The two young men had come to Norfolk to celebrate but started in too early by trying to wreck one of the houses of ill fame. Klug, was severely burned with powder from a blank cartridge fired by a 9-year-old lad the night before the celebration. It was a 22-caliber gun from which the shot came. NORFOLK BRAKEMAN KILLED

A. C. Anderson Slipped Under Moving Car and Died Later. A. C. Anderson of Norfolk, a brakeman on the Northwestern, died at Atkinson Monday forenoon following an accident at Stuart in which he fell under a moving car and lost a leg. It is said that Anderson probably stepped between moving cars to uncouple them—an act against instructions—and, slipping, fell under the wheels. The injured man was taken to Atkinson, where he expired. He is survived here by a widow and one child. The family residence is at 806 South First street. Mrs. Anderson left for Atkinson at noon. Only meager details of the accident were received here. Cuming County Politics. West Point, Neb., July 6.—Special to The News: Political matters in Cuming county are assuming definite shape for the coming campaign. The filings for county offices are as follows: For sheriff, Matthew Feehan (dem.), the present incumbent; Sheriff William Malchow, Jr., (dem.) is expected to contest the nomination. No republican has as yet filed. The greatest interest centers in the office of county treasurer, which will be filled by a new man, the present county treasurer, Fred Thietje having served the statutory two terms. The filings for this office are: Conrad Gerken (dem.), Paul Kase, the present deputy treasurer (dem.), and Herman Zepplin, former mayor of West Point (rep.). The present incumbents of the offices of county clerk and county judge are expected to stand for re-election, and it is confidently believed that Miss Emma R. Miller, the present county superintendent (rep.), will have no opposition for a second term, she being deservedly popular with both parties and is conducting her office in an exceedingly satisfactory manner. Madison Sons of Hermann. Madison, Neb., July 6.—Special to The News: The Sons of Hermann and their families celebrated the Fourth of July with a picnic on Schwank's island just west of this city. The Maennerchor club of Madison and the Sons of Hermann from the neighboring towns were honored guests of the occasion. The rain late in the afternoon was an untimely interruption of the festivities, otherwise an enjoyable occasion was had by all present. Ed. J. Wolfe and wife of Lincoln are spending a few days in Madison, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Donovan. Mr. Wolfe was formerly foreman of the Madison Star-Mail, and is now in charge of a job printery at Lincoln. Rev. H. McCleughan, pastor of the Presbyterian church, left last evening for St. Paul, where he will represent as a delegate the Christian Endeavor society of this place at the meeting of the international Christian Endeavor convention at St. Paul this week. Madison practically attended the celebration at Norfolk last Saturday en masse. All came home feeling well paid for the trip and have nothing but the kindest words for the people of Norfolk on behalf of the hospitality given and the entertainment afforded. Court Attaches a Locomotive. Slou Falls, S. D., July 6.—"My goodness, why doesn't the train go? Are we going to stay in Slou Falls all day?" These are two of the expressions, purged of sulphuric tincture, that were heard on the southbound Milwaukee train about noon. Even when explanations were forthcoming many could not understand how a locomotive could be held when steam was up and the strong right hand of the engineer was fairly itching to open the throttle. Engine 771 was held by the issuance of an execution secured by executor A. B. Kittredge acting for Mrs. Martin Westby, who has a judgment against the road for $6,148.79. It was the last day the railroad could appeal the case and as no appeal was taken and the money not in sight the attorney decided upon drastic action. The attached engine was due to pull the 12:15 train to Chicago via Slou City, but that made no difference to United States Deputy Marshal Jerry Carleton, who served the papers. That was the particular engine he had taken fancy to, anyway. Placed in Storage. Railway officials got purple above their collars, but the man with the law behind him smiled cheerfully. In order to move their train and the United States mails, it was necessary to get another engine from Harrisburg, and this the officials were able to do within a couple of hours. About this time the deputy marshal asked the railroad company to put the engine in the round house for