

EXTRA TRAINS FOR SANTA.

A Prompt Delivery of Christmas Gifts Promised by Railroads.
Chicago, Dec. 21.—Few persons in the territory west of Chicago will be disappointed over not receiving their Christmas gifts this year if the managers of the railroads carry out their present intention of running special trains to carry the enormous tonnage of express packages which will flood the railroads during the week before Christmas.
The railroads expect to begin running the special trains four or five days previous to Christmas and continue them as long as necessary.
Heretofore the express business has been so heavy during the holiday period that all of the passenger trains carrying express have been delayed by reason of the extra work of loading and unloading at stations.

WOMAN CABBY WHIPS A RIVAL.

The Men Were Jealous Because She Was Getting all the Business.
Middletown, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Mrs. Amelia Kate Smith, cabby, was arrested here for horsewhipping another hack driver. His name is Cornelius D. Dolamater. Mrs. Smith said she chastised Delamater because he had nagged her.
Mrs. Smith's husband is a hack driver. He fell ill a week ago, and Mrs. Smith took his place to earn the family living. She had such success that other cabbies were jealous. Some of them said mean things about her, and she heard of it. When she thrashed Delamater she did it at the depot, where several persons saw it and enjoyed it.

Young Man Drinks Acid.

Wesley Coakley, 23-year-old son of Samuel Coakley, living west of the city, made an attempt to commit suicide Monday afternoon by swallowing one-fourth of a two-ounce bottle of pure carbolic acid which he purchased at a local drug store. Although the boy's father says there has been no trouble in the household, it is said the boy was despondent over some difficulty at home.
Monday morning he entered a drug store here and after looking over all the holiday goods he suddenly asked the druggist to sell him ten cents' worth of carbolic acid. In reply to the druggist's question as to what he wanted it for the young man answered that he wanted to use it to wash a wounded leg.
He went home and late in the afternoon swallowed about one-fourth of the bottle. A physician was immediately called and with the aid of brandy soon had the young man well on the way to recovery. No reason was given by Coakley as to why he attempted to end his life. The physician who attended him believes the young man did not at first want to attempt to kill himself but really wanted to frighten his parents, who say their son has been despondent and had not been acting right of late.

Mr. and Mrs. Snyder Leave.

Mrs. H. L. Snyder left Norfolk at noon for her new home in Omaha, where Mr. Snyder had gone to take his new position as chief clerk to Frank Walters, general manager of the Northwestern railroad west of the Missouri river. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder will reside for the present at apartment 6, The Sherman, Sherman avenue, Omaha.
For twenty years Mr. and Mrs. Snyder have been identified with the city of Norfolk, and their removal is regretted by a very large circle of friends. Mr. Snyder has been associated with the Northwestern during practically all of his life here, with the exception of a short time when he left the railroad work to take up the management of the gas company. He was promoted from dispatcher to chief clerk under General Superintendent Hughes, then held the same position under General Superintendent Braden, and later was made chief inspector over lost and damaged freight. His new position gives added responsibilities.
Mrs. Snyder will be particularly missed by the Methodist church choir, in which she has long been a leading factor.
Mr. Snyder's successor, William Golden of Fremont, has not yet been able to come to Norfolk, owing to emergency work elsewhere. He is at present with General Superintendent Braden in the Chadron office where, owing to the absence of the superintendent on a vacation, the cold wave has caused congestion in traffic. Mr. Braden expects to be home by Thursday.

Fire at Centerville, Ia.

Centerville, Ia., Dec. 21.—Fire destroyed nine business buildings in the town of Seymour last night. The loss is $100,000. The new waterworks mains had been laid, but the water had not been turned on.
Verdigris, Neb., Dec. 20.—Sporting Editor, The News: I notice in Saturday's issue of The News a pitiful hard luck story from G. A. Taylor, the Burke Giant. Taylor has not any holier coming. If he claims that he got a fall on Pavelka he is certainly letting his imagination get away with him. Verdigris has a clean bunch of sports and will give any man a fair chance. Taylor is just so because he met a better man than himself, and he admitted it before over fifty people that were present at the match.
Pavelka wanted to wrestle another match at Burke, the Giant's home town, but Taylor said: "No, you are a better man than me; I don't want another match with you."
Now, if Taylor has changed his mind and wants to wrestle with Pavelka and has any money to bet, he can certainly get all he can handle, and then some. Speak up, Taylor; don't be bashful!
Yours truly, W. G. Squires.

Buckle Boy Vital Witness.

