result, both cheated [laughter]; and thus, day by day, little by little, the sanctity of the ballot-box has been destroyed, and that party was considered the smartest party that could get in the most illegal votes and get them counted. All that must be stopped, or this country cannot endure, and it is the mission of the Republican party to stop it, and that is another reason why I am a Republican. That party has thrown every safeguard around the ballot-box in every State in this Union WHERE ANY SAFEGUARD HAS BEEN THROWN.

That party has always been in favor of registration; the Democratic party has always opposed it. That party—the Republican party—has done all it possibly could do to secure an honest expression of the great will of the people. Every man here who is in favor of an honest ballot-box ought to vote the Republican ticket; every man here in favor of free speech ought to vote the Republican ticket. Free speech is the brain of this Republic, an honest vote is its life-blood. [Applause.]

There are two reasons, then, why I am a Republican:
First—I believe in free speech.
Second—I want an honest vote.

Can you trust the people of the South with the ballot-box? Are you willing to let Alabama keep that sacred treasure,—Alabama, that cast in 1876 about 103,000 votes for Tilden, but only a little while ago cast a Democratic majority of 92,000? [Laughter.] Alabama to-day is a Republican State if every man was allowed freely to vote his sentiments; and you know it. [Applause.]

Mississippi is to-day a Republican State; North Carolina is a Republican State; South Carolina is a Republican State; Florida is a Republican State; and everybody who knows anything knows what I say is true. [Applause.] How are they kept in the Democratic ranks? Are they kept there by the men who are trying to protect the ballot-box? They are kept there by the tissue ballot, they are kept by force and fraud. Mask murderers in the dead of night ride to the cabin of the freedman and shoot him down regardless of the shriekings of his wife and the tears of his babes. That is the way the Southern States are kept solidly Democratic. [Applause.] Ah, but they say to me, "Are you willing that the black people should control the South?" If the black people are in favor of liberty, and the white people are opposed, then I want the black people to control. [Applause.] If the black people believe that this is a Nation, and the white people there say it is a simple Confederacy, then I want the black people to control the South. [Applause and cries of "Good."] If the black people are in favor of our lowest vote, if the black people are in FAVOR OF FREEDOM OF SPEECH, if the black people are in favor of absolutely guarding the ballot-box from fraud, and if the white people are on the other side on these questions, then I say let the black people rule that country. [Applause.] I think more of a black friend than I do of a white enemy. [Applause.] I think more of a black man who loves liberty, than I do of a white man who hates it. I think more of a black man who upheld our flag in war than of any white man who has tried to tear it down. [Applause.] That is my doctrine. [Applause, and cries of "All right!"] I think more of the man trampled down than I do of the trampler. I think more of the man stolen from than I do of the thief. [Applause, and cries of "Give it to them, Bob!"]

There is another thing. We have not only got to have free speech, not only got to have an honest ballot, but we have got to raise a revenue in this country. We owe to-day one billion nine million dollars,—a Democratic debt. [Applause and laughter.] Democracy is the greatest luxury we ever afforded. [Applause and laughter, and cries of "Hit them again."] We have got to pay that debt. Why? If we don't we will be eternally disgraced in the eyes of the civilized world. When our money is only worth 80 cents on the dollar every American falls 20 per cent below par. [Laughter.] When our money is at par, we cannot pay our bonds we feel that we are a dishonored people, but when our bonds bearing only 4 per cent, and are worth 140 in the market, we feel proud; and when we go to another country and see one of those bonds, that bond certifies that an American is an honest man. [Applause.] Who are you going to trust to pay this debt? That is the question. Whom are you willing to trust with the honor of the United States? The men who defended her flag will defend her honor. [Applause.] The men who tried to tear her flag down will wrangle America's honor beneath their feet. Who is going to pay? The Democrats solemnly swore that we never would pay. [Laughter.] In the year of grace 1878, standing in the States could not resume specie-payments. Well, we did. [Applause and laughter.] A voice: "They lied." We did. [Laughter.] They resolved that the War was a failure, and immediately thereafter we succeeded, and the old flag was carried in glory over every inch of the United States. [Applause.] They have never made a prophecy that was fulfilled. [Laughter.] Their prophecies and their promises are exactly alike. [Laughter and applause.] Whom can we trust to pay this debt? Whom can we trust to give us good money? A greenback to-day is as good as gold. Who made it so? The Democrats in their conventions solemnly resolved that it would never be good. Well, they helped a little, I have no doubt, because everybody knew that what they resolved would not be true. [Great laughter.] All you have to do is to couple a Democratic resolution. [Applause and laughter.] Now, in order to pay this debt,—and I will come to the money question, after which we have got to have revenue,—it has got to be collected. Will you trust to collect the North or South, the Republican or the Democratic party? Recollect, the Democratic party has been fasting for twenty years. [Laughter.] It has suffered all the agonies of official famine. [Laughter.] Not a bite for twenty years. [Great laughter.] The Democratic party to-day is a vast aggregate official appetite. [Laughter.] Who are you going to trust? Will we trust the Southern States to collect the revenues of the Union? In four years, with the Internal Revenue Department, we have collected of internal tax, $460,000,000 at a cost of about 3 per cent. This in four years. During four years we have captured, destroyed, and libeled 3,874 illicit distilleries in Southern States. [Laughter.] Remember it; we have captured and libeled 7,084 Democrats in Southern States, charged with defrauding the revenue of the country. [Laughter.] The Southern people, resisting the Collectors of Federal tax in the last four years, have shot and killed twenty-five revenue officials, and have wounded fifty-five; and now in the Southern States—that is, in many of them—every Revenue Collector, every officer connected with that branch of the Government, is provided by the Internal Revenue Department WITH A BRECH-LOADING RIFLE and a pair of revolvers. [Laughter.] Are they the gentlemen to collect our revenues? Will you depend upon them to pay the interest on $1,400,000,000 and the current expenses of this Government? It won't do. [Laughter.] I heard a story of a couple of Methodist ministers who had been holding a campaigning, and after they had preached a week one said to the other: "Let's take up a subscription." "Good," said he. So he passed his hat, gave it to a brother, and he passed it around, and finally came back and handed it over to the preacher, and there was a lot of old nails, matches, toothpicks, buttons, and not one solitary cent [laughter]; and the other preacher said, looking at it: "Let us thank God" [laughter], and the owner of the hat said, "What for?" and the other replied, "Because you got your hat back." [Great laughter.] If we depend upon the Southern States to collect the revenues of this country we won't get our hat back. [Laughter.] Now then, my friends, if you want an honest ballot, if you want the revenues of the country collected, vote the Republican ticket.

