Life Kings on Mountains. An extraordinary example of the way in which a mountain may afford on a small scale an image of the earth's climates, arranged in successively higher circles, has been found in the San Francisco peaks. These ancient volcanoes rise out of a plateau having a mean elevation of 7,000 feet above sea level.

The peaks are encircled with zones of vegetation which run almost like contour lines around them. Between 6,500 and 8,500 feet the yellow pine is the dominant tree. From 8,500 to 10,300 feet the Douglas fir, the silver fir, the cork fir and the aspen share the available ground.

Between 10,300 and 11,500 feet the Engelmann spruce and the foxtail pine take possession and ascend to the tree limit—Scientific American.

INSPECTOR OF SHEETS.

Kansas Has an Official to Look Over Hotel Bedclothing. Kansas now has an official inspector of bedclothes. He is John Kleinhaus, who has been directed by the state board of health to see that Kansas hotel patrons get what the law says they are entitled to when they pay their money. This includes sheets ninety-two inches long, free from germs.

Kleinhaus has already made his first presentation under the law. A hotel man at God's was found to be using short sheets. He was fined $25. State chemists are busy examining bed clothes gathered from Kansas hotels for microbes, bacteria and dust. The new law provides that all bed linen must be clean.

His Story of the Accident. Winslow, Neb., Sept. 30.—Editor News: I notice in your paper of Sept. 25 that J. S. Butterfield puts the blame on the car he men in his accident. I am the fellow that drove the other car. He also states that he was running very slow.

I met Mr. Butterfield on a little hill east of Osmond. He was coming down the hill at the rate of not less than twenty-five miles an hour. The road was a little deep and I could see that it would be hard for Mr. Butterfield to turn so I turned out and gave him the full road. If I hadn't done so we would have had a collision, as Mr. Butterfield's car only got the wheels out of the road when it went over. It looked to me as if Mr. Butterfield was a new driver or else he used very poor judgment in trying to turn out, at the speed he was going. He can't blame anyone but himself as he had the whole road to himself. I have four witnesses who saw it. So I want you to correct this as I don't want the blame.

The Huse-Harris Wedding. Reno (Nev.) Bulletin, Sept. 21: A small but unusually beautiful wedding was solemnized at the Harris home on North Virginia street last evening, when Miss Lucy Newbold Harris became the bride of Mr. Eugene Franklin Huse, of Norfolk, Neb., in the presence of about forty immediate friends and relatives.

The rooms of the Harris home were artistically hung with garlands of feathery asparagus ferns and hundreds of asters, while here and there clusters of huckleberry foliage added the brightness of their shining greenness to the scene.

The spacious parlor was chosen for the ceremony room, one corner being transferred into a fairy bower above which were suspended colonial baskets filled with ferns and white asters and tied with streamers of white tulle, in front of which were two small white satin pillows upon which the bridal couple knelt to take their vows.

The fireplace and mantle was a mass of greenery and flowers with vases of the same flowers scattered here and there about the room.

The same color scheme was carried out in the dining room and made the scene one of unusual beauty and simplicity. At the conclusion of the ceremony a wedding supper was served at tete-tete tables.

The bride's table was especially artistic, in the center of which was a large colonial basket of white asters and ferns tied with a true lover's knot of tulle over which was cast a soft light from the green shaded candles. Beautiful china lace doilies adorned the tables and dainty hand-painted place cards appropriate to the occasion were laid at each cover.

Just at 8:20 the strains of the Lochengrin bridal march, played by Miss Jessie Levy, heralded the bridal party.

The bride looked a vision of loveliness, her face and tulle veil enveloping her like a cloud.

The top of the veil was shirred into a cap which was edged with orange blossoms. The gown of white satin, veiled with white crystal dotted net and trimmed with white beaded fringe and hand embroidery was made on train and was artistically draped to become the petite figure of the bride.

Her sister, Miss Frances Harris, who was the maid of honor, was gowned in exquisite light blue crepe de chine trimmed with gurgule lace.

Mr. Huse was attended by James Delaney of Norfolk, and both wore the customary evening dress.

The bride was given away by her father, E. C. Harris. The ceremony was performed according to the rites of the Church of England, the words of the impressive service being pronounced by the Rev. Samuel Uns-worth.

