Nelson of Clearwater was in Norfolk on business. Mr. Nelson had planned and advertised a stock sale for February 15, but the sale of that day killed the sale. F. O. Ross, a Northwestern employee, accidentally sprained his ankle at the Junction yards. The hook and ladder company will hold their regular meeting at the city hall Wednesday evening. B. W. Jonas of the postoffice force, who was taken quite ill Saturday, is recovering his usual health. The infant son of R. W. Rohrke, who has been suffering from pneumonia, is reported well on the way to recovery. The Norfolk Eagles will entertain their ladies in the club rooms this evening at a dinner. Hall's orchestra has been engaged for the event. A number of members of the Norfolk Country club made a visit to the club grounds Tuesday afternoon for the first game of golf this season, if the links permitted. Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Mayer will entertain the West Side Whist club Thursday evening. W. H. Powers has rented the Jack Koenigstein cottage at the corner of Koenigstein avenue and Seventh street. A News want ad found John Phinney's lost buggy. It had been taken into the country by unknown persons. It was found near the McGinnis farm, south of the city. Miss Louise Steffen, teacher at the Christ Lutheran school, is suffering from an attack of appendicitis. Her physician has not yet decided whether or not an operation will be necessary. Mr. Harvey, formerly a resident of Knox county near Verdigris, but for some time past living in Chicago, was in Norfolk Tuesday looking for a dwelling. He has decided to live here. Rev. C. W. Ray, who takes charge of a tourist party which will tour Europe April 1, reports that twelve people have already been booked for his party, among whom there are a number of prominent Nebraskans. Leo Root, one of the Norfolk fighters who is to go four rounds with Harry Lewis, the Texas fighter, on the night of March 10, says he has been doing some hard training and believes he is going to get a decision over the Texan. Pengoe, a salesman of the Bennett Piano company who broke his left leg at Chadron a month ago while assisting in moving a piano, will have to undergo a second operation here. An X-ray photograph was taken of the leg and it was found that the bones are not knitted and will have to be wired together. The town of Hartington, Neb., has completed plans for the paving of the business section of their city. How much paving will be done at Hartington this spring is not yet known, but citizens of that town are said to have decided to pave at least one block of their Main street and add more to the improvements later on. Street Commissioner Uecker has had a force of men busily engaged endeavoring to keep the mud off the crossings on Main street. Their work, however, seemed useless, owing to the fact that the mud covered the crossings from four to six inches deep as fast as they could clean it off. The gutters, which have been filled with ice for some time, are being cleaned out by the street commissioner's force. A dog belonging to J. S. Mathewson is alleged to have stolen a choice cut of steak which W. F. Hall left hanging on his back porch ready to be cooked for supper last evening. Mr. Hall reports that he has no objection to Mr. Mathewson training his dog to chase golf balls, but he does object to having a dog trained to climb a neighbor's porch and get away with 75-cent cuts of meat while the market is at its present height. General Organizer Evans of the Nebraska Live Stock Owners Protective association, reports the organization of a branch of that organization at Creston, Neb. The following officers were elected: Frank Simonton, president; R. H. Wurdeman, vice president; Bert Shaw, captain; Ferd Steiner, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Evans went to Wausa and Bloomfield, where he will organize other branches of the association. J. C. Nelson, superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph company, has sent circular letters to the various offices in his division stating that any telephone subscriber is privileged to telephone messages to the Western Union offices to be telegraphed and have the charges on the message collected monthly. It is believed here that this is the first move of the great telephone and telegraph merger to consolidate their services. A thief last night broke into the Kauffman bowling alleys and stole $10 worth of bonbons and smoking tobacco. An entrance was gained by breaking through a side window. A light was burning in the front part of the place, but this had no tendency to frighten the thief, who calmly ransacked the candy and tobacco cases. E. A. Marquardt, who was passing the place, saw the thief busily at work, but, believing it one of Mr. Kauffman's employes, thought nothing further of the matter. J. C. Townley, head milk of the Enterprise, Kan., four miles, is in the city visiting with his son, Elmer Townley, local manager of the Western Union telegraph office. Mr. Townley, during his stay here, visited the state hospital for insane and the sugar factory buildings. Mr. Townley believes the offer the Norfolk Industrial company is making to give the buildings and ten acres of land free to anyone employing fifty men the year around in any kind of business for twenty-five years is a good one. He believes this offer should be taken by some manufacturing concern. Order of Hearing On petition for appointment of administrator or administratrix. The state of Nebraska, Madison county, ss.
