"The best authority." "It ought to be in every library also in every Sunday school."

WORCESTER'S ILLUSTRATED QUARTO DICTIONARY. A large handsome volume of 1824 pages, containing 150,000 words.

is now regarded as the STANDARD AUTHORITY, and is so recommended by Bryant, Longfellow, Whittier, Sumner, Holmes, Irving, Winthrop, Agassiz, Marsh, Henry, Everett, Mann, Stephens, Quincy, Felton, Hilliard, Mendenhall, and the majority of our most distinguished scholars, and its, besides, recognized as authority by the Departments of our National Government.

"The volumes before us show a vast amount of diligence, and with Webster's, in combination with fancifulness, with Worcester, in combination with good sense and judgment, Worcester's is the sober and safer book, and may be pronounced the best existing English Lexicon."—London Athenaeum.

"After our recent strike we made the charge to WORCESTER as our authority in spelling, chiefly to bring ourselves into conformity with the accepted usage, so well as to gratify the desire of most of our staff, including such gentlemen as Mr. Bayard Taylor, Mr. George W. Smalley, and Mr. John R. Cassard."—New York Tribune.

LOST CORALIE.

"I am truly sorry, Edith, that you are so needlessly alarmed. It is a sad story that I am about to repeat, and when you have heard it you will not wonder that the remembrance gives me pain."

"So you can imagine, Edith, with what joy I hailed the birth of a little sister. For hours I would sit beside her cradle bed, watching her infant slumbers, and waiting with boyish impatience for the light blue eyes to open, when she would be transferred to my arms."

"I had no real estate for sale, if you wish to buy either in or out of the city, if you wish to trade city property for lands, or lands for city property, give us a call."

"The homes before us show a vast amount of diligence, and with Webster's, in combination with fancifulness, with Worcester, in combination with good sense and judgment, Worcester's is the sober and safer book, and may be pronounced the best existing English Lexicon."

Women's Affairs.

Queen Victoria has enjoyed a long and happy reign of forty-two years. Boys have had colleges 600 years; girls, thirty years! Which sex has made the most of its opportunities?

Louisiana has taken her place in the ranks, by adopting this in her constitution: "Women twenty-one years of age and upward, shall be eligible to any office of control or management under the school laws of this State."

One of the richest unmarried ladies in Richmond Township, Pa., Elizabeth Leibesberger, made her appearance in the hay field, lately; she said she came with the determination to show her hands how to work. And show them she did, tossing the hay, raking it into rows, and after raking it into piles, she assisted in loading and raking after the wagons.

San Diego (Cal.) papers tell of the heroism of Miss Lawrence, who, when one of a band of wild cattle being driven through the streets, singled out a child to attack, sprang in the saddle of the drunken vaquero, who fell off, and running down the street, threw her shawl over his head, just as he was about to gore the child. She then reached the child, lifted it into her lap, and rode away in safety. It is a specimen of pure courage such as few could equal.

Archery was the recognized sport of ladies and gentlemen in "ye olden time." A revival of interest in it has sprung up among us to-day. Surely no more healthful and elegant recreation can be mentioned, and there is nothing that detracts from womanliness in its practice.

The Journal opposes Democrats for office, because it dislikes their political principles. It knows if the Democrats get control of the offices of the country that the policy of the Government for the past nineteen years will be reversed, and we shall return to the days of Polk, Pierce, and Buchanan, the most disgraceful period of our national history, when we were controlled by the Jeff. Davises, the Wigfalls, the Yanceys, the entire brood that afterwards rose in rebellion because they could not carry the elections, and have the privilege of breeding niggers for the Kansas market.

FACTS ABOUT FARMING.

In 1857 a young man started from Bellevue near Omaha, with a small pair of cattle and $40 in money to commence a farm, and in those days there was not much confidence in farming in this region.

Rosa Bonheur, the wonderful animal painter, is described as a stout, masculine looking little lady, of fifty-seven, but looking twelve years younger. She has bright black eyes, strongly marked features, and her hair is gray in spots.

The home of Lydia Maria Child is at Wayland, Mass. It is an old-fashioned New England house, a story and a half high, with an L, painted a Quaker yellow. Everything is in keeping with a New England country home; a willow shades the grass plot, and a stately elm guards the gate.

Who cannot find one little grain of comfort in this beautiful passage from Emile Souvestre? Blessings on those true hearts that scatter from their stores, thoughts that shall illumine the darkness of many a lot!—words that go down into the depths of our griefs, and help us to bear them! He says:—"This morning I was pitying those whose lives are obscure and joyless; now I understand that God has provided a compensation with every trial. The smallest pleasure derives from rarely a relish otherwise unknown. Enjoyment is only what we feel to be such, and the luxurious man feels no longer. Satiety has destroyed his appetite, while privation preserves to the other that first of earthly blessings, the being easily made happy."

A lady in Springfield, Mass., has been making some experiments in putting up canned goods without cooking. Heating the fruit tends more or less to the injury of the flavor, and the lady referred to has found that by filling the cans with fruit, and then with pure cold water, and allowing them to stand until the confined air has escaped, the fruit will, if then sealed perfectly, keep indefinitely without change or loss of original flavor.
