It is surprising what affiliation with the republican party will do for a man. Even Peffer's whiskers are no longer the subject of comment.

A prominent confectioner of New York has just given $2,000 to Syracuse university and now the young ladies attending there think he's "awfully sweet."

Now that the war news is languishing and the sweet girl graduates have flitted from the scene of action, we may look for the annual appearance of the sea serpent.

With all the good advice heeded, which has been given by the young men and young women in their commencement addresses, the republic certainly ought to be safe until the next class graduates.

Channey M. Depow predicts that there will be another tremendous campaign in 1900, that it will be fought out, as that of 1896 was, between McKinley and Bryan, and that McKinley will triumph by large majorities.

It is easy to fulminate against the trusts, but it is quite another thing to devise ways and means to squelch them. It is the latter that the country is waiting to see done. Ranting is cheap and noisy. Statesmanship may be more deliberate, but it is worth more when demonstrated.

Not the man who complains of existing conditions, but the one who, seeing present defects, goes bravely and courageously to work to correct and remedy them--this is the man whom his countrymen will delight to honor. Constructive ability is what the world wants most. America actually suffers from a plethora of banquet orators, but the man who does something--who shows a way out of trouble that is practical--is never too numerous and will always have a welcome.

The year 1900 is approaching. The republicans of Nebraska have it in their power this year, by placing in nomination able and irreproachable men on the state ticket, to make their influence potential in national politics. The people of this state are disposed to give their support to a party that represents achievement and progress. They know that "fusionism" has been a conglomeration of egregious errors, stupid incompetency and mistaken policies. Mr. Bryan's predictions of general bankruptcy in case of the triumph of the gold standard have proven utterly false in face of the most prosperous times now existing that Nebraska ever knew. Governor Poynter's attitude toward the prosecution of the war has been such a direct slap at the heroism of the Nebraskans fighting in the Philippines that he has lost the support of many patriotic men. The revelations of populist incompetence at Lincoln have shown the hollowness of their professions. The nomination of strong, clean men, followed by an earnest canvass, will mean for the republicans of Nebraska a handsome majority this year and electoral votes for McKinley next year.

Miss Mary Lund of Battle Creek is visiting her uncles, Will and John Beck.

Miss Mary Clarke and Goldie Shriver have gone to Fremont to visit friends and relatives.

Mr. Viele and daughter Francis have been confined to the house this week with tonsillitis.

Mrs. A. Shriver has gone to Hot Springs, S. D., for her health. She expects to return in about a week.

Mr. Fred Linerode is confined to his bed with quinsy and Mr. Daugherty is acting as yard master while he is sick.

Mrs. C. J. Chapman, Effie Ball and Eva Roland made up a party to Buffalo Gap last night to visit Mr. and Mrs. Bond. They expect to return Saturday noon.

E. E. Adams gave a stereopticon entertainment at Railway hall last Saturday evening, which was a very pleasing success, greatly enjoyed by all present. Another was to have been given next Sunday at the Second Congregational church, but has been postponed for two weeks.

Miss Maud Dingman had an operation performed on her little toe yesterday. She had been bothered with it for about two years and when the doctors cut it yesterday they found a piece of bone growing straight out from her toe. She suffered a good deal of pain the first night but is resting easier now.

PROSPERITY HAS RETURNED

The Breaking Plow is Again at Work in the Western Part of the State--Observations and Deductions of a Trip.

Mayor Simpson is of a very observing turn of mind and when he goes away from home he usually sees about all there is to be seen. Last week he made a business trip to Kearney, and while waiting for the train at Columbus he strolled around the town and noted that that city is growing and improving nicely, many substantial new residences being built at the present time. All the way to Kearney the crops are looking fine, with the exception of the few fields of winter wheat which were killed out by the severe cold winter. He describes the acreage of corn all along the route as just simply immense.

But of all the signs of returning prosperity to be seen on every hand, the most significant is in the western part of the state, where for the first time in a number of years the breaking plow is again seen trudging over hill and through valley. At Kearney and neighboring towns visited the mayor found the bankers complaining because their vaults were stored with money while there were no borrowers. The farmers in that section generally have their debts paid, and having learned a lesson from the experiences of the years following 1894, persistently refuse to borrow money or to go into any sort of a venture unless they have the cash in advance to do it with, which many of them have.

Kearney is a city of magnificent distances, with substantial business houses and beautiful homes. Although badly affected by the calamities which swept over the western part of the state a few years ago she is now rapidly recovering and will in a short time be ready to take the place in the column of prosperity that her promoters intended she should. Kearney has two advantages at least that it is feared the mayor rather envied. One is the opera house, which he says is fit for a city of 100,000 inhabitants. The other is the system of brick gutters with stone borders which prevails throughout the business portions of the city. These gutters are always clean and slightly and take care of water quickly after a rain fall, without the slightest wash of the streets. The mayor would like to see such a system adopted in Norfolk.

CORPORATION FORMED.

The Yankton, Norfolk and Southern Railroad.

ARTICLES DRAWN YESTERDAY.

Norfolk Designated as the Principal Place of Business--Jim Hill Also Has His Eyes on Norfolk, Which Seems to be the Center of Attraction, According to a Report from Sioux City.

During the afternoon yesterday, Judge Barnes drew up articles of incorporation for Messrs. Graham and Meckling, the promoters of the Yankton railroad who arrived in the city in the morning. The name of the Yankton, Norfolk and Southern railroad was given to the projected line, and the articles of incorporation were made broad enough to allow the construction of a road from this place to Omaha and also to Kearney. Norfolk was made the principal place of business, and here the headquarters will be located when the road is completed. The capital stock was fixed at $1,800,000 and the incorporators are J. S. Meckling of Chicago, W. W. Graham of Norfolk, Ohio, two gentlemen of Cincinnati and three of Yankton. Messrs. Meckling and Graham talk as though they mean business, and all with whom they came in contact became impressed with the idea that they are sincere in their efforts to revive and complete the road.

And Jim Hill Too.

The Sioux City Journal of this morning contains the following railroad news, which particularly interests this section just at this time: "The first hint of what will be done with the Pacific Short Line received in Sioux City came yesterday to a railroad official from an inside source of information at St. Paul. It seems to be settled that the road will become a part of the Great Northern system, and that President Hill contemplates using a part of the road for a connecting link with the Union Pacific at Norfolk.

"It may be stated, without reservation, I think," said the official, "that J. Kennedy Tod & Co. already have arranged for the transfer of the Short Line to the Great Northern. Mr. Hill also will absorb the Sioux City and Northern. He will make a connection with the Union Pacific by constructing a little piece of road, probably from Randolph, on the Short Line, to Norfolk. This will give Sioux City two connections with the Union Pacific, and would be a good thing for city, because even if the contract which the Union Pacific has just made with the Northwestern to run its trains over the Omaha into Sioux City should be abrogated, we still would have a Union Pacific connection.

"A study of the changed situation brought about by the passing of the Pacific Short Line into the hands of a powerful railroad corporation may supply for the running into Sioux City of the Union Pacific another reason than the generous interest of Marvin Hughitt. It is an interesting game being played just now. In my opinion the Union Pacific will resume running its trains into Sioux City principally because it fears a connection at Norfolk with a stub road from the Short Line, a part of the Great Northern system. By leasing the Omaha's line from Norfolk to Sioux City and running its trains into Sioux City, it can compel the Great Northern to turn over business for the Union Pacific at Sioux City instead of at Norfolk."

Dr. Seymour here June the 19th, for one day only.