Mrs. Minnie Schwartz has received another letter from her daughter, Mrs. Marie Buckle of Cherry, Ill., formerly of Norfolk, stating that her return to Norfolk will be delayed for some time, owing to the fact that her son, Albert, has been involved in the court inquiry as to how the St. Paul mine, where over 200 miners lost their lives, caught fire. Albert, Mrs. Buckle states in her letter, was present when the hay accidentally caught fire from the oil lamp which was worn by a young boy miner at that time. The boy had been pushing a car of hay near the entrance of the mine, Mrs. Buckle says, when he inquired of a man where to place it. The man, she says, in a rough way pushed the boy toward the car, with the result that his cap, upon which dangled the small oil lamp, came in contact with the hay and a blaze immediately started. Albert, who was standing nearby, immediately made for the opening and, with the man who was probably the cause of the terrible accident, escaped to the top. The man, it is said, cannot be found and has not been seen at Cherry since the accident. The boy whose lamp started the fire was among the 200 whose bodies are still in the mine. Mrs. Buckle says the electric lights, which caused much talk, were seldom used in the mine, and has sent her mother one of the small oil lamps which is worn by the miners of the St. Paul mine.
Until she will be able to leave Cherry, Mrs. Buckle is one of the hard workers among the miners. In the big building which has been put up near the mine at Cherry she helps serve the miners their meals and in every possible way is aiding her unfortunate companions. Richard, her other son, who was in the mine at the time of the fire, has not as yet been brought to the surface.

Dr. J. H. Mackay, who represents the Red Cross society here, was busy distributing the Red Cross stamps among the hotels and business houses yesterday. At one place a book containing 100 stamps was sold one minute after Dr. Mackay had put them up for sale.
To show their appreciation of the faithful work of Rev. J. P. Mueller and Prof. August Steffen among the Christ German Lutherans, the congregation surprised them by installing electric lights in their houses. To Rev. Mr. Mueller the congregation presented $100 as a gift. Mr. Mueller, it is well known, had a streak of very hard luck recently, in the way of much illness in his family, one of his children having died a short time ago.

August Voegs sustained a broken leg as the result of a friendly scuffle with a few friends on Fourth street and Norfolk avenue last night. The men started to wrestle in a friendly way when suddenly Voegs slipped on the sidewalk, his companion falling on him heavily. Voegs' left leg was broken above the ankle.
The Commercial club directors, at their regular weekly meeting Tuesday afternoon, appointed a committee consisting of W. J. Stadelman, L. P. Pasewalk and C. J. Fleming to make arrangements for the club's annual meeting Friday, January 7, when all members are to be urged to attend. A fee will be a feature.

The proper position for the Red Cross stamp on letters should be immediately below or to the right of the return notice. It should not be placed beside the postage stamp, as it obscures the dating stamp of the post-office and confuses the mail clerks. This was the principal objection on the part of the German postoffice department which led to the exclusion of the stamp from the German mails.
The poor electric light service during the past week is to be made basis for a complaint at the next meeting of the city council, in support of the mayor's move to establish a municipal plant, if the plans of a Norfolk electric man are carried out. The trouble complained was the lack of lights down town Sunday night from 8 till 11, and last Friday night, when the down town portion of the city was in darkness. At the Oxnard hotel Sunday night supper was served by candle light.
An Angora cat valued at $25 will probably be the feature in a court case which is reported will soon be brought before a justice here. The cat had been shipped to Norfolk as a gift to a young lady. A hack driver met the feline at the depot and put it in his cab for safe keeping. Passengers came thick and fast and he was forced to ask one of his passengers to keep company with the cat. At the end of the journey he found the cat missing. His passenger had thrown it out of the window.
Farmers coming to Norfolk on these cold days are now sympathizing with the rural mail carrier, who makes long trips into the country with the thermometer registering about 18 below. In his little cooped up mail wagon there is no stove to warm his feet, and little is cared so long as he delivers the letters and the newspapers. "The rural mail carrier's job is no snap on these cold days," said a farmer recently. "I understand he has to carry his mail on Christmas day just the same as on any other day, and I for one expect to show my appreciation for his work by making him a little gift on that day. It's the easiest thing in the world for a farmer to give a carrier a sack of oats or something he has on his farm, something he would not miss, and make the man feel repaid for his work." This sentiment was approved by a number of people who heard the farmer make this remark, and it was the sense of those that this was the real Christmas spirit. At present the farmer does not have to pay a cent for his mail deliveries except building a box, which is a mere trifle. It is believed by many that the farmers will show their appreciation to these carriers on Christmas day when he makes his daily deliveries. This will not only make the carrier feel better, but help him take an interest in his tedious holiday work.

M'KAY KNOWN AT OKDALE.