Miss Allene Gulling softly rendered in her sweetest tones the beautiful solo, "I Hear You Calling Me."

Never before was a girl more favored, her gifts being a collection of costly linens of which any bride might feel proud.

Mrs. Huse is the older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Harris and possessed of a disposition of unusual sweetness which has won for her innumerable friends during her residence in this city. She is a graduate of a fashionable young ladies' school in New York and also attended the University of Nevada, where she became a member of the Delta Rho sorority. She is a leading figure in all social gatherings and will be greatly missed by all who know her, being a girl of unusual charm and captivating personality as well as a talented musician.

Mr. Huse is associated with his father in the Huse Publishing company of Norfolk, Neb., and is a man of sterling qualities.

Many beautiful gowns were worn, notably those of the bride's and groom's mothers. Mrs. Harris was gowned in a lavender-embroidered chiffon trimmed with rose point. Mrs. Huse wore a grey silk poplin trimmed with lavender pasmenterie.

Many telegrams were read and toasts given to the future happiness of the bride and groom during the wedding supper. Seated at the bride's table were Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Huse, Miss Frances Harris, James Delaney, Miss Jess Levy, Harry Wise, Mr. Rayne, Miss Allene Gulling.

Norfolk is getting a little touch of metropolitan life with the night work on the part of workmen who are constructing the Durland sisters' building and the addition to the Cotton block. These two new buildings, which will be added to the Killian

Who broke the telephone in Judge Easley's courtroom Friday night? The judge declares it a mystery. The mouthpiece of the telephone was shattered and it was otherwise damaged. Norfolk Team Now Disbanded. The Norfolk team is now disbanded. After last Sunday afternoon's game with Creighton the players made it known that the season of the national game in this city had come to a close. The management of the team in extending hearty thanks for the great support from the Norfolk fans, declare the season was one of the best ever experienced in this city, and also made it known that it is not likely that Norfolk will go into the State league next year. The players as a whole have played the game this year for all the sport that it held and at no time was the question of money involved. While home players have received small compensation for their services on the team, they declare themselves repaid by the good rooting of the Norfolk fans.

W. J. Stafford, the manager of the team, will probably resign his position because of other work next year. In taking this action Mr. Stafford declares that although he is well satisfied with the support of the business men, he finds it almost impossible to take care of the duties as baseball manager and attend to his other duties.

C. J. Hulac has made a good secretary and has worked wonders in securing first class games for the Norfolk fans.

Treasurer P. L. Zuelow, like the other officials of the team, has devoted much energy to the team and with the co-operation of the players and other officials he has kept the team's finances in a substantial condition.

There has been very little demand from the team upon business men for support this year and this fact has been recognized by business men who have reciprocated with offers to aid financially at any time the team required such aid.

Taking it as a whole, Norfolk has seen good games and partly for this reason the "league" talk has dwindled down to a fast "home-made" team next year.

Much can be said of the good work of the Norfolk players and in checking the players' work on the officials score book it has been shown that each man has featured in many plays during fast games.

Denton, who was the star pitcher in the early part of the season, has not pitched for a month, but he is hailed as a "coming twirler."

Keleher, like Denton, a high school boy, made good in the pitcher's box in the early part of the season and his work in the field and on short was well recognized as good baseball. Keleher was known for a time as a "base on balls artist." His ability to slap the home plate while stooping low had some effect on the pitcher and also the umpire.

J. J. Miller, the Norfolk fireman who has played almost every position on the team, at odd times, is considered a good all round player. Often he has been utilized on first, catch or centerfield.

Some Spectacular Players. In lining up the stars, Oscar Krahn, popularly known as "Shorty," can be numbered as one of the leaders. His sensational hits and long drives have often brought Norfolk out of a tight hole and some of his spectacular catches of difficult flies and liners on short or in the field have brought him admiration from the fans. Shorty sprained his ankle two weeks ago in a game with Burke. He, with ex-Capt. Glissman, are recorded as the heaviest hitters on the team, with Krahn having the shade better of it for long drives.

C. G. Glissman, who retired as captain in favor of Capt. Hoffman, left the team for a few weeks and made good with teams in the surrounding towns. He came back, however, before the season was over and has been doing good work on first, or in centerfield. His timely hits have helped the score board on Norfolk's end.