him. They laughed at him and told him to do it himself. Later on, however, they complied with his request and the engine is now lodged in the round-house, and is for sale. Who wants a good healthy engine? FASHIONS ON THE FLY. Charming Little Frock For the High School Girl. A summer frock for the high school girl that could be worn longer than most summer dresses and not soil nearly so soon is made of black and white striped percale or lawn. Have all the stripes run vertically, except in the panel up the front, where the stripes should be arranged horizontally. Have Dutch collar and cuffs of fine white linen and a black taffeta tie. This dress is as smart as it can be. Many of the new blouses are tucked all over, bodice and sleeves alike. One of the fancies of the hour is for coats made of net to wear over silk princess gowns. Linen is very fashionable this summer as a frock material. Such a gown as the one seen in the cut is very useful if made of a dark shade of linen, such as catwba or wood brown, or in white or rose the design is lovely. If a mannish effect is desired the high collar is used, but the Dutch cut is newer and more becoming to a young girl. JUDIC CHOLLEY. Seamanship. "I see that new ocean liner can steam her 23 knots an hour," said Smithers from his paper. His wife looked up from her knitting with a bright smile. "I suppose they steam the knots so that the poor sailors can untie them more easily," she observed tranquilly.—St. Louis Republic.

STYLISH LINEN FROCK.

A Mistaken Uniform. Uniformed officials are often a puzzle to American travelers. An instance of this is given in "Recollections of a Varied Career," by General W. F. Draper, formerly American ambassador to Italy. General and Mrs. Draper were traveling in Russia when they had the following amusing experience in the sleeping car. Mrs. Draper's maid, Marie, speaks German as well as French, but Russian is beyond her. After Mrs. Draper's bed was made she desired another pillow, and Marie rushed into the corridor to get one. Seeing a man in uniform—the railway porters wear uniforms—she demanded a pillow in German. "I have no pillows," said he. "A bolster, then," said Marie. "I have no bolster." "Then give me a couple of towels to wrap up one of these dirty cushions." "I have no towels either," said the uniform. "I am a colonel in his majesty's imperial guard." Poor Marie nearly went into hysterics, and I was called in to explain that no offense was meant. Woman on the Bench. Hyman Lazarus, for many years recorder of Bayonne, knew the people who came before him. When a woman appeared to accuse a husband who had beaten her he said, "If I send him to jail you'll come back here tomorrow in tears and ask me to let him out." "No," she said, "I will not. I'd like to have him punished." "How much shall I give him then," asked Lazarus—"two months, one month, six months?" The woman, who had begun to relent, was speechless. "I'll tell you what I'll do," he said. "You come up here and take my chair, and whatever sentence you pronounce will go." The woman hesitated, but the recorder insisted. The husband was arraigned before her, and the recorder in a gruff voice ordered her to pronounce sentence. "Six months, three months, two months, a month—quick," he said; "let us have it." The woman burst into tears. She and her husband embraced and went out of court rejoicing. "There!" said Lazarus. "If you come back I'll give you six months each."—New York Press. Rhinoceros a Bad Foe. While easily stalked, the rhinoceros is a dangerous customer, as most men will agree who have hunted him. If the rhinoceros gets one of his horns almost invariably charges, often probably from sheer curiosity, but that does not make him any the easier to dispose of. Moreover, he runs and turns at a speed inconceivable in a beast of his vast bulk. Against his massive, sloping head the heaviest bullet is a mere flea bite, leaving no possibility of a stopping shot except with a hard nose ball sent fairly into the heart through the chest. An alternative is to stand absolutely motionless, when with his bad eyesight there is a possibility he may mistake you for a tree and veer past. Indeed, the best ruse in the crisis of any charge is to stand fast and still, for even the unwounded lion sometimes swerves in his charge and retires before a man who has the nerve to wait his coming.