Then there is another thing we want; we want good money; we want honest money. I know there have been a great many theories on money, and I never knew a man that had not a dollar himself who had not a scheme to make somebody else rich. [Laughter.] These theories were produced, of course, by the circumstances we went through—the war. We had, as they say, plenty of money; that is to say, we had no money; plenty of notes, but no cash; and while we were sailing on a credit we sailed well, and as long as I can buy all I want on a credit my family shall not suffer. [Laughter.] We were going into debt, and as a rule it is an exceedingly prosperous time in a man's life when he is getting into debt. [Laughter.] As a rule it is an exceedingly hard time when he is paying this debt. [Laughter.] Millions and millions of promises were issued. The result was that prices went up just in proportion as the value of the promises went down, and that was

AT THE EXPENSE OF THE CREDITOR CLASS.

Expansion is always at the expense of creditors, and when the wheel of fortune takes a turn, and contraction comes, that is always at the expense of the debtor. At the same time people claimed absolute justice would be done; but the trouble is, creditors do not mean the same. The very man who was a creditor, and at whose expense the inflation came, when contraction comes may be a debtor, and consequently suffer both ways. We had vast and splendid schemes for the future. We began to buy lots twenty miles from Chicago,—lots that the frogs had held undisputed sway over since the morning stars sang together. On paper we laid this land out into squares, avenues, boulevards, and were selling what cost $10 dollars an acre for $10 a foot and $50 a foot, and all at once in 1873 the crash came and all these lots resumed. [Great laughter.] A fellow who had bought on credit, paying two-thirds down, found that the lots would not pay the other third. [Laughter.] Hundreds of thousands of men were ruined, and all at once they said, "What we want is another inflation; we want more money," and I never heard one that was caught speaking on the subject who did not say, "If there ever comes another inflation you may shoot me." [Laughter.] When contraction came certain men were left with the bags to hold, and they were the men who got up new financial theories, and I do not blame them. [Laughter.] It is precisely the same as it is in a game of cards, where men have been playing poker all night. I do not believe there is a man here that will understand this campaign. [Laughter.] Along towards morning the fellow who is ahead has got to go home, his wife is not very well. The other fellow, who is behind, says "No; nobody but a coward will jump the game; let us get another candle, and we will have another deal;" and so it was that the Greenback theory started. We want another deal. We have been left high and dry in the brush miles from the channels. If water can only come once more—if we do not float off—it will be our fault. [Laughter.]

NO MAN CAN IMAGINE, all the languages of the world cannot express, what the people of the United States suffered from 1873 to 1879. Men who considered themselves millionaires found that they were beggars; men living in palaces, supposing they had enough to give sunshine to the winter of their age, supposing they had enough to have all they loved in affluence and comfort, suddenly found that they were mendicants with bonds, stocks, mortgages, all turned to ashes in their aged, trembling hands. The chimneys grew cold, the fires in furnaces went out, the poor families were turned adrift, and the highways of the United States were crowded with tramps. Into the home of the poor crept the serpent of temptation, and whispered in the ear of poverty the terrible word "repudiation." I want to tell you that you cannot conceive of what the American people suffered as they staggered over the desert of bankruptcy from 1873 to 1879. We are too near now to know how grand we were. The poor mechanics said "No"; the ruined manufacturer said "No"; the once millionaire said "No, we will settle fair, we will agree to pay whether we ever pay or not, and we will never sell the American name with the infamous word 'repudiation.'" Are you not glad? What is the talk? Are you not glad that our flag is covered all over with financial honors? The stars shine and gleam now because they represent an honest Nation. They said during that time, "We must have more paper," and the Republican party said: "Let us pay what we have." I am in favor of having that as money which no human being can create. I believe in gold and silver. I believe in silver, because that is one of the great productions of our country, and when you add a use to a thing you add a value to that thing, and I want silver money; but I want a silver dollar big enough to be worth a gold dollar, if you have to have it three feet in diameter. Nothing is ever made by rascality. I do not want it understood that we are a nation of coin clippers. I want honest dollars; honest dollars will make an honest dollar every time. I only want money that is a product of Nature. Now listen:

