The Republican Judicial Convention.

The republican electors of the several counties of the Ninth judicial district of Nebraska are hereby called to meet in convention at Norfolk, Nebraska, June 21, 1900, at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for district judge of said district and the selection of a judicial central committee and such other business as may properly be considered. The basis of representation is one delegate at large from each county and one delegate for each one hundred votes and one fraction thereof cast for Hon. M. B. ROOSE, for judge of supreme court, at the election held in 1898. The several counties will be entitled to delegates as follows: Antelope, 10; Knox, 12; Madison, 17; Pierce, 8; Wayne, 10. It is recommended that no proxies be allowed but that the delegates present at the convention cast the full vote of the delegation. By order of the central committee of the Ninth judicial district of Nebraska. JACK ROBERTSON, JOHN R. HAYS, Secretary, Chairman.

While some of the eastern democrats are apparently lining up solidly for Bryan it is more and more apparent that all is not harmony in the west. In Oklahoma there was a decided split in the convention and that territory will be represented at the Kansas City convention with contesting delegations.

Democrats insist that the cure for the trust question is some more monkey-work with the tariff. The people tried a dose of that medicine under Grover the great and found the cure much worse than the disease. It can readily be conceived that they are not yet ready for another experiment with quack doctors.

The house and senate of the United States on Tuesday gave evidence that members of that body are but human after all and get into quarrels as bitter as their commonest constituents. It is presumed that only their high intellect and fear of setting a bad example to the meaner brood prevents them from coming to fistfuls.

Eastern democrats insist on gold plating Bryan but he continues to assert that his free silver spots cannot be covered up. The fellows in the east express their willingness to swallow Bryan, the man, providing he drops the only strong principle he ever had and Bryan is willing to swallow the eastern support providing they let him think he is still a free silverite even though he is not permitted to discuss the question about which he made such a noise in 1896. Funny situation.

Edward Rosewater of the Omaha Bee and the fusion judges of the supreme court have been having an interesting interview. It appears that Mr. Rosewater will yet convince their honors that he has no contempt for them, but that he has some doubts about the propriety of having them decide their own cases. It at present appears that the censorship of Otis is not to be compared to the Nebraska supreme court when it comes to suppressing opinions.

Governor Roosevelt of New York is something of a trust smasher or bloated stock holder smasher himself. The governor is about to impeach the democratic mayor, Van Wyck, of New York City because he accepted stock to the amount of $400,000 in the ice trust, for which he paid not a cent. Talk about frauds in Cuba! Democratic statesman in our own country seem to be about as corrupt as they make them. And Van Wyck has just been chosen as one of the delegates to help nominate Bryan.

If all is true that the democrats say about the prices of nails, wire fence and lumber, the farmers have a grand advantage. It is well known that the prices of farm products are almost double, on the average, what they were four or five years ago. People are compelled to buy the farmers' products in order to live, while the farmers are in no wise compelled to purchase nails, wire, gas pipe and lumber in order to exist. There has been little complaint on the part of the farmers and it has not been announced that they have delegated to democratic politicians and orators the authority to speak for them. When they announce that they are suffering for steel products and lumber it will be time to make a kick.

While the war in South Africa seems to be practically ended one of much greater pretensions seems to be developing in China, where the powers are operating together. There is no question but that the movement to suppress the Boxers is a just one. The murder of defenseless foreigners by the Chinese is a heathenish act not compatible with the onward march of civilization which has marked the last quarter century of the world's history. While demagogues of all countries may sneer at civilization enforced with the rifle and sword, experience has shown its necessity and justification in many instances. A person of whatever nationality or religion should be safe in any country in the world and the time is approaching when he will be. If the Chinese government supports these outrages it will do so to its detriment, as the powers are determined that such methods shall be suppressed.

THE BISHOP AND DIPLOMAT.

Illustration of a Diplomatic Attitude Toward Religion.

In the "Life of Archbishop Benson" by his sons occurs the entertaining and extremely suggestive passage: I shall never forget a conversation between the ambassador of a foreign power and my father. The former was dining at Lambeth, a genial, intelligent man, very solicitous to be thoroughly in touch with the social life of the country to which he had been accredited. After dinner the ambassador, in full diplomatic uniform, with a ribbon and stars, sitting next to my father, said politely: "Does your grace reside much in the country?"