—Edgar Beecher Bronson in Century. Effect of Fear. A vigorous young greenrocker, aged twenty-seven, was arrested on a Tuesday on charges of drunkenness and assaulting a policeman, who was assisted in securing him by a Mr. Lyons. On Wednesday it was announced in court that Mr. Lyons was dead, and the greenrocker was remanded to see whether the coroner's jury would hold him in any way responsible for the tragedy. By Saturday it had been found that Mr. Lyons' death was due to heart disease of long standing, but meanwhile the agonizing suspense had aged the young prisoner terribly, his black hair having become completely white.—Pall Mall Gazette. A Sinister Comment. "That new neighbor of ours asked us to let him use our hatchet and our clothesline," said Sirius Barker's wife. "Did you give him the hatchet?" "Yes; the one that has nicks in it and a wabbling handle." "And did you give him the clothesline that has been tied together in eight places?" "Yes." "Well, that's a case of borrowing trouble, all right."—Washington Star. Pen Picture of Turkey's New Sultan. The new sultan of Turkey as he appeared at the solemnity is thus described by a correspondent: "Nobody knows what he thinks. He said nothing. Many believe he feigned ignorance and indifference in order to save his own life, and to look at him today it appears as if the simulation will continue. One can only read in his protruding eyes good natured ingenuousness and almost infantile curiosity, which contrast strongly with his aged appearance. He certainly is good, but weak. I was unable to see in him a sovereign of the new epoch, a reorganizer of Turkey, a sultan of progress." Had an Answer. This story is being told on a Swede in central Kansas who was given to excessive use of the bottle. He was working at a certain house, doing odd jobs, and the daughter of the house knew of his reprehensible habits. She thought it time for some one to re-monstrate with him on the error of his ways. "Why," she asked, "are you not ashamed to spend all your wages and make your wife take in washing? Why don't you give her some money?" "Well," he answered, "I have an income besides my wages." "Oh, is that so?" said the daughter, somewhat mollified. "Yes," he said, "I have an income from the queen of Sweden." "What for?" asked the girl. "For minding my own business," answered the Swede, going on with his work.—Kansas City Journal.

CHAFF FOR THE PRESIDENT. In Song Sung at Amateur Performance in a Washington Theater. When President Taft and Mrs. Taft went to the Belasco theater at Washington the other night to witness the production of an amateur society show given for charity they saw a play which was a musical comedy entitled "About Thebes." The book was written by Mrs. A. C. Barney, who managed the affair. Many society people were present. Mr. Taft was the subject of a good deal of funmaking on the part of a dozen pretty girls, participants in the comedy, who stretched out their arms in supplication to the president and sang a song, part of which went as follows: Can't we call you Bill now that you're president? Can't we call you Bill now any more? As we see you riding by with your head held up so high Can't we greet you as in days of yore? Can't we stroke your hand and say, "Hello, Bill?" Will you turn us down and pass us over? Are you really quite intent on the "Mistake President?" Tell us, can't we call you Bill now any more? The verses of the song were sung by Mrs. Joseph M. Stoddard of Washington, who wrote it, and the pretty girls who asked Mr. Taft to let them call him "Bill" were helped out in the chorus by the entire company, which was assembled on the stage at the time. CANINE MARATHON RACE. Novel Feature of Queensboro Bridge Carnival at New York. One of the novel features of the Queensboro bridge carnival in New York during the week of June 12-19 will be a canine marathon race. This is the first time that this will be tried and will be open to trained dogs only. The affair will be under the direction of Phil G. Andersen, the well known dog fancier of Union Course, N. Y. The race will be from the Manhattan end of the Queensboro bridge to some point on the Hoffman boulevard near Glendale, N. Y. The lists are open to field dogs and hounds. There will be several contests for trained dogs. There will be also a race for the booby prize by dogs not thoroughly trained. The dogs will have blankets with numbers so that they can be distinguished in the race. At first the committee was doubtful about the possibility of carrying on such a race, but several experts on dogs have satisfied it that the thing can be accomplished. In speaking of the matter Mr. Andersen said: "Dogs can be trained to race as well as horses, and more so, because they do not need any jockeying. Some of the most exciting coursing events of this kind have been held right on Long Island, and at one time a good deal of money has been put up on the contestants. It