

CARLOCK TO SELL FARM.

One of the Choicest Farms in the Northwest, Too.

He will be a lucky man who secures the Wayne B. Carlock farm, near Gregory, S. D., which is just now offered for sale by the owner. A News man had the pleasure of visiting this farm last summer and the following paragraphs appeared in The News of July 18 regarding the place:

"Imagine driving along a country road and coming to a farm house standing some distance back from the main road, built upon an elevation connected with the front gate by a gentle slope of green grass dotted here and there with a flower bed and parked with little trees just getting a start in life; the house is modern in appearance, is painted a clean cream and is fronted by a comfortable wide porch. From inside the house comes sounds of a high grade phonograph reproducing Melba's solos. A short distance behind the house a mammoth red barn lifts its proud head. At one side of the farm yard are a series of scientific pig pens such as you might see in an agricultural college. Inside the pens are registered porkers and their little ones; off in the distance grazing peacefully on the side hill, are a bunch of registered cattle; around the barn run pure white chickens that show their blood breeding. And surrounding the farm house and barn are great stretches of deep green corn and ripening wheat and oats.

"Such a picture as this is presented by the farm of Wayne B. Carlock, just a ten minutes' drive from the town of Gregory, and Mr. Carlock says that his farm is only one of the type that may be found anywhere in the country.

"The oats will go sixty bushels to the acre, the wheat twenty, and the corn, though late in spots, has every prospect of making a bumper yield."

ADMITS FALSITY OF INTERVIEW.

New York Paper Now Says Synopsis Was a "Stupid Error."

New York, Dec. 2.—The World, which published on Nov. 21 what was purported to be an "absolutely accurate and authoritative synopsis" of the suppressed Hale interview with the kaiser, containing a remark ascribed to the kaiser that "Edward has been hounding me for two years and he has got to stop it," now announces that it has sent this cable message:

"Prince von Buelow, Imperial Chancellor, Berlin: After a painstaking investigation the New York World finds no convincing basis of fact for its published synopsis of the Hale interview with his majesty, the German emperor. It accepts your verdict that the alleged interview ascribed to the emperor is 'stupidly absurd words which he cannot have uttered.'

"As a matter of simple justice to the German emperor and the German people the World will print an editorial leader on Monday morning expressing its sincere regret at the publication of the synopsis which it regards as misleading and mischievous.

"It was an honest mistake, committed merely through overzeal, without the knowledge of the proprietor or chief editor, and so late at night that the article did not appear in the first edition.

"Proofs of the synopsis sent to the author of the interview had been corrected in his own handwriting and this naturally was accepted as evidence that the article as printed was personally approved by him."

Fire at the High School.

Some forty minutes before the building would have been crowded with school children this morning, fire broke out in the big high school building. The fire, though it filled a good portion of the big building with smoke, did little damage. The fire was counted as a rather fortunate occurrence by the school board for it revealed a bit of faulty fire construction that might have led to a dangerous blaze.

Vic Howarth, the janitor, was the hero of the fire, first discovering the blaze, turning in an alarm to the department and then putting out the fire with a garden hose. Miss Paine, the high school principal, and a number of teachers were in the building, although the pupils had not begun to arrive. The building was cleared of the smoke and school held as usual.

The fire was due to the ceiling above the horizontal smoke flue over the furnace being unprotected. When an unusually brisk fire was started this morning on account of the cold weather the flue burned out. The intense heat set fire to the lath and plaster only about five inches above the flue. About three minutes later the fire was discovered by the janitor and was blazing in a threatening way. It had just pushed up into the first floor when extinguished.

About 5 o'clock one Sunday morning, a year ago last May, the old high school building burned down. The new building, costing $40,000, has only been used a few months. Superintendent Hunter reached the building almost before the alarm was through sounding and members of the school board came only a few moments later. The board decided at once that metal ceiling with asbestos protection would replace the plaster and lath which was ordered torn down. The fires in the high school furnace are permitted to go out every night.

The fire department made a good run and under Chief Krantz was ready to fight a serious fire if necessary. It was the first fire which has occurred since the new hose wagon has been in commission.

School House Burns.

Norfolk lawyers returning from court at Madison brought word that the Morningside school house west of Madison was burning down as their train left Madison.

NOT A MURDERER.

Traveling Man in Night Attire Creates Stir in Hotel Dining Room.

A dazed lodger, under the impression that his bed mate was trying to kill him, created a commotion at one of the leading Norfolk hotels before daybreak one morning last week by rushing through the hallway and down stairs into the dining room in his director's night gown, crying out in his flight that he was being pursued by a murderer. The dining room at the time had several guests eating early breakfast by lamplight before leaving on the morning trains. The man's screams and agitation created consternation among the breakfasters and hotel employes.

