Republican State Convention.

The republican electors of the several counties of the state of Nebraska are hereby called to meet in convention at Lincoln, Nebraska, May 2, 1900, at 2 o'clock p. m.

Table listing delegates from various counties including Adams, Antelope, Banner, Blaine, Boone, Box Butte, Boyd, Brown, Buffalo, Burr, Butler, Cass, Cedar, Chase, Cherry, Cheyenne, Clay, Colfax, Combs, Custer, Dakota, Dawes, Dawson, Deuel, Dixon, Dodge, Douglas, Dundy, Ellinger, Franklin, Frontier, Furnas, Gage, Garfield, Gosper, Grant, Greeley, Hamilton, Harlan, Hayes, Hitchcock, Holt, Hooker, Howard, and Jefferson.

It is recommended that no proxies be allowed, but that the delegates present cast the full vote of the delegation. The county conventions in the several counties held for the purpose of selecting delegates to this convention shall select the county committee and officers thereof.

J. T. MALLABIE, Secretary Pro Tem.

Hon. John R. Hays.

No greater compliment could be paid a man than was tendered to Hon. John R. Hays by the congressional convention yesterday. His candidacy was not announced until after many of the delegations had been selected from the various counties, and yet in face of the fact that most of the delegates came here expecting to vote for someone else, so popular is John R. Hays in this district that he was nominated on the fifth ballot, and that with a hearty good will that presages his election.

Mr. Hays has all the requirements of a statesman. He has brains in abundance, he is a bright, original speaker, he is prepossessing in appearance, and he laid the foundation for being a man of affairs by being born in Ohio and on a farm. This happy event took place in Clinton county, on April 30, 1845.

After the misfortune overtook him, of course his whole life was changed. For a number of years he alternated his time between teaching school and attending college, graduating from the Cornell college at Mt. Vernon, Iowa, with the class of '66.

positively refusing to be a candidate again. Even during his college days he had been studying law and while in office he devoted all his spare time to the pursuit of that branch which attracted him, so that in 1882 he was admitted to the bar with highest honors.

In 1886 he came to Norfolk to accept the position of cashier of the Norfolk National bank, which he held for a year and a half, and then resigned to enter the practice of his profession, in which he has been actively and successfully engaged ever since. He stands now one of the leading members of the bar of north Nebraska, and is a man in whom the people have the utmost confidence wherever he is known.

It may be remarked incidentally that the facts for this sketch were obtained only in part from Mr. Hays, fragments being picked up from other sources known to be correct.

A delegate to the convention yesterday remarked that Madison county was pretty well fixed for candidates for congress, or almost certain to be, and the fact cannot be denied. The county is the home of both congressional candidates of the district and one senatorial aspirant, provided the office trust at Madison again asserts its prerogative.

Hon. Robert M. Nevin, temporary chairman of the republican state convention of Ohio, in his address before that body, made a number of poignant observations. In speaking of the Philippine situation he said: "I cannot understand how any man born and raised in the United States of America familiar with the spirit of our people, governed by its institutions, reared under our flag, can believe for one instant that any administration that ever could be elected could or would dare do anything except that it would lead to the peace and the happiness and the prosperity of this people."

The Madison county republican convention seems to have set the pace in the contest among certain party leaders for the position of national committeeman and it is quite the thing for conventions to send delegates uninstruted, while newspapers are almost unanimously urging independent action and are endeavoring to pour oil on the troubled waters. It may yet transpire that matters will be adjusted to the satisfaction of the aspirants and the good of the party.

The republican convention of the Third district was not unanimously for any one candidate but they arrived at a unanimous decision and there were no sore heads when the result was announced. The candidates came with an honest determination to try for the honors, but were willing to submit to the decrees of the delegates.

He Could Shoot Straight.

Said the man who had traveled: "Years ago in a western frontier town a traveler, footsore and weary, arrived one afternoon and made his way down the one street of the burg. He was suddenly startled by the sounds of shots, and, looking up, discovered four men shooting at one another. The men were standing at the four corners of an imaginary square, and each was shooting at the man catcorner to him. Being in what he supposed a safe position, he paused to watch the outcome of the fray, when a bullet, going wide of its intended mark, cut by his ear. That roused his wrath, and, drawing his pistol, he dropped the man in his tracks who had all but dropped him. Another bullet flying wide from its mark, but near to the stranger, caused him to lay out one of the other pair, and the two remaining men sought safety in flight. In that particular town duels had been previously comparatively harmless amusements, owing to the poor marksmanship of the contestants, but the man who could shoot had arrived, and the inhabitants, although they turned out to greet him in a body and grant him the freedom of the city, did so in manifest awe and trepidation.

