A Slight Difference.

EDITOR JOURNAL :-- In a late issue you argue very reasonably in opposition to instructing our delegates to the Republican National Convention. As a rule your plan may do-send good, able and true men, and let thenslook after the interests of the party. But do you not do the very thing you seem to oppose? Do you not attempt to forestail the action of the State Convention, and work up last week resolved upon another public opinion to secure instructions in favor of Mr. Blaine. And here the difference comes in. You believe a large majority of Nebraska Republicans want to see Blaine nominated. Now I beg leave to differ. After admitting your better opportunity of learning the opinions of the people, yet I think that in this case you are mistaken. I have FIFTY-SEVEN iron mills have shut scarcely heard a Republican mention the subject, for the last four years, but was in favor of Grant, and nearly all soldiers of all parties favor him. It is not so much a personal preference but a question of success. Can an eastern man be elected? don't believe any man east of New York can be elected in 1880. The indications seem to be that the next president must come from Illinois. The Democracy already recognize that fact, and are casting about for an Illinois candidate. Indeed I think both candidates will come from Illinois. I have no doubt that Island for governor; they send a Grant will be the nominee of the Chicago convention, and the next president. I hope and believe that date express great confidence in his our delegates to Chicago will be instructed to support Grant all the time. There are no fears about the electoral vote of Nebraska for any man that may be nominated, but we he subsequently shot and killed one cannot rely on a solid north for any man. We ought to put the north beyond doubt and secure part of the A WELL-EXECUTED $20 counterfeit south. I believe, and I think the majority of Nebraska Republicans believe, that Grant is the only candidate that can do it. We cannot depend on a fair election, nor a fair Chicago, was found gunty on the count. Judging of the future from 20th, of attempting to bribe a juror, the past, we can look for nothing but and was sentenced to sixty days treachery, deceit, fraud, bribery, intimidation, murder, and in the end Several persons were injured on an attempt at open revolution. If the West Chester railroad last week, such is the fact, we want a candidate who can not only carry the Republican states with fair-play, but one Chicago's packing trade for the who can create such a storm of enpast year shows a falling off of thusiasm and confidence as will resist and overcome the fraud and violence and even prevent it. Grant is the only man. There is no doubt of his nomination and election, but let it be with such unanimity and enthusiasm as to laugh at fraud and violence, and to defy it. If we beat them this time, the battle (on this line), is, practically, over, JOHANNES DEBOER was hanged at | and the fruits of the war and the constitutional amendments are permanently secured; but if we lose, all is lost, or we have the war to too great to take any chances.

A Review of "The Other Side of the Question." ED. JOURNAL :- Your correspondent. Breeder, has fallen into some errors, which I wish to correct. In the first place he says "why is it that so many in Platte county have gone into sheep, and then as fast as they could, have gone out again?" The county statistics show that outside two or three flocks, very few of our citizens have been engaged in sheep raising; that more of them have not, has doubtless been owing to some of the many causes and annovances to which he refers, but under our herd law if a man wishes to raise either sheep or cattle, he must fence or herd them; consequently a few sheep will not pay unless within an enclosure where their natural propensity to browse can not be indulged at the expense of trees or valuable crops, but this can be remedied by several neighbors combining their flocks during the grazing season, and employing a herder to take charge of them, the same as is done with cattle. That sheep in Nebraska are subject to but few diseases is the testimony of all who have taken the pains to inquire into the matter. Foot-rot is unknown; scab prevails in many places where a sufficient amount of care has not been taken for its prevention and cure and has often been spread thro' parsimony in the purchase and introduction of diseased sheep into flocks, because they were low priced; abortion in sheep sometimes occurs. but not so frequently as in cattle, if at times they will not own their lambs, it requires only the exercise of a little patience and common sense to overcome this. Again he says that if everybody went into sheep the market would be spoiled, but everybody cannot go into sheep raising; but while the demand for wool is so largely in excess of the supply there is no cause for alarm on this score. The production of wheat is largely overdone some seasons, but this does not defarmers from continuing its growth; on the contrary we find that those who continue on the even tenor of their way, not running into extremes, do in the end acquire a the said Mary V. Mills, defendant, competence. That capitalists can go into the sheep business to more advantage than others, none will deny, that the profit is exclusively with them is not so clear, and I can not do better than quote from one of the highest authorities on sheep culture in the U.S. on this point: "The growth of wool is peculiarly adapted to the pecuniary means and the circumstances of a portion of our rural population. Their capital is mostly in land. Hired labor is costly. Sheep husbandry will render all their cleared land profitably productive at a less annual expenditure for labor than any other branch of farming. By reason of the rapid increase of sheep, and the great facility of promptly improving inferior ones they will stock a farm well, more expeditiously, and with far less outlay, than other animals. And lastly, the ordinary processes and manipulations of sheep husbandry are simple and readily acquired. On no other domestic animal is the haz-Grant men do not malign Blaine. ard of loss by death so small. It is mals, and unlike all the others, it decontly managed a good sheep can never die in the debt of man. If it > wool will pay for its consumption up to that period. If it lives to be sheared once, it brings its owner into debt to it, and if the ordinary and natural course of wool production and breeding goes on, that indebtedness will increase uniformly and with accelerating rapidity until steer die at three or four years old or the cow before breeding, the loss is almost a total one." In conclusion I would say that if "Breeder" thinks so poorly of sheep raising as he professes to do he would not stand on $9.99 as his price per head, but would part with them speedily at proof in support of his claim, and on market rates, that those whom he looks upon as infatuated might have lumbus; Neb., secure final entry there A FARMER.