Man Charged With Brunswick Murder Entitled to Fair Trial.
Oakdale Sentinel: Joe McKay is quite well known here. His father is W. J. McKay, who, with his family resided in Oakdale during the winter of 1896-97. Since the family removed to a farm near Brunswick, Joe has visited this city on several occasions. A year or so ago he married Wauneta Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Johnson, old residents of the Willow, and they have one child. Joe McKay is a man of powerful physique and has always been more or less of a bully, exercising but very little self control. The writer has known him for a number of years, and while there is scarcely an atom of his make-up that is to be admired, we never credited him to viciousness of such degree that would lead him to commit murder. However, he is entitled to a fair trial and if guilty should suffer the penalty imposed by law. The law presumes him innocent until proved guilty and until he has had a trial, circulation or credence should not be given to idle and unfounded rumors.

Scheme for Good Roads.

Lincoln, Dec. 22.—Secretary of State Junkin has suggested that the next legislature get busy for good roads. His idea is for a law to be enacted by which every county is permitted to make a levy or set aside a certain portion of the levy for road purposes for the construction of two roads, one running east and west and onesouth and north in every township in the state. He figures that under this plan every person will be living within three miles of a good road. Within a short time, he believes, such a plan would develop a state full of good roads and those who live off the county roads would themselves fix up the roads between their places and the county road.

LURTON, THE NEW JUSTICE

AN ESTIMATE OF THE JURIST APPOINTED BY TAFT.

JUST CONFIRMED BY SENATE

Succeeds Justice Peckham on the Supreme Bench of the United States. Tribute Paid to His Ability in Decisions on Monopoly Cases.

It is not often that a president of the United States is called upon to name a member of the supreme court. There are only nine justices in our highest tribunal, and they remain in office practically for life, although theoretically they may retire after seventy, provided they have served ten years. As a matter of fact few of them do retire. Three of the present members of the court are over seventy, Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Harlan and Brewer. All of them have served more than ten years, and hence they are eligible for retirement on full pay. But do they avail themselves of the opportunity? Not perceptibly. In this they only follow precedent, for voluntary retirement has been the exception in that court. Many members of it have served till over eighty. Very few have retired, except for ill health.
Justice Horace Harmon Lurton, the man nominated by President Taft to succeed the late Rufus W. Peckham, is sixty-five. He has been for sixteen years a United States circuit judge and for seven years prior to that time justice trust and the famous decision of Circuit Judge Sanborn dissolving the Standard Oil company. Just what the attitude of the new justice will be toward the government cases against the trusts is a matter that is causing much comment in Washington and throughout the country.

One of the arguments urged against his appointment was that he had decided an employer's liability case against labor, and he was further charged with corporation leanings. Against this view it is urged that nobody knows Judge Lurton's record and habits of thought better than President Taft. Not only so, but the only and original John Wesley Gaines, the former congressman from Tennessee, who used to take such keen delight in making the corporations jump sideways and turn double back hand springs, says that the allegation that Judge Lurton is a trust jurist is absolutely false. "I wouldn't support my brother if he was a trust owned man or judge," said Mr. Gaines, "and I know what I am talking about when I say that Judge Lurton is no one sided man in anything. His decisions on monopolistic cases are considered the greatest in existence in this country and have been sustained by the supreme court. Three of his decisions were cited the other day by Judge Sanborn in the Standard Oil case."

Supported by Democrats.

Judge Alton B. Parker, Democratic candidate for president in 1904, may not be as good anti-trust authority as Mr. Gaines, but from the fact that Parker was also urged for this vacancy on the supreme bench his tribute to his successful rival is not only graceful, but evidently sincere. Says Judge Parker:
"I know Judge Lurton both socially and professionally, and in my judgment one better equipped for service than that greatest of all courts, the supreme court of the United States, could not be found. The country is to be congratulated."

It is told of the new supreme court justice that at one time he had before him the case of a Tennessee bad man and gun fighter who was known to have several killings notched on his gun handle. Thinking to intimidate Lurton, the bad man, fully armed, entered the office of the judge and locked the door. Lurton looked the bad man out of countenance until he unlocked the door and slunk out of the room. I do not vouch for this yarn, but if it is true it shows that the Tennessee jurist either has plenty of nerve or a hypnotic eye.
While a soldier Lurton was twice taken prisoner, once at the surrender of Fort Donelson, after which he escaped and re-enlisted, and again as a member of Morgan's famous raid. This time he did not get away till the end of the war. He was born in 1844 in Kentucky, ran away from college to enter the army, was admitted to the bar in 1867 and entered practice at Clarksville, Tenn. In 1875 he was made chancellor, but resigned three years later to resume the practice of law. He was once a bank president and is trustee in one or two southern universities.

In a Coal Pit Seventy Years.

