The Christian Endeavor society of the Second Congregational church will give an ice cream and watermelon social on Mrs. Beach's lawn this evening.

A party consisting of Ernest and John Bridge, Carroll Powers, Oliver Utter and two young gentlemen from Iowa, leave tomorrow morning for a week's outing at the Yellow Banks.

Norfolk tent, No. 64, K. O. T. M., will hold a special meeting tomorrow evening at G. A. R. hall for drill practice and to meet with State Deputy L. M. Thomas of Lincoln, who will be here for a week or ten days.

Two special trains of horses went through on the Union Pacific, one during the night and the other early this morning, bound for Sioux City. The horses are the property of W. G. M. Allen of Boise City, Idaho.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hibben had the misfortune to fall yesterday while playing and break her collar bone. Surgical attendance was secured and the little one placed in as comfortable circumstances as possible.

Next Sunday, September 2, the Christian Science church will resume its regular public services at the end of the annual August vacation. The board of directors invites the public, and all interested in the cause, to attend. Services in I. O. O. F. hall at 11 a. m. Sunday school at 10.30 a. m.

At the special election for the relocation of the county seat of Knox county held Tuesday the following vote was cast: Center, 1,257; Bloomfield, 915; Niobrara, 407; Verdigre, 909; Wausa, 22. This does not settle the question and another special election will be required, leaving the three highest points in the race.

At a meeting of the board of education held last evening, Miss Stella Tuttle of Webster City, Iowa, was elected teacher of sciences in the high school, in place of Miss Gilson of London, Pa., resigned. Miss Gilson writes that her sister and brother-in-law, who was a missionary in China, were killed in the massacre of June 20, and she feels that she must remain at home with her mother during the winter.

Some unknown friend sent E. B. Ovelman a paper published at Jam-E-Jamshed, Bombay, and dated June 13. Mr. Ovelman may have been able to decipher its name, politics and read the news it contained but the writer is not yet able to read what looks more like hen-scratches than anything else. A few ads are recognizable by the cuts or trade marks they contain. Chamberlain's remedies, the Singer machines and other familiar articles are given space. The paper is delicate pink, consists of 12 pages and looks like it might be full of news.

The rumor has been in circulation that C. D. Jenkins of the Fair store, formerly steward of the Norfolk hospital for the insane, would accept the position of steward for the Beatrice institute for the feeble minded under Dr. W. H. Deering, when that gentleman took charge. Mr. Jenkins was asked this morning concerning the rumor and denied it. He stated that the position had been tendered him but considered that his business interests here were of more importance than an office and he could not afford to accept. He said he was not looking for any political appointments.

The executive committee of the Norfolk Tennis association, inasmuch as they have not secured a sufficient number of entries, have decided to declare the Northeast Nebraska tournament off. The tournament was to have been held here next Tuesday and Wednesday, the 4th and 5th. They wrote to 14 towns and received but one definite reply that a team would enter. They received answers from three other towns but they were indefinite, so they decided to give up the idea. It is possible that a local tournament will be held Tuesday and some amusement to tennis lovers may result.

BURGLARS NOT CAPTURED.

No Evidence to Hold the Men Arrested at Battle Creek.

WERE GIVEN THEIR LIBERTY

County Attorney Tyler Relates Quite a Different Story from the One Told by Mr. Emmons—House of Otto Becker East of Town Burglarized Tuesday.

County Attorney Tyler brings down from Battle Creek quite a different story of the discovery of the robbers than that given by R. G. Emmons of Lincoln, owner of the blood hounds, and he is not by any means convinced that the robbers were apprehended and the two men arrested have been given their liberty.

The dogs followed a trail to the railroad track and there gave up the hunt and it was the opinion of Mr. Emmons that the robbers had boarded a train between 11 and 12 o'clock the night of the robbery and gone away. He was finally induced to take the dogs back and start them anew over the trail. They followed it to about the same place on the railroad then struck a scent on the rail, following it about 300 feet until they came to the Tyler house. This they circled around several times and the building was entered and a search made. All the goods discovered were a couple of bonnets which the proprietors of the store thought might have been sold and were consequently no evidence whatever. The papers and money stolen were not found. To prove Tyler guilty would have required the evidence of the dogs on the witness stand or positive testimony from their trainer that they could not be in error, which he was not ready to give. To offset this Tyler's wife asserted and was ready to swear that he had been at home all night.

The county attorney recognized that there was no evidence at all to convict but stated that he was ready to proceed with the trial if the merchants would swear out a complaint. They, however, agreed with the county attorney that there was no evidence and concluded not to prosecute.

The other man, Clacey, had no evidence against him, whatever. He was merely suspected owing to his being out that night. He, however, procured an abundance of testimony to prove that he was out with a party of campers and he had previously borne a good reputation so that there was not a particle of evidence against him.

It was a splendid story and a credit to his dogs that Mr. Emmons told here and no one for a moment doubted that he had located the thieves and that the men arrested were convicted by overwhelming testimony with scarcely a need of trial.

The hounds going to Tyler's house made a pretext for his arrest but they are probably no better than the human family and are liable to error. It is certain that no court in the land would convict on that evidence alone. If, as Mr. Emmons said, a portion of the stolen goods had been found in the house the evidence would have been almost complete against Tyler, but it was not and the men were given their liberty without even a preliminary hearing, and were not taken to Madison as was reported to this office yesterday.

A Daylight Burglary. Another robbery, having a close resemblance in many particulars to the one at Battle Creek, took place Tuesday forenoon at the home of Otto Becker, seven miles east of Norfolk in Stanton county.

Mr. Becker was away from home and his folks were absent on a plumbing expedition. Entrance to the house was gained through a window, the burglar removing a screen and carefully replacing it after his work was completed. A man moving near by had seen no one about the house at all and there was no clue, whatever, to the robbers.

A tin box containing some insurance papers, certificates, a note for $25 and other papers was taken and a revolver was also stolen.

Two watches in the house were not disturbed and $9 in cash was not found by the burglars.

Mr. Becker says that movers pass the house frequently as he is on the main road but he cannot say that the robbery was done by any of them. He has made an earnest endeavor to locate the property but has been unsuccessful as yet. It is not likely that the robbers will be able to realize on any of the paper taken.

Business Men in Theatricals. The New York Herald of May 8th said: "It's strange what strides the stage has made during the past five years, not to speak of a century. Business men have now taken a hand in the pie, and find it a very profitable investment. Lawrence Barrett, during his grand struggle through numberless difficulties, was backed by some of the solid business men of Boston. Viola Allen, who has electrified this country and at the present time is the talk of the entire east, in "The Christian," was furnished the necessary funds by a large printing establishment in New York. And now a leading business man of Chicago has taken hold of the comedy farce, "A Wise Woman," and having engaged an extraordinary good company will appear in all the principal cities in a trip across the continent. Prior to their run in San Francisco they will take in some of the minor towns and thus make the journey to the coast with more ease. Theatrical managers, look sharp. The business men will crowd you out."