"Whenever he told the story afterward, he used to wind it up impressively by saying, 'And, boys, in that town after that they went around me as if I had been a swamp.'"—New York Tribune.

Where Hope Lingered.

Negroes are unconsciously humorous. The other day two roustabouts were overheard talking. They met on the levee after one had been absent from the city for several weeks. "Hello, Bill; how is yer?" said the first. "Well," was the reply, "de doctors is give me up, but de police ain't."—Memphis Scimitar.

GOLD AND ENAMEL NOSE.

A young woman artist in this city who became an adept in delicate processes of enameling while studying in Paris has just completed a gold and enamel nose for a woman who had lost that organ from cancer. The sufferer had tried to conceal her disfigurement by wax noses, but rain and sunshine played havoc with them. Rubber noses she found too heavy for everyday wear, and, besides, they had to be touched up frequently to keep them presentable. The rubber, too, irritated the skin.

The artist suggested an experiment. She offered to bear the expense in case of failure, and the woman without a nose consented. From plaster of paris the artist molded a truly artistic nose, suitable to the patient's style of face. Then she took the cast to Maiden lane and bought gold and had it carefully shaped after the pattern. By drawing out very finely the edges where the metal would touch the flesh the lines of contact, when the nose was worn, were hardly detectable. A pair of spectacles fastened to the nose held the nose in place. Then came the most ticklish part of the work, the enameling.

The nose was re-enamelled 16 times before the artist was satisfied that she had matched exactly the woman's complexion. As the patient's skin was dark and reddish and full of color it was difficult to imitate. Finally, however, when the nose was finished, it was as natural as could be—darkest at the roots, lightest at the bridge and on the tip, and it rose out of the face instead of resting against it. Now the woman has a better shaped nose than she ever had before and, besides, the most durable one.—New York Herald.

Pine Becoming Scarce.

The Chicago Times-Herald says that during the coming winter there will be an army of 35,000 men engaged in the remaining pine forests of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan cutting logs for the market. The present supply of pine lumber is insufficient to meet the demand, and it will not be many years before consumers will be obliged to go out of the country to get any considerable quantities of white pine. In 1892 the three white pine states—Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin—were cutting at the rate of 7,000,000,000 feet annually, which they had six years later reduced to 5,500,000,000 feet. Today the country is back on the basis of consumption in 1892 and the basis of production in 1898, and it will take some time to make up the difference of 1,500,000,000 feet. The forests of Michigan and Wisconsin are now so nearly exhausted that they can never make it up, and the entire burden will rest on the Duluth and Minneapolis districts, in Minnesota. For the next ten years these two districts can probably produce as much pine as they are now cutting. At that time the end of the white pine timber in the United States will be in sight.

Delaware and the Whipping Post.

It is said that the morals of Kent county, Del., are improving. On Saturday only two men were lashed at the whipping post, the first to suffer in six months. Making the punishment fit the crime has a peculiar application in Kent county. The culprit is not only brought up publicly to the post, but the officials allow him to hear the remarks of the crowd, which are often uncomplimentary, and the kodak men can get all the snap shots desired without charge.

Without doubt the ignominy of punishment under such circumstances must be keen to one who is still morally sensitive, but the effect on the habitual criminal may be different. The object lesson is a terrible one, but so are the crimes for which the lashing is administered. A wife beater, for instance, does not deserve tender treatment from the law. If he cannot be reformed by other means, the lash is none too severe for his crime. Delaware is making a thorough experiment of this matter, and whether the whipping post is adopted elsewhere or not, the lessons of the experiment will not be lost.—Baltimore American.

Two Reasons.

"You mustn't play with Mr. Borum's hat, Bobby," said a young lady who was entertaining a caller to her small brother. "Why mustn't I?" asked the youngster. "Because you might break it," replied his sister, "and, besides, he will want it shortly."—Chicago News.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by druggist, 75c. Hall's family pills are the best.