will be great sports to see from 100 to 150 dogs go streaking across the big bridge. "The races can be made more exciting by interspersing them with hurdle and other obstructions. To see these dogs leaping fences and ropes would add to the excitement and novelty of the affair. This race will interest the owners of all thoroughbreds and especially the owners of field dogs. "I have sent notices to about 350 owners, and all of them have signified their willingness to enter the races. It will be a question of selection. Each race should be limited to about fifty dogs at the maximum. If there are more than that number the dogs are apt to run in packs, and that would spoil the race. Owners of dogs as far west as Los Angeles have signified their intention of entering their animals." LIKE CHRIST'S TOMB. Norfolk (Va.) Man Having Vault Hewn From Solid Block of Peculiar Stone. Elijah L. Cox, a well known and well to do citizen of Berkeley ward, in Norfolk, Va., is having prepared for himself and wife a tomb, or sarcophagus, in which the couple will be laid to rest when they depart this life. In many respects this sarcophagus is notable in that it is being hewn by J. D. Couper, a marble worker, brother of the famous New York sculptor, William Couper, from a solid block of a peculiar kind of stone, much resembling granite, and when completed will weigh approximately about thirty tons. It is stated that so far as is known there is only one other sarcophagus of this kind in the world, and this is located in Scotland. The tomb is said to be modeled after that of Christ and will be sealed with a massive cover, consisting of a piece of stone weighing about 8,000 pounds. DIAZ A CENSUS TAKER. Leading Men in Church and State to Make Count in Mexico. The Mexican government is collecting the names of prominent men in different localities to aid in taking the census in Mexico next year. In the federal district President Diaz, the members of the cabinet, prominent officials, the governor of the federal district, the chief of police, magistrates of the supreme court, bankers, lawyers, railroad officials, the metropolitan bishop and high dignitaries of the Catholic church will personally cover sections of Mexico City, taking down the names of men and women, their nationality, age, religion and all data required by the government. President Diaz accomplished this work formerly on his own street, the Calle de Cadenas, and unaided secured the names of the inhabitants of every house, including servants and children. Of course there are some things you need more than money—or you wouldn't spend any money. When you have some things which you need less than money, try a for sale ad.

WANTS BUSINESS UNIVERSITY. Cleveland Educator Makes Plea for Educating Business Men. Denver, July 6.—"To provide an institution of university grade for the training of leaders of trade and captains of industry with expert teachers of business culture, ethics, history, applications of the sciences, world markets, etc., is a larger opportunity for some philanthropist than the endowment of libraries or the establishment of chairs in dead languages or the search for mummies and sarcophagi that are still more dead," said S. R. Hoover, an educator of Cleveland, O., speaking before the departments of business education at the National Education association convention. "For centuries the business man has helped to educate all the other professions, and supported them forward," continued Mr. Hoover. "Now the dignity of his own, the incomparably larger number engaged in it, and the keenness of the competition with those of other lands demand a departure from our archaic system of learning business methods, and the establishment of an American university of commerce to which foreign lands will soon send their sons to learn how the Yankee does business. However small the number who can take advantage of it, education must mean the largest possible opportunity. There still clings around commercial pursuits a little of the mediaeval prejudice which provided such opportunity only for those contemplating the 'professions.' But the number of professions is increasing rapidly. Technical schools have added several to the list. The football field and the gymnasium have followed the pugilistic ring in providing 'professions.' If we have the professional football player and pugilist, surely the professional business man stands far higher in the scale. For the professional there must be special training. The physician, lawyer, minister, teacher, engineer and athlete have presented their claims, and recognition has been accorded in special opportunity