under his canvas.

W. M. HUGHES PLEASURES.

Rain, However, Cuts Down Attendance at Reading Recital.

Rain reduced the size of the audience at the entertainment given by William M. Hughes of Central City Friday evening at the Methodist church under the auspices of the Epworth League.

Mr. Hughes' readings, however, were thoroughly enjoyed by those present who spent a very pleasing evening at the church. Mr. Hughes may be induced to return to this city and repeat the program under more favorable weather conditions.

The following were Mr. Hughes' readings, the most enjoyable of which were Riley's poems:

- "Down at the Capital"—Cook.
- "Dot Lettie Poy of Mine"—Riley.
- "Wormmelon Time"—Riley.
- "The Honor of the Woods"—Boat Race—Murry.
- "Pro and Con"—Leland Powers.
- "Whisperin' Bill"—Irving Bachellor.
- "Unverständlich"—Cook.
- "Wakin' the Youngins"—Boss.
- "Milo Jones' Wife"—Riley.
- "Quarrel Scene—Cassius and Brutus"—Shakespeare.

SIoux CITYANS IN ROSEBUD NATURE FAKE.

Ran Down Wolf With Auto in Wild Chase.

Sioux City Tribune: Instead of cayuses and hounds, three Sioux City men, L. S. Critchell and W. L. Montgomery, bankers, and Fred L. Hutchins, vice president of the Curtis Sash and Door company and member of the school board, employed an automobile successfully in running down a coyote on the Rosebud reservation this week, while they were guests of Major Kelly, an Indian agent.

The coyote was chased over the plains several miles and run to earth in a washout, where the party peeped him with duckshot, the badly wounded animal crawling away in the brush, it being impossible to pursue him farther on account of a deep cut in the ravine.

Race Was Exciting.

The coyote has long been considered about the fastest thing on legs. Mark Twain in his "Roughing It" described the beast's speed as a long crack in the atmosphere. Hunters and stockmen for a number of years have used hounds with some success, but it remained for the Sioux Cityans to pit an automobile against the maney roost robber of the plains and their experience will be talked about among the Rosebud Sioux Indians for years to come.

Major Kelly was out with the Sioux Cityans in the automobile hunting grouse. Inquisitive Indians on their broncos hovered near, watching with interest the puffing motor and grunting in response to the tooting of the auto horn. Several miles from the agency Major Kelly pointed out a coyote a quarter of a mile away, standing on a knoll and regarding the party with sarcastic nose. He evidently recognized in the strange red terror a rival, but confidence born of long experience convinced him he had nothing to fear.

Get Quite Near Him.

Running smoothly in a wide detour the auto approached the coyote who trotted about in a circle his ears pricked forward in wonder.

The party was so close that Hutchins decided to try a shot at the animal with duckshot, the heaviest ammunition in the auto. He blazed away and the coyote yipping in glee and whisking his bushy tail in derision, started away on a trot, occasionally turning his pointed nose toward the auto and grinning insolently. It was evident that the coyote was just teasing, for he kept out of gunshot while Critchell at the steering wheel, maneuvered for position. He finally worked the coyote around so that there was a clean stretch of rolling prairie in front, free of all timber and heavy grass for a distance of perhaps three miles.

"Now then," said Major Kelly, "if you can keep that chicken stealer on the track, he'll give you a tryout that will make history."

Critchell opened up a notch and the coyote promptly jammed on a bit more steam. Faster and faster grew the pace in response to the will of the man at the lever. The coyote disdainfully sneered and let out another link. He maintained the pace nicely.

Whenever a knoll was reached the coyote gained going up, but on the down grade the auto regained the lost ground. This continued for perhaps two miles, the coyote occasionally ahead and then compelled to run desperately to keep out of range of the shotguns in the car. At length a level stretch for a mile dipping down at the end into a ravine was reached.

"Here's where you do or you don't," said Major Kelly, bounding around in the fast moving car as it bounded over the tufts of bunch grass or swung down into buffalo wallows. "I'm betting on the coyote."

"Not just yet," gritted Critchell, "I haven't given you the real thing."

He shot the lever over to high speed and the machine, responding, fairly leaped into the air and began hitting the high places. Promptly the coyote bent lower, laid his ears back and cut loose. He was running as he never ran before, now, and an occasional glance over his shoulder showed that the thundering machine back of him was holding on grimly. Try as he did, the coyote couldn't gain. He became discouraged, his red tongue, lolling between his foam flecked lips, drawn taut over his white teeth, showed the fear that filled him. Occasionally he whined angrily and redoubled his efforts, but the roaring monster kept coming closer and closer.

Drops Into a Washout.

The bounding of the car as it leaped over the prairie, kept the occupants of the car from using their shotguns. Ahead, only a short distance away, was the ravine toward which the coyote made for safety. He ran desperately and gained the edge, just as the auto tore over the top of the knoll and with undiminished speed continued down the declivity. The coyote, half running, half rolling, dropped exhausted into a washout at the bottom of the ravine, crawling into the tall grass. Critchell brought his smoking cart to a stop and jumped out. He walked toward the washout and the coyote, snarling, rose and staggered up the hill. Shotguns belched, fur flew, but the animal crawled on and on into the brush, where he was lost to view.