NO CIVILIZED NATION, no barbarous nation, no tribe, however ignorant, ever used anything as money that man could make. They had always used for money a production of Nature. Some may say, "Have not some uncivilized tribes used beads for money, something that civilized people could make?" Yes; but a savage tribe could not make the beads. The savage tribes supposed them to be a product either of Nature or of something else that they could not imitate. Nothing has ever been considered money among any people on this globe that those people could make. What is a greenback? The greenbacks are a promise, not money. [Great laughter and applause.] The greenbacks are the Nation's note, not money. You cannot make a flat dollar any more than you can make a flat store. You can make a promise, and that promise may be made by such a splendid man that it will pass among all who know him as a dollar; but it is not a dollar. You might as well tell me that a bill-of-fare is a dinner. [Laughter.] The greenback is only good now because you can get gold for it. If you could not get gold for it it would not be worth any more than a ticket for dinner after the fellow who issued the ticket had quit keeping the hotel. A dollar must be made of something that Nature has produced. When I die, if I have a dollar left, I want it to be a good one. I do not want a dollar that will turn into ashes in the hand of widowhood or in the possession of orphan. Take a coin of the Roman Empire—a little piece of gold—and it is just as good to-day as though Julius Caesar still stood at the head of the Roman legions. I do not wish to trust the wealth of this Nation with the demagogues of the Nation. I do not wish to trust the wealth of the country to every blast of public opinion. I want money as solid as the earth on which we tread, as bright as the stars that shine above us. [Applause.] Now, then, we had such good luck give our notes; we had so much to eat and drink and wear that some Greenback gentleman said: "Why not keep it up?"

I WANT TO-DAY TO PAY A DEBT to the Greenback party. I endeavor to do equal and exact justice, and I believe to-day that if it had not been for the Greenback party we could not have resumed, and I will tell you why. The Greenbackers went into every school-house in the State, except the Southern States, where they would not allow them to speak,—they went out every stump, and they told the people "The greenback is the best money the world has ever seen." They talked and they argued until millions of people began to despise the look of silver; they absolutely hated the color of gold; they said that, after all the talk "The greenback is the money of civilization." Finally, when we said "We will resume," the Greenback party had gotten the people in such a state of mind, had got them so in love for the greenback, that they did not ask for gold. If they had asked for gold we would not have had enough. [Laughter and applause.] So to-day I want to thank the Greenback party for what they have done; but allow me in this connection to say the day of your usefulness is past. [Loud applause.] Thousands of men upon our side gave wrong definitions of money, and that helped to mislead thousands of people. They said "money is a measure of value"; they said "money is a device to facilitate exchanges." Well, that is calculated to mislead anybody. The Greenbackers said, "If it is only a device to facilitate exchanges, why is not a paper device just as good as a gold device?" ("Good." You could not answer it; nobody can answer it. The trouble is that the first statement is untrue. Money is not "a device to facilitate exchanges," but the coining of money is a device to facilitate exchanges. Recollect the word, "coining." The only reason that coining was necessary was the Government had to tell how much there was, or else every man had to carry a pair of scales and be a chemist. So the coining of money is "a device to facilitate exchanges," but the money itself is gold and silver, the product of Nature herself. [Applause.]

Democratic Testimony.

The Bourbon organ says Gen. Garfield is a dishonest man. Here is some testimony from distinguished Democrats which may be considered quite as good as any assertions by Bourbon organs:

I am proud to call Garfield my friend, and I would not call any man my friend whom I even suspected of dishonesty.—Hon. Henry B. Payne, of Ohio.

No living American, in my estimation, stands higher for integrity and purity than James A. Garfield.—Hon. Allen G. Thurman of Ohio.

"Garfield's honesty, and integrity are beyond question."—Judge Jerry Black, of Pennsylvania.

"Garfield is one of the most sincere, and honorable men I ever knew in public life, and his record is without a flaw."—Hon. Randolph Tucker, of Virginia.

I will tell you whom I think the Republicans should nominate, and whom I consider THEIR STRONGEST MAN OF PRINCIPLE, AN HONEST MAN, AND WOULD MAKE A GOOD PRESIDENT FOR US ALL. Personally, I consider him the BEST