provided by schools and courses of the most approved type. But it has been generally true of the history of education that as soon as a commercial career he was sidetracked with scant courtesy and only a rudimentary training in the mere 'hatchet-and-saw' course. "The greatest problem in education today is the industrial training of the common people so as to enable them individually to give more productive service," said Homer H. Seerley, president of the Iowa State normal school, Cedar Falls, Ia., in his address before the department of rural and agricultural education, which held a meeting in connection with the National Education association. "All other education can be conducted in groups, but this must be personal and individual. Agriculture must be taught in a sparsely settled community and at great expense per capita. Agriculture is not one occupation or branch, but many occupations and branches. It depends not upon a single science, but many sciences. It represents in results not a single kind of skill, but many kinds of capabilities." NOTED MORO CHIEF KILLED. Jikiri Slain at Mouth of Cave; Entire Band Exterminated. Manila, July 6.—In a desperate fight near Pailan on Jolo island yesterday, Jikiri, the famous Moro outlaw chief, was killed and his entire band exterminated by a detachment of regulars and constabulary under Captain George L. Bryman of the Sixth United States cavalry, operating in conjunction with a naval flotilla of the mosquito fleet under Lieutenant Commander Signor. The American loss was one private killed and three officers and twenty enlisted men and one sailor wounded. Private O'Connell of Troop A, Sixth cavalry, was the one man killed. The American officers wounded are: Lieutenants Kennedy Miller and Arthur H. Wilson of the Sixth. Outlaws All Fight to Death. Captain Bryman's cavalry, with a few scouts and constabulary and a detachment of sailors under Lieutenant Commander Signor, located and attacked the outlaws in the mountains not far from the coast. The Moros fled and took refuge in a large cave. The column of troops and sailors surrounded the place, but Jikiri refused to surrender. A concerted attack was made, the Moros fighting desperately in the mouth of a cave until the last member of the band was dead. Americans Wounded by Explosion? As yet few details of the fight have been received at the headquarters of the army. The large number of wounded among the troops is accounted for on the theory that the cave was mined and the Americans were wounded by the explosion. In his brief report Captain Bryman warmly commends Lieutenant Miller for bravery and gallantry in action. Captain Bryman gave no details as to the condition of the wounded. Selee, Baseball Manager, Dead. Denver, July 6.—Frank Selee, for twelve years manager of the Boston National League baseball club and late manager of the Chicago Nationals, died here at the Elks' home for consumptives. SUFFRAGETTES BESIEGE HIM. They are Lined Up, Sending Relay Members, Near Asquith. London, July 6.—A deputation from the Woman's Freedom League presented itself at the entrance to parliament and renewed the demand for an audience with Premier Asquith to discuss the suffrage question, claiming the right to such an interview under a statute of Charles II. The premier again declined to receive the deputation and the league is now determined to seek an audience with the king at Buckingham palace on Thursday. The deputation remained at the door of the house of commons and the league has decided to send relays of women every three hours to relieve those in waiting. A deputation will thus remain in front of the house until Thursday morning unless Premier Asquith in the meantime consents to receive it. RANCHERS' WAR ENDED. Cattle Men Pay $25,000 to Settle With Sheep Company for Depredations. Slou Falls, S. D., July 6.—The case against nine prominent cattle men of the Sundance district, who were charged with destroying property belonging to the Rodney King Sheep company and the Guthrie Sheep company, after having been pending for some weeks, has been dismissed as the result of an agreement by which the defendants paid all costs and expenses in connection with the prosecution and for the property destroyed, in addition to agreeing not to further molest sheep on the Crook county range. It is estimated that the little escape of the nine cattle men cost them the aggregate sum of $25,000, and under the circumstances they doubtless consider themselves fortunate to have escaped upon payment of this sum. Two of the cattle men had made confessions of the operations of the secret organization, of which there were fifty members.