Millard South, the third base hero for Norfolk, comes in for much glory. His spectacular jumps for fast balls have proved a mystery to the opponents and the pickups from the ground around third base were included in many of the features of the season. South often stepped up to the slab and drove out two and three-baggers in tight pinches.

Dr. John Dudgeon is credited with features on second base, according to the official score, during the early part of the season. The doctor's average slackened somewhat during the middle of the season, but this average has been advanced by some of the many good plays he has made recently. Dudgeon's catches from the catcher have often caught the man coming from first. Dudgeon has been in the game like other home players—for the real sport.

Donald Mapes, another high school boy now in college, looked to the players as a corner, but his trophies were of too short duration to show just what he could do. His work on third and some sensational catches in the outfield are recorded as features for Norfolk.

Capt. Hoffman will go back to the freight depot. Capt. Hoffman in his official capacity injected effective work in the team. His system of signaling to his men behind the batter has done wonders. His extraordinarily good work in the catcher's box, his throws to first, second and third, and his batting average are all jotted down as features of the season.

Anton Wilde is written down as having pitched the first ball of the season against Humphrey. The game was lost but Wilde's game was a good one. He played a good game in the outfield during his short stay with the team.

Herman Schelley also made a short stay with Norfolk in the early part of the season and made good in the outfield.

In lining up the only three paid players on the team, W. E. Fox, the spibal artist who played with Norfolk such a short time, is given honors. He will come back next year after a rest on his father's ranch near Stockton. Cal. Fox pitched for the York State league team half of this season.

Roy Boyce can be called a Norfolk boy, but because of the small payments he received for each game, he has been put in the "paid class" of the team. Boyce's twirling, his effective work on first and his loyalty to his home team have made him a favorite here.

A Wagner, brought here from Sioux City, but who has been making Norfolk his home, has made many good plays in left field. His sensational catches have been features. Wagner was light with the bat for a few games, but recently "came back."

The team won thirty-one games out of forty-five played.

Dr. Dishong Is Appointed. Dr. G. W. Dishong, assistant superintendent of the Norfolk insane hospital, has been appointed to succeed the late Dr. J. T. Hay as superintendent of the Lincoln insane asylum, beginning Jan. 1. Dr. Dishong's successor has not been named.

The envelopes bear a local postmark. Questions bearing on acts of President Taft while in office are included in the letters with requests that he be asked to answer them. Congressman Norris, insurgent leader, wrote that he would not accompany the Taft train.

Bryan Coming Into Third. Lincoln, Sept. 30.—Nearly all Mr. Bryan's fourteen days of speech-making will be in the Third congressional district, in behalf of Dan Stephens. He will speak in Norfolk. Mr. Bryan may join in welcoming President Taft Monday.

Republicans Nominate Monday. Third Nebraska congressional district republicans held county mass meetings Saturday to select delegates to the Fremont convention Monday at 2:30, which nominates a congressman.

BREAK IN GERMAN MARKET. One Bank Suspends Payment, Owing Depositors $750,000. Berlin, Sept. 30.—There was heavy break in the market. The Gottinger bank suspended. The directors expressed the belief that the bank will be able to pay its depositors the $750,000 due them.

They say the suspension was due to the difficult position of the money market. The bank's capital is $599,000.

Dr. W. H. Pilger a Married Man. Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Pilger, who were married early last spring, have made their "at home announcement." Dr. and Mrs. Pilger have gone to house-keeping in the bride's parents home, the A. J. Wilkins residence at 215 South Eleventh street. The bride was formerly Miss Bertha Wilkins.

Madison County Republicans Meet. Madison county republicans, meeting at the Norfolk city hall at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, selected the following delegates to the Fremont congressional convention, which is called for Monday afternoon at 3:30: E. H. Gerhart, George H. Gutru, S. R. McFarland, T. E. Alderson, W. P. Logan, C. P. Parish, T. C. McDonald, Herman Hogrefe, Howard Miller, W. H. Field, H. E. Mason, George N. Beels, W. R. Martin and J. S. McClary.

Burt Mapes was chairman, S. C. Blackman secretary of the meeting.
