Little Boy Badly Hurt. Little 5-year-old John Moulton, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Moulton, 1403 Norfolk avenue, who was injured Friday night by house moving apparatus, was operated on by Doctors Salter and Holden at noon Saturday, after a consultation between the physicians, who decided that the operation was necessary to save the boy's life.

It was at first believed the boy would be taken to Fremont for the operation. The accident to the boy has not been thoroughly investigated by Mr. Moulton, who says that as near as he can learn, the horses were being detached from the moving apparatus when a collar or something tense was suddenly released, striking the boy on the head. The tongue, says Mr. Moulton, may have struck the boy also.

The accident happened about 6 o'clock in the evening when the horses which were used in moving a house, were unhitched. A collar on one of the horses, Mrs. Moulton says, struck her little son on the head, rendering him unconscious.

About twenty boys, says Mrs. Moulton, were playing around the old house which at 6 o'clock had reached Twelfth street and Madison avenue. When the horses were detached from their crane, a collar struck little George, who was standing at one side, throwing him some distance. He was rendered unconscious, and carried into a nearby residence and the physician called. An examination showed the skull badly fractured and that the brain was exposed.

Mr. Moulton is a prominent traveling salesman.

Twelve True Bills Are Returned. Madison, Neb., March 25.—Special to The News: Twelve indictments were returned by the Madison county grand jury, which ended its work and adjourned at 8 o'clock last night.

Sheriff Smith has not yet served any of the warrants, so that it was impossible to learn authoritatively who are the persons indicted. Under the law, this information is secret until the sheriff has served the warrants.

It is known, however, that some of the prisoners now in jail have been indicted, as well as some Norfolk people. Indictments are said to have been returned against Mrs. Stehr, against Slavlin, the self-confessed Meadow Grove bank robber, and against the thief who stole silk from the Killian store.

It is believed Norfolk resortkeepers have been indicted, and that an indictment has been found in connection with the "blind pig" at Norfolk.

The grand jury recommended that the county jail be wired for electric lights, that a bathroom be installed and that an addition be built to the jail.

The grand jury found the jail in sanitary condition and the food good. There is danger in case of fire, because of only one exit.

The Oxnard hotel in Norfolk was the only hotel coming under the grand jury's jurisdiction. It was found that fire escapes lead from guest rooms instead of from hallways and that signs pointing to escapes are insufficiently lighted as are corridors, and there are no alarm bells in upstairs hallways, to arouse guests in case of fire. These improvements are recommended.

The Bullet Taken Out. Josef Kohout, the Rushville Bohemian farmer who was held up and shot by one of two bandits last Tuesday night, was operated on at Omaha yesterday and the bullet which pierced his neck from the left side was found near his chin. From Omaha comes the report that Kohout is recovering.

In the meantime Mrs. Katerin Kohout has let it be known that she is not Kohout's sister, but is the wife of Kohout's cousin, who possesses the same name.

Her husband, she says, is living in Prague, Bohemia, with her son who is but 14 years old. She came to the United States about eight months ago and her husband promised to follow her if she found she liked it here. Only recently, however, she received a letter from her husband, who she says is a habitual drunkard, and he has refused to come here for fear he would be unable to secure enough whiskey.

Plenty to Drink Here. "I have written him telling him that there is plenty of whiskey in America and that if he would come here and work he would get plenty to drink," says Mrs. Kohout.

In explaining why she accompanied her cousin in the emigrant railroad car, she says she consented because Kohout promised her $300 at the end of the journey and that would have been a good start for her and her husband.

"When I was still at Rushville, I had decided to go to Oregon on a passenger train, but Kohout told me to go in his car because it would not be so lonesome and then he said it would be better in case something happened to him. His wife begged me not to accompany him that way, but he insisted, so we told the people I was Kohout's sister, because I had the same name, and Kohout made me hide among the chickens and other things in the corner of the car, where they found me Tuesday night. It was awfully hard and I was very tired. When Kohout comes back I will travel the remainder of the way by passenger train."

Mrs. Kohout is now at the Dan Blue residence at the request of Mrs. Blue, who speaks Bohemian.

Historic Beauties. The famous beauties of the world are wise when they leave no portraits of themselves. Take Marguerite de Valois. She was an immoral, dishonorable, criminal, scheming, unscrupulous villainess, but she was dowered with such charm that there was not a jailer or an enemy she could not charm when she tried. No, nor a woman—not even the wives of her lovers. Men came from every country, taking year long journeys, only to see her and went away, after a little glimpse, saying they had "seen loveliness itself." Then one sees her portraits. Too much forehead, not enough eyebrow, a straight nose and expressive mouth (in one picture a lovely mouth)—and that is all. Mary, queen of Scots, was very lovely—three kingdoms battled because of her beauty—and yet her pictures leave one cold. Fouché said her portrait showed every trait of the lowest criminal type. That was before he knew whose picture he criticized.—London Truth.

Resurrects Judiciary Bills. Lincoln, March 24.—The Ollis stock yards bill was ordered engrossed for third reading by the house and will be passed unless the sentiment of the house changes before it is disposed of.

The governor put the responsibility for stock yards legislation upon the house by vetoing the Taylor-Dolezal bill. The house immediately set the Ollis bill as special order for the afternoon session, although committee had recommended for preparation and a brief struggle resulted in victory for the Ollis organization.

Taylor and others tried to change it and cut out some of the more restrictive features, but the efforts were without avail.

Governor Aldrich submitted his reasons for not signing the Taylor bill and the republican members stood solidly behind him on them, when it came to a vote. The governor pointed out that the bill placed the stockyards under the control of the state railway commission, whereas the commission was created to control common carriers. He said that the Taylor bill most certainly would be knocked out by the courts.

The house rescued the two non-partisan judiciary bills from the scrap heap of indefinite postponement, where it had thrown them. It placed the bills back on the general file.

The senate passed the following bills: S. F. 216, providing that two-story buildings shall have fire escapes; S. These statements were filed with the state department to controvert the statement of a Mexican official at Guadalupe that he considered Ancon, De Guadalupe, Mexican territory.

"I will never stop fighting as long as Diaz is in power, or until we are granted free and unimpeded suffrage."

Madero, the provisional president, issued through his representative here, Dr. Vasquez Gomez.

The decree sets forth that the suspension of constitutional guarantees, as affecting the safety of human life, is not lawful according to article 19 of the Mexican constitution which provides for the suspension of constitutional guarantees in all cases except those in which human life is at stake.

The decree contends that "no law or authority in Mexico can suspend the constitutional decrees which assure
