As this office, together with the various state places from Governor down, are the next things in tution so as to extend the electoral sight, and as there is cause for strong suspicion of a quiet hunt all around, it is nothing to be wondered at that the different generals will be here in person or by trusted, confidential representatives, to take a ed in Southern Nebraska. Whether that opinion will be fairly represented in convention, we may never know, because politicians labored to more purpose than the body of the people-they are prone to do that.

The convention, as it will be constituted this evening, is to choose week, and trains will be running six men, to act as they may deem best, without particular directions; or to receive special instructions.

Let the will of the convention in this matter be expressed as far into the probable contingencies as possible, for it is supposed, with good reason, that quite a number of delethe chief candidates, are really consecrated to the use of another, not by any means the first or second choice of Nebraska Republicans. There are men here in Grant and Blaine overcoats, over Washburn coats, but in Sherman jackets. We insist that you have a right to know what kind of a jacket your Chicago delegation will wear. As to men: if Nebraska had only a first choice, and was determined to look no further, she could send her vote in a sealed envelope and be done with it; but beyond probable contingencies (for which the convention can and ought to provide), the best provision is staunch, representative men, embodying the exact spirit of the party in this state.