It all happened this way: Two traveling salesmen for the same house were compelled to "double up," that is, occupy the same bed, because of the scarcity of single beds. Towards morning one of the sleepers grasped the other's throat during a somnambulist spell. The latter, in his half-awakened condition, supposed that his friend was trying to strangle him. He released the man's hold, got out of the room and hurried down stairs, his friend following and calling to him to come back. When the frightened man reached the dining room his friend also in night attire, got to the head of the stairway. It took considerable explanation and reassurances from the supposed throtter to get his victim to return to their room. After the first alarm the guests enjoyed the episode, but the two parties concerned could find no amusement in it.

The Independent Telephone Meeting.

Columbus Telegram: Plans for the building of copper circuit toll lines between Fremont and Columbus, Columbus and Norfolk, and Creston and Madison were formulated in this city at a quarterly meeting of officers of the independent telephone companies in the Third district, comprising a dozen counties in northeast Nebraska. It was proposed to complete the work within the next three months. The action of the district officers is of great importance to independent telephone patrons throughout north Nebraska, as the new line will afford direct communication over a copper circuit between Omaha, Fremont, Columbus, Norfolk, Sioux City and intermediate points. Plans were also discussed for extending the lines to Grand Island, and to points on the Union Pacific branch lines from Columbus.

About twenty prominent independent telephone men of the district attended the meeting, which was held in the firemen's hall. The district president, W. J. Stadelman, of Norfolk, presided, and T. J. Cottingham of this city was secretary. Among those in attendance were Wallace Wilson of Fremont, O. A. Sunderman of Madison, A. Bratt of Genoa, C. C. Deering of Omaha, R. E. Madison and R. C. Field of Lincoln. The delegates represented a dozen exchanges, five thousand telephones, 2,500 miles of rural lines, 600 miles of toll lines and a half million dollars of capital.

Predicts New Road.

Burton Independent: Now as railroad news are once more in the air, and other papers, as you see, boasting of the new roads to be built next year in their section of the country, the Independent can give you a bit of information that will be of interest to the residents of this and adjoining counties.

We have it by good authority, that by March 1, 1909, the Burlington Ry. Co. will begin the construction of a road from Erickson, Neb., to be built through Keya Paha and Tripp counties to the northwest. The proposed new road will cross the North-Western either at Stuart or Atkinson and go northwest to the Niobrara river, crossing at a point near Haugher's bridge. It will take a northwest-erly course and pass through Burton, the coming metropolis of Keya Paha county, and through the rich German settlement that lies to the northwest of Burton. It will cross the Keya Paha river, passing through the proposed new townsite north of Kenaston's, then on through Tripp and Meyers counties. Just where this new road will terminate, we are unable to state at this time, but presume it will connect with the Northern Pacific, far to the north, in order to get a more direct route from Omaha to the west.

The editor of the Independent has been in possession of these facts since last August, having been informed of the proposition by one of the promoters of the new road, but was not aware that the road would be under construction by March 1, until just recently.

Butter Market Boosted by Clique.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Chicago manipulation of the leading butter markets of the country by a coterie of Chicago, Elgin and eastern produce men, is said to be responsible to a large extent for the present extravagant prices for butter. Here's Another Rush Romance.

George S. Gudge, a Rosebud homesteader living near Burke, S. D., lost a wife through the Bonesteel rush of four years ago. But he gained another through the Tripp rush of last month.

When Gudge left an inland store in Kansas for his claim his wife was "forced" to come, on account of rattlesnakes, tornadoes and prairie fires. She and the family stayed in Kansas.

Gudge proved up and went back to Kansas. Instead of his wife meeting him with outstretched arms, she met him with the sheriff and divorce summons.

Then came the Tripp rush and Gudge drifted to Dallas. And there from Kansas came Mrs. Fannie E. White, the sweetheart of his boyhood whom he had not seen for "nigh on to twenty years." They met by chance in a notarial office. Mrs. White said she was a widow by death and Gudge admitted that he was a widower of the grass variety and had been "for nigh on to three weeks which is long enough in South Dakota."

So they married and up to date have been living happily.

Will Take Over Eating Houses.

The Northwestern railroad company is to supersede Rome Miller, formerly of Norfolk but now of Omaha, in the management of the Northwestern railroad eating houses west of the river. These eating houses are maintained at Norfolk Junction, Long Pine, Chadron and Buffalo Gap. The transfer will probably take place about the first of the year.

