

BLAST ENGULFS TWENTY-FIVE.

Gas Main in Brooklyn Explodes, Wrecking Street.

WORKMEN AT BOTTOM BURIED.

Woman and Fire Children Carried Down Into Death Hole From Above. Fire, Water and Earth All Do Fatal Work—Street Torn Up for a Block.

New York, Nov. 21.—Twenty-five persons are believed to have lost their lives in an explosion of gas, which tore up a great section of Gold street, Brooklyn. It is definitely known that fifteen persons were buried under the hundreds of tons of earth and timber thrown into the air and ten more were reported as missing. The exact number of dead cannot be determined until evening, for those working to recover the entombed bodies must dig through fifty feet of dirt, rock and a tangle of pipes and timbers. The explosion occurred in a fifty-foot excavation that had been made in Gold street between York and Front streets, where a water main was being laid. The gas main recently sprung a leak and in a manner unknown a spark came in contact with the escaping gas. Immediately there was a terrific explosion that lifted the surface of the street for half a block in both directions and hurled dirt, paving stones and debris into the air.

When the smoke and dust cleared away it was seen that the street had been opened from doorstep to doorstep over an area of nearly a block. The loosened earth and debris had fallen into the excavation, burying the scores of laborers who were at work when the accident happened. Great tongues of flame shot out of crevices and beside them geysers of water slipped into the air from a water main that had been shattered by the explosion. Two bodies were sticking out of the wreckage. A woman and three children were almost opposite the excavation when the earth crumbled under their feet, and they were swept down into the hole under tons of wreckage. Two other children were on the opposite side of the street when the sidewalk caved in, and they lost their lives.

Samuel Trout, foreman of the gang of laborers, was near the woman and the three children who lost their lives. He rushed forward in an endeavor to save them, but he too was drawn into the death hole. His body was the first recovered. It had been roasted to a cinder. Only four of the men working in the excavation escaped, and their escape was remarkable.

Their resignation will doubtless mean a big shake-up in the city affairs of Omaha.

A bill will be offered to reorganize the state railroad commission, the positions remaining appointive, with greatly increased salaries, and with the powers of the commission enlarged.

Another bill provides for exemption of money and credits, and taxes mortgages only when filed, a bill for the organization of trust companies separate from banks, strictly to handle cash funds; assessment of railroad terminals where located, instead of including it in the general value of the roads affected, and a new law providing for viaducts in cities, whereby the railroad commission will not control, but giving cities full power to act.

Slipped on Tack and Rudely Jolted.

Mr. Alexander mixed things up pretty well in the saloons here Saturday night, and spent all his money and started for Tripp afoot. He got tired at Napa Junction and curled up to sleep on the track, using the rail for a pillow. A Sunday freight was the first thing to come along and Alexander was rudely awakened by the cow catcher, in a jolt that would kill most men. He is very badly injured in the head but has a good chance to recover.

Arrested for Seeing Game.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 25.—Were Mr. and Mrs. James Powers cruel to their baby of eight weeks old when they left it in their house and went to the Illinois-Northwestern football game? Neighbors who were attracted to the scene by the lusty bawling of the infant seem to think so, for today they caused the arrest of the parents on a charge of cruelty.

James Powers is a law student at the University of Illinois and he and his wife are both ardent football enthusiasts. The attraction of the big game on Illinois field was too much for them, so they went. Prof. T. W. Hughes of the College of Law signed the bond for the parents, whose hearing was set for Wednesday by Justice Young.

Mr. and Mrs. Powers have been leaving that baby alone long enough. We are tired of hearing its cries," said Mrs. Carey E. Moore, a neighbor, who notified Mrs. Acres Fisinger, the county probation officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Powers scold the charge of cruelty and declare that it is a case of other people "butting in."

Adipose Members Bolt Class.

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 25.—"We won't roll on the floor," was the ultimatum delivered by a dozen society women when Miss Margaret M. Hall, who organized a class in physical culture, insisted they had to emulate her example.

A class in the science of reducing adipose tissue was organized, following a series of health lectures, and enthusiasm ran high among the women until the instructor rolled from one end of the hall to the other, and invited her class to follow her.

"You've got to do it or leave the class," she said, and, while the more enthusiastic matrons and maids rolled and played leap-frog, the rebellious members marched out in a body.

Free Lunch Back Again.

Cheer up. The free lunch is back again. The delight of a cold night has been resurrected with the first approach of winter weather.

For many moons the free lunch has been under an official "ban." The city administration was not especially hostile but acting under legal advice held that the free lunch was a violation of a city ordinance.

The city attorney said, however, that there was a chance for two interpretations last night. The council was appealed to and voted "that it is the sense of this council that the giving of free lunches in a saloon is not a violation of section 15 of ordinance 216."

So the lunch is back.

Big Ship Burns Many, Many Perish.
Island of Malta, Nov. 25.—The big liner, Sardinia, enroute from Liverpool to eastern points, is on fire outside the harbor. She was carrying 200 passengers and a large crew.

Figures were discerned jumping from the ship deck into the water.

The Sardinia was reached by tugs after hours of delay.

The number of dead is not yet known, but is reported large.

Whole Ship in Flames.
The Sardinia had just cleared the harbor, going out, when fire was discovered. One of the hatches blew off as though there had been an explosion and the whole ship was quickly wrapped in flame.

Passengers Surrounded by Fire.
The passengers ran aft but a gale swept the flames upon them and headed off their escape in that direction.

Many Jump Into Sea.
When they had been thus shut off, many of the passengers jumped into the sea without life preservers.

Tugs in the harbor, noting the liner's terrible plight, steamed to the rescue but the intense heat and strong wind made assistance extremely difficult.

There were forty-four members of the crew and thirty British passengers. The balance on the ship were Greeks and foreigners who became wild with fear and were totally unmanageable.

It is believed that many were pinned in the burning wreckage.

Tugs Rescue Some.
Tugs cruising about the harbor rescued some of the passengers but about 100 are missing and most of them are believed to have perished.