My father said that as archbishop he was provided with a country house and that he was there as much as possible, as he preferred the country to the town.

"Now, does your grace go to church in the country?" with an air of genial inquiry, turning round in his chair.

"Yes, indeed," said my father. "We have a beautiful church almost in the park, which the village people all go to."

"Yes," said the ambassador meditatively, "yes, I always go to church myself in the country. It is a good thing to show sympathy with religious feeling; it is the one thing which combats socialistic ideas. I think you are very wise, your grace, to go."

My father said that he felt as if he and the ambassador were the two augurs as represented in Punch. "I did my best," said my father, "to persuade him that I was a Christian, but he listened to all that I said with a charming expression, implying, 'We are men of the world and understand each other.' I am sure that he thought that I was speaking diplomatically and in purely conventional language, and that if we had known each other better I should have thrown off the mask and showed myself as free a thinker as he."

BATTLE COURAGE.

In Action the Animal Nature Takes Full Possession of Man.

At home, in a progressive community, a man may be a coal heaver or a bank clerk; but, whatever his station, the environment of civilizing influence is strong upon him, and most of his chances for the display of courage come to the moral side of his nature. But out in the open, with most of the trammels cast off and the enemy in front, with the ripple of the colors about him and, more than all, the feeling that comes from companionship in a common danger with many of his fellows, it is the animal that gains supremacy. And man, being by nature a brave and fearless animal—the most fearless of all the animal species—simply remains true to his birthright and goes through the ordeal in the natural way.

What can be the deduction? There is only one. It is that battle gallantry and battle brutality, springing as they both do from the same source, must necessarily be allied. You cannot slip the leash of a bloodhound and stop him half way to his scent. If any proof were needed to make the fact of inherent bravery and—the other thing—certain it is to be found in the marvelous change in face, manner and even speech that comes over nearly every man when he is engaged in battle.

It may be urged that the excitement of being under fire would be sufficient reason for this callousness, but such an explanation will not account for the entire subversion of a man's whole life training. The real reason is that at such times it is the animal nature that takes full and complete possession of the human body.—Chicago Times-Herald.

His First Earnings.

A few years ago a large party, headed by the Duke of Norfolk, went on a tour through the continent. The duke busied himself very much on the journey in a kind hearted way about the welfare of every one in the party. At every station he used to get out and go round to see if he could do anything for any one. One old woman, who did not know him, when she arrived at last in Rome, tired and hot, found great difficulty in getting a porter. So she seized on the duke.

"Now, my good man," she said, "I've noticed you at all these stations loading about. Just make yourself useful for once in your life. Take my bag and find me a cab."

The duke mildly did as he was bid and was rewarded with a sixpence. "Thank you, madam," he said. "I shall prize this, indeed! It is the first coin I have ever earned in my life."

NOT YET ADJOURNED.

Dying Hours of Congress Present Stormy Scenes.

HOUSE LOOKS HORNS WITH SENATE

Rejects Conference Report on Naval Appropriation Bill—Sensational Fight Led by Cannon—New Conferees Appointed. Day of Strife and Turmoil in Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—When the house last night at 10:30 took a recess until 10 o'clock this morning, the two chambers, with heads down and horns locked, were in a desperate struggle over the item in the naval appropriation bill relating to ocean surveys. The final adjournment of congress is postponed until it is over.

The proceedings in the house during the day were tame and without dramatic incident. This was partly due to the fact that the firm position taken by the house on the armor plate question transferred the fight to the floor of the senate, and to the obstinate refusal of Mr. Lantz to permit legislation until the Republican leaders agreed to allow the testimony in the Couer d'Alene investigation to be printed. He had the house by the coat all day and, except for the privileged matters, things legislative were practically at a standstill. But at night there was enough excitement to compensate for the dullness of the day session. The house got its dander up over the failure of its conferees to abide by their instructions on the ocean survey item and after an exceedingly sensational debate, in which Cannon made some startling disclosures as to the manner in which Commander Todd, the hydrographer of the navy, had waged his campaign against the stand taken by the house in favor of the coast and geodetic survey doing ocean survey work, the house rejected the conference report by the almost unprecedented course of appointing new conferees on the part of the house who are not members of the naval committee.

The debate was one of the bitterest and heated of the session. Cannon, in the excitement of the moment, took off his collar and necktie and with sleeves rolled up aroused the house to a tremendous pitch of enthusiasm, as he dealt the conferees sledge hammer blows.

