SPRING MILLINERY

For this Season on Friday and Saturday, MARCH 24-25,

When we will show many new and practical ideas, as well as the extremes of extremes in copies of the latest Parisian creations.

Inskeep's Millinery.

The Weather.

Conditions of the weather as recorded for the 24 hours ending at 8 a. m. today:

Table with 2 columns: Weather condition and value. Includes Maximum temperature (12), Minimum temperature (2), Average (7), Snowfall, inches (0), Total snowfall, inches (0), Precipitation (0.2), Total precipitation for month (.46).

Forecast for Nebraska: Generally fair tonight and Friday. Warmer to-night. Warmer extreme east portion Friday.

THURSDAY TOPICS.

A few days of sunshine would greatly benefit the roads.

The city election and the site of the new postoffice are town topics of interest.

A party of friends enjoyed whist last evening at the home of George Davenport.

The dance at Mast hall this evening promises to be a very pleasant social event.

Protection lodge No. 101, D. of H., will hold its regular session tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

There will be a meeting of the Business Men's association at the city hall Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

A contemporary suggests that unless the weather is less frigid, Easter hats should be trimmed with fur.

The district court at Madison is likely to be held for some weeks longer before the business is all completed.

The executive committee of the Y. M. C. E. will meet this evening at the home of the president, Miss Jessie Bridge.

Tomorrow a class of eleven will be examined at St. Paul's Lutheran church for confirmation, Sunday. Thirty-five are to be confirmed at Christ's Lutheran church.

In the general appropriation bill as passed by the house at Lincoln the Norfolk asylum is allowed an increase of $2,000 in the board and clothing department and small increases in several other funds.

Postoffice Inspector A. O. Swift of Nebraska City, well known in Norfolk, left for Washington last evening in response to a telegram assigning him to special work in Cuba. He will be absent for several months.

The jury cases before the district court at Madison were finished last night. The case of Nightingale versus Kendrick resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff. The equity cases are now being disposed of by Judge Allen as fast as they are ready.

Signs of spring multiply. The geese have gone north, ducks are plenty, robins are at the door. Easter hats are blooming in the millinery stores, pink and blue shirt waists in the dry goods stores, while clothiers are putting on their shelves light weight suits and jaunty looking neckties in many colors.

The sun has shown brightly this afternoon and there are indications that spring may appear at any moment. This has been true several times this month and high hopes have been raised only to be blasted by a sudden shifting of the wind into the north and the falling of the mercury from 10 to 20 degrees inside of a few hours. However "hope springs eternal in the human breast" and so spring is coming, despite all discouragements. A robin was heard with its cheery notes of song this morning and robins know a thing or two. The snow is rapidly disappearing and the sky has that mellow, far away look that betokens warmth and sunshine.

Dispatches from Washington state that the supervising architect has sent out advertisements inviting offers of sites for the new public buildings at Blair and Norfolk. These bids will be opened April 15th. This means that the selection of the site for the post-office building, the erection of which is now assured within the next few years, will be made very soon. It is a matter of live inquiry as to what location will be decided upon by the government. There are several excellent corners which will not doubt be offered. The convenience of the public is likely to figure in the matter as the most important factor. Those who have property to sell for this purpose will now name their price and put in their bids. It will not be long before the place where Norfolk will do its mail business in the years to come, will be fully known.

The lateness of the season makes it certain that when spring does actually conclude to remove to this latitude, farmers will have a very busy time. There is already an active demand for extra help. Meantime these days of waiting are being used in fixing up and repairing everything usable in and about the farm. It is a time of getting ready and every moment is crowded with caring for and seeing to the odds and ends which need attention. Farming, like everything else that men do, is a business, and the success attained depends upon timely care of the numberless details there are to provide for. This month of March is by no means an idle one. There are the plows to be sharpened; the harness overlooked, mended and oiled; the windmills and tanks put in thorough order before the windy days of later spring come; the fruit trees are to be selected and ordered; if more horses are needed they are to be provided; the fences, if there are any, are to be repaired; the barns and farm buildings cleaned and any needed improvements made; the machinery overhauled and good seed selected and cleaned. All this and much more. Is it any wonder that farmers are busy people?

The Cattle Ranges.

Mark M. Coad has just returned from the Wyoming stock ranges and reports the stock condition very gloomy. Mr. Coad says, "the country has not been free from snow since last November, the whole northwestern and southwest range having been covered with a sheet of snow and no thaw until March 5, so the stock that has run on the range during the winter and not fed and cared for are very thin."

"I have wintered stock on the range since '61 and I consider this a harder winter than the winter of '69-80, when stockmen experienced the big die-off. The die-off may not be as heavy yet as in former years, but the stock have been weakened from want of feed and water, and the heaviest losses will probably come in March and April when the weather gets soft and warm."

"Hay has risen in price from $4 to $10 and $12 per ton and can't be bought even at those figures, while a good many are shipping in hay to the stock that are within convenient distance from the railroad lines."

"Animals who have been starved on a snowy range all winter get to a condition of poverty where hay will not save them. If there is any grass beef this summer it will be very late, except what comes from the hay fed cattle, and parties starting in now to feed for late summer beef will in my opinion, strike a good mark."

"The losses this winter will thoroughly prove the necessity of providing feed and shelter for stock during the winter."—Fremont Herald

That the mills of the law grind slow, has been amply exemplified the past past week or so. So far only two cases have been disposed of by the jury and the third is now on trial, probably ending tomorrow.