Joseph Walton of Darklands, Swadlinco, Burton, England, who recently retired to spend the evening of life in a house next to that in which he was born, has achieved the remarkable record of working full time in a coal pit when close on ninety years of age. He has worked as a miner for about seventy years. He remembers the time when colliers worked twelve hours a day for half a crown (2 cents), and was one of the first to join the British Miners' association. Walton was one of a family of seventeen and has two octogenarian brothers living.

NAME DEARMOND'S SUCCESSOR.

Missouri Democrats of Sixth District Meet at Butler.

Congressman DeArmond was burned to death in a fire which destroyed his home. He sacrificed his life in trying to save his little grandson who also perished in the fire.

CHILDREN HAVE THE TRACK

This Christmas Season Belongs to Them—Preparations at Elgin.

Elgin, Neb., Dec. 22.—Special to The News: Elgin is not dry, but frozen up. Some of the people are experiencing inconvenience in getting enough of the unadulterated ale of Father Adam for themselves and their beasts.
Rev. M. H. Wilson and wife of Parkville, Mo., are here to spend the holidays with the latter's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Wighton. Mr. Wilson is instructor in the department of philosophy in Parkville college.
Ed Leibel, John Manlin, Henry Koester, George Mooney, William Campbell and C. Cook are at Neligh attending the trial of Lee Wienn.
W. C. Campland and Ralph Whitmore are home from Lincoln, where they have been attending the school of agriculture, to spend the holidays with their parents and friends.
The Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday schools in town and the Methodist Sunday school east of town are busy preparing Christmas programs. At this season of the year the children have the right-of-way, for they are on the throne of the christian world. Christmas places childhood where it belongs—at the center of society. The most charming portrait that remains of Richard Owen, the great naturalist, represents him with his arms thrown about a little child and his strong full-browed head leaning against the curly head of a little child. Many of the photographs of Mr. Gladstone were taken with a little child by his side or in his arms. There is not a more touching and interesting picture of Napoleon that that familiar one which represents him seated on a sofa with a little child asleep on his lap. And the most beautiful and fascinating pen picture of the Christ is that in which he takes the little children in His arms and blesses them. Make this season of the year happy and joyous for the children, for there will come all too soon to them the hour of weariness, of unsuccessful endeavor, of disappointed hope, of baffled ambition, and when they will be heard repeating the familiar lines of Elizabeth Akers Allen: "Backward, flow backward, O tide of the years, I am so weary of toll and of tears, I will not recompense, tears all in vain! Take them, and give me my childhood again."

MADISON POSTMASTER RENAMED

Secor Hears That He Has Been Reappointed—Has Served Eight Years.
Madison, Neb., Dec. 22.—Special to The News: Postmaster Secor of Madison has received a telegram from Senator Norris Brown stating that he and Senator Burkett had joined in recommending him for reappointment as postmaster at Madison, and his name had been sent to the senate for confirmation.
Mr. Secor is serving his eighth year as postmaster and during this long tenure of office there has been no cause of complaint, and his reappointment will be generally approved by the patrons of the office.
Madison Business Changes.
Madison, Neb., Dec. 22.—Special to The News: A business change was made whereby Harry Hobbs leases the barber shop and comes into possession of the business of Bob Cato and the Hobbs and Cato shops will be consolidated. Mr. Cato will continue in the shop with Mr. Hobbs.
The pool hall business and fixtures owned by Frank Creely of Tekamah and managed by Joe Eplin was sold to E. A. Jones of Harlan, Ia., C. E. Crozier of Harlan, father-in-law of Mr. Jones, being in the city and transacting the business. Mr. Jones has had some experience in the pool hall business. It is understood that Mr. Eplin will remain for the time being and assist Mr. Jones and it is the wish of the people in general that he remain permanently, as he has conducted an orderly place and has strictly observed the ordinances.

Shock Kills the Father.

Neligh, Neb., Dec. 21.—Special to The News: J. S. Fields, for many years a resident of Oakdale and formerly county judge of Antelope county, dropped dead at Excelsior Springs, Mo., yesterday when he was told that his little son, Harry, had been shot and killed by the other brother, Sam, at the family home in Elm Creek, Neb. Judge Fields was very ill at Excelsior Springs and the mother was with him when the tragedy occurred Sunday noon at Elm Creek. News of the terrible accident was conveyed to the sick bed of Judge Fields yesterday morning and the shock ended his life. Mrs. W. B. Staples of Neligh, daughter of Judge Fields, left Sunday to attend the funeral of her brother at Elm Creek. With this fatal sequel to the tragedy, however, it is not known whether the dual funeral will be held there or in this county. It is rather thought the two bodies will be brought back to Oakdale for burial.
The news of the tragedies created a profound sensation in this community.