The conferees defended their course as best they could and Foss, acting chairman of the committee, resented with bitter language the charge that he had betrayed the house. Hot words were bandied back and forth, but the house was in an ugly mood and was resolved to fight the senate to a finish. The appointment as conferees of Cannon, Moody and Shafroth, all of whom are in sympathy with the house's position, assures no surrender on their part until the house itself shall direct them to yield.

TURMOIL IN SENATE.

Armor Plate Amendment Is Adopted by a Vote of 39 to 35.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Inability to reach an agreement upon the naval appropriation bill forced the senate to abandon the adoption of the house resolution for final adjournment yesterday. The armor plate question, which for five years has been a thorn in the side of congress, upset the calculations of the senate leaders, and their well laid plans went awry. It was a day of strife and turmoil in the senate. Early the conferees on the naval bill reported a disagreement and the senate was told plainly that the house would not consent to the amendment providing for an armor plate factory to be operated by the government. A compromise proposition was presented by Penrose (Pa.) and after hours of debate was finally adopted by a vote of 39 to 35. The discussion of the proposition developed an unusual bitterness of feeling and charges of robbery and political corruption were hurled about the chamber with an abandon which, if they had not fallen from the lips of grave senators, would have been regarded as reckless. Little worse was ever heard in the heat of a political campaign. Three o'clock, the hour agreed on for final adjournment, passed and still the senate wrestled with the armor plate question. The Penrose resolution was finally agreed to, and it was supposed the way was clear, but later another disagreement was reported on the naval bill. The night session presented a brilliant scene, the galleries being thronged with a gay and fashionable assemblage. All were immensely entertained, as Senators Carter, Mason, Turner and Money kept the senate on edge with rattling political speeches.

Nominations by the President.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The president sent to the senate yesterday the following nominations for the new judicial offices in Alaska under the new law: Judges, Melville C. Brown, Alaska; James Wickersham, Washington; Arthur H. Noyes, Minnesota. Marshals, James M. Shoup, Alaska; Cornelius L. Vawler, Alaska; G. G. Perry, Iowa. Attorney, Robert A. Fridrich, Alaska; Joseph K. Wood, Montana; A. M. Post, Nebraska.

Big Cut in the Price of Steel.

NEW YORK, June 7.—It was declared by a director of the American Steel and Wire company that at a secret meeting representatives of various iron and steel interests decided to make a reduction in the price of steel billets from $30 to $28 per ton, and of No. 1 foundry iron from $22 to $20 per ton.

Masons Convene in Omaha.

OMAHA, June 7.—Six hundred Masons from all over Nebraska convened in 434 annual session yesterday. The Masonic Veterans' association held its semiannual meeting, electing 10 new members.

Accident at a Circus.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The reserved seat section of seats collapsed last night at a performance of the E. F. Davis show and menagerie in South Chicago. The crowd was transformed into a howling, struggling mob. During the excitement the animals of the show became unmanageable and for a time it was feared that many of them would break from the cages into the crowd. Several persons were badly injured. Manager Samuel McFlynn says the accident was due to the act of some malicious person, who had removed one of the rear props from the stand.

Steuenberg Wins Out.

LEWISTON, Ida., June 7.—The forces of Governor Steuenberg triumphed yesterday in the state Democratic convention by seating the contesting delegation from Shoshone county, friendly to the governor, the vote being 152 to 77. The result is a practical endorsement of Governor Steuenberg's administration in the Couer d'Alene trouble, as the fight in the convention was made almost entirely on that line.

The Public and Opera.

There is a general opinion that the stockholders support the opera, and that the general public may consider itself highly privileged to be admitted at all to the sacred precincts. As a matter of fact, if the opera depended for its existence upon the support of the stockholders, the doors of the Metropolitan Opera House would never be open. The bottom would drop out of the whole enterprise. The parquet and the galleries are the manager's chief reliance. Opera is not a social function; it is a public institution, and without the public's support would collapse like a house of cards.—Ainslee's Magazine.

Metals get tired as well as living beings. Telegraph wires are better conductors on Monday than on Saturday on account of their Sunday rest, and a rest of three weeks adds 10 per cent to the conductivity of a wire.

Want of care does us more damage than want of knowledge.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 75c. Hall's family pills are the best.
