SLOW, BUT SHURE.

"How on earth, Simpson," said the other day to a rural friend of mine whom I was visiting-"how on earth did a backward, diffident felow like you ever manage to say, Will you?' to a witty, saucy, selfpoised woman like your wife?"

I really was curious to know. Simpson was such a slow, sedate person, and his wife was such a little Office: - Up-stairs, one door east of firefly, that there always seemed to me something funnily incongruous in their union.

> Simpson made his usual deliberate pause before answering. "Well, I reckon"-my friend is a Hoosier-'I reckon it was queer I ever asked her, and the way it happened was meerer still."

We had carried our chairs out into the front yard, in order to smoke in greater comfort; and I now tilted mine back against a tree, knowing you think so very much of me, Ben?' that the story that was brewing in my friend's mind would not be over in a hurry. I condensed it for the benefit of those readers who may not have so much leisure and patience as I had: "You see," he began, slowly clearing his throat and crossing his legs, "I was always rather soft-like about Susie, from the time I used to sit by her in school and work her sums. She hadn't a particle of head for figures, and I had, so we suited pretty well as long as school lasted; and Susie, though she laughed at me more than ony of the girls, liked me my hand with one of hers, 'You're terprising firm, though many years kisses. Good Advice.

George Francis Train recently gave the following advice to some college goung men:

"You want some good advice. It has ruined many a man, but may not harm you, because you will not follow it. Rise early; be abstemious; be frugal; attend to your own business, and never trust it to another; be not afraid to work, and diligently too, with your own hands; treat every one with civility and respect; good manners insure success; accomplish what you undertake; decide, then persevere; diligence and industry overcome all difficulties; Let the girls romp. There is no never be mean-rather give than more beautiful sight in the world take the odd shilling; never postthan a bevy of bright-eved, rosy pone till the morrow what can be cheeked girls, with flying feet and done to-day; never anticipate wealth flying hair, indulging in innocent from any source but labor; honesty mirth, happy, whole-hearted, sunny- is not only the best policy, but the faced, lightly laughing, storing up only policy; commence at the first health against the days when trials round and keep climbing; make and tears shall come. It is your your word as good as your bond; duty to give your daughters feedom seek knowledge to plan, enterprise -to let them revel in the pure air to execute, honesty to govern all; of heaven; to give full play to the never trade beyond your stock; nevintricate machinery of the human er give too large credit; time is frame; and the foolish mothers who money; make few promises; keep your secrets; live within your inorous expansions of waist, and all the come; sobriety above all things; luck is a word that does not apply to a successful man; not too much caution-slow but sure is the thing : the highest monuments are built piece by piece; step by step we mount the pyramids; be bold-be resolute when the clouds gather; difficulties The Rev.