The Northwestern is working out an organization for the operation of the railroad eating houses and expects to render better service to the traveling public under the new plan. In Norfolk Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Walcott have been asked to retain charge of the Norfolk eating house after the transfer but have not decided as to whether or not they will remain.

Belle White.

Belle White, whose funeral was held yesterday afternoon and whose remains were laid to rest in Prospect Hill cemetery, was born in Wisconsin in 1858 and moved to Norfolk with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abram White, in 1881. For fifteen years she had suffered from heart disease, her last illness continuing for three months. During the last three weeks she was unable to leave her chair, but despite this condition she was cheerful to the last. She ate dinner the night before her fatal attack and seemed as well as usual. She suffered very much during the last night. She was a member of Trinity Episcopal church.

Has Fought Them All.

John Gamble, curly headed, black faced, lanky John Gamble, janitor and man of all work for numerous families in Norfolk, has heard the whistle of many kinds of bullets. He has heard the sharp "sizz" of Indian bullets, the whizzing bullets from the Spanish "mauser" and the bullet touched off by the wiley Filipino.

Veteran of many wars is John Gamble, for nineteen years in the regular army as a member of the colored Twenty-fifth infantry. Gamble enlisted in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1856. He has also been with the Ohio state troops, for two years before he joined the regulars and later when assigned to special duty as a drill master. Gamble rose to be a non-commissioned officer.

Gamble served in the Sitting Bull campaign in South Dakota in the winter of 1890-1. He was in the battle of Wounded Knee and covered the Pine Ridge reservation country on scouting duty.

Charged Up El Coney.

A few years later in 1898 Gamble and other black fighters of the Tenth regiment in Cuba in the face of a heavy fire which thinned the ranks. Eight over the backs of a crack New York volunteer regiment marching the ground the black soldiers walked.

Trailed the Brown Men.

In the Philippines in 1900 Gamble was in the cavalry and trailed the Filipino.

Railroad News.

The Huronite, published at Huron, S. D., says: "A very prominent railroad man interested in the Huronite's report Thursday that the coming year would be a record breaker in railroad building in South Dakota. 'You will see,' said he, 'that the Minneapolis & St. Louis will build from La Beau across the Missouri to the west. The Milwaukee is going to connect its Armour branch by building to Orient and the Northwestern will build connecting lines west of the river. There will be more track laid in this state next year than there has been for many years and the lines built will astonish you. Look out for the Illinois Central. It has just got its nose in this state and you mark what I say; that company will not long be satisfied in seeing other roads monopolize the growing business of the state. Many things will occur in railroad circles next year which are not now dreamed of and South Dakota is going to be one of the important fields of railroad building."

The railroads, according to a Chicago dispatch, are contributing very largely to market activity. The leading interest received contracts last week covering the trade supply requirements of the Chicago & Northwestern and the Wisconsin Central roads. The former road took 21,000 sets of spikes and 8,000 kegs of bolts.

They were old issues, and the loss was not discovered until time came for binding them. A little want ad went searching for the missing issues and, like a magnet, drew them all in from various parts of the country, completing the files.

EASY TO MIX THIS.

Prepare at Home by Shaking Ingredients Well in a Bottle.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, which is said to be a positive remedy for backache or kidney or bladder derangement, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; compound kargon, one ounce; compound sassaaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic affections with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the four acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

Peters and the various foremen of the different fire companies. While inspection of flues and basements will be one of the objects, the main object is to familiarize the foremen and fire officials with the basement and general arrangements of all the Norfolk avenue buildings so that they will be better equipped to fight any fire which should break out in a big building. To fight fire in a building about which the firemen are ignorant is a rather slow task. By knowing the internal arrangement of the basement, where most fires originate, the firemen can get quickly to the spot. The inspection will be made in a short time.

Many Norfolk people have been unable to understand why Judge M. H. Reese of Lincoln and not Judge Barnes of Norfolk is to be chief justice of the supreme court, Chief Justice Barnes having been at the head of the court during the past year. The supreme court was changed by a constitutional amendment last month. It now has seven instead of three judges. In 1909 three judges will be elected for a term of six years. In 1911 three judges will be elected for a term of six years. Then in 1913 a chief justice will be elected to serve for six years, thus making the office of chief justice an elective one. The amendment also provides that the supreme judge whose term expires when the first elected chief justice takes office in January 1914 shall be chief justice until that time, thus giving the chief justiceship to Judge Reese, who was elected in 1907. While in point of continuous service Judge Barnes has served longer than any of the other judges, Judge Reese has been on the supreme bench before and therefore has already seven years of service to his credit.