"You win," said Major Kelly, and he brought out a box of cigars.

To The News: During a recent game of baseball between the teams of Hudson and Fairview, Miss Amanda Clement of Hudson, who has gained national fame because of her ability as a baseball umpire, demonstrated that she also has ability as a player. She played first base for Hudson. During the game she secured one hit, stole second and third and would have scored but for a fluke by the batter who followed her.

Miss Clement has decided to take a course of physical training at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln and perfect herself in a number of studies also. Miss Clement was physical director at Yankton college for two terms and was exceedingly well liked both by the faculty and by the students.

This has been her most successful season as a baseball umpire, her services having been in constant demand throughout the season. During the season she umpired ball games in three different states, and in each instance gave entire satisfaction both to the competing players and the fans.

KNOX COUNTY FAIR.

Fair and Races at Creighton Have Drawn Big Crowds.
Creighton, Neb., Sept. 26.—Special to The News: A good attendance has marked the Knox county fair here this week. The exhibits, both stock and county agricultural products, are fine and of the best variety.

The first day of the races the wind blew a perfect gale and the dust was very bad. The races were good, however, the pacing race being won in 2:26. A string of good fast horses were entered for the Friday and Saturday races.

The Creighton and Plainview high school teams played an interesting ball game Thursday, Plainview winning by a score of 6 to 3, although Thurl Strain struck out nineteen of the scores save one for Plainview. The Plainview lads. Errors allowed all of Plainview and Verdigre first teams played yesterday.

M. E. STUDENTS NEAR MINISTRY.

NEW ASSIGNMENTS MONDAY.

Next Monday at Noon the Assignment of Methodist Ministers for the Coming Year Will Be Announced at the Stanton Conference.

Stanton, Sept. 26.—From a special correspondent: The third day of the Methodist conference at this place was opened with Bishop McIntyre in the chair. The bishop reviewed the course of his eventful and successful life in the ministry, and the entire audience was thrilled by his recital. The overmastering thought which he brought to his audience was of the hand of God in the affairs of the church and the ministry. After the bishop's address, the minutes of the previous session were approved.

T. P. Wigton of the Nebraska presbytery, F. L. Hart of the West Wisconsin conference, J. J. Klopp of the local Congregational church, C. Janen of the Evangelical association, and E. E. Hunt of the Dakota conference were introduced to the conference.

The report of the trustees of the Nebraska Methodist Episcopal hospital and Deaconess home of Omaha, and the report of the conference committee on the same subject were enthusiastically adopted.

A class of three young men, consisting of Chas. H. Luscher, Geo. W. Mc-Donald and John F. Coleman were admitted into the conference on trial and placed in the studies of the first year. A. C. Bonham, Ezra B. Keontz and Wm. B. Wetherell were continued on trial in the studies of the second year. J. W. Henderson, C. F. Innis, J. H. McDonald, Ward Morse and E. A. Smith were elected to deacons' orders and advanced to the studies of the third year. R. J. Callew, D. A. Keau, J. H. Smith and Miles M. Long were continued in the studies of the third year. A. Atack, A. W. Ahrendts, C. E. Carroll, H. W. Rummel and F. A. C. Crown were advanced to the studies of the fourth year. W. W. McKee, B. H. Murten and J. M. Wingate were graduated and elected to elders' orders.

In the afternoon there were two or three meetings held in different places at the same hours up to 4 o'clock, when a packed house listened with unbounded delight and profit to another characteristic address by Elijah P. Brown. Despite a severe dust storm which raged at night a vast throng taxing the capacity of the church listened with breathless appreciation to Bishop McIntyre's inimitable and inspiring lecture on "Buttoned Up People." The proceeds, amounting to nearly $200, were all turned to the conference claimants' fund. Scores of people from neighboring towns heard the lecture.

The bishop will preach Sunday morning and ordain the deacons and elders at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, delivering an address to the class of deacons before the ordination. At night Dr. Downey of the board of Sunday schools will speak. A business session will be held Monday morning and the appointments will be read just before adjournment at noon.

Resolutions Against Cannon.

Stanton, Neb., Sept. 29.—Special to The News: The north state Methodists have declared against Joe Cannon.

Just before adjourning at noon today the Northern Nebraska Methodist conference adopted resolutions against Speaker "Uncle Joe" Cannon, in favor of national prohibition and, as a means to that end, county option; in favor of candidates declaring their opposition to the liquor traffic and favoring county option; in favor of the interstate liquor shipment law; against any congressional candidate who would not declare himself favorable to a speaker who would give opportunity to vote on this law; and approving the Lincoln Journal and News for refusing liquor advertisements.

Dr. Bithell goes from Neligh district to the pastorate of the Fremont church, with a membership of over 600. Dr. Spyer, formerly of Fremont, goes to Trinity church, Omaha. Dr. George comes from Trinity to Neligh district.
