ship of New Fleet, Composed of Ten First Class Battleships and Several Vessels of the Cruiser Type. Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight, U. S. N., who is to be the first commander in chief of the United States reserve Atlantic fleet which is about to be or ganized and which is to be composed of about ten first class battleships and several vessels of the cruiser type, is one of the highest ordnance authorities in the navy and has been on duty as president of the special board on naval ordnance in Washington. Admiral Knight was court martialed last spring on two separate occasions on the charge of culpable negligence in connection with the sinking of the old monitor Puritan at Hampton Roads, despite its lack of practice and exfollowing the test of a high explosive, in November, 1940. It was alleged a score of 47 to 39. that the water tight compartment on the Puritan and the bulkheads had not been properly inspected before the test and that for that reason the ship was unable to withstand the shock.

Admiral Knight was tried by seven dmirals, the president of the court heing the late Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans. Lieutenant Commander Ridey McLean was the judge advocate in charge of the government's case, The court unanimously acquitted Admiral Knight, and the findings were sent to Secretary Meyer, who disapproved them and directed a reconsideration of the charges. The court thereupon for a second time rendered a verdict acquiiting the accused officer, and Secretary Meyer for a secoud time disproved the findings, but ordered the officer back to duty as head of the special ordnance board. The announcement that Admiral Knight is now to have the command of the second greatest of American fleets is taken as an indication that he is again within the favor of the secretary of the navy. Mrs. Knight, the admiral's wife, was ill during his court mar-Padgett, the chairman of the house committee on naval affairs.

the latest "styles" in garments for the night in the open and in little accesories for the comfort of the sleeper.

Of first importance is the sleeping garment proper. While some devotees of the fad go in for sleeping bags and wear pajamas and sweaters, a one plece suit of arctic warmth appeals to the majorify.

The semiprincess gown closed at the left front is very fashionable. This one is especially adapted to the combination of materials so much liked this season. JUDIC CHOLLET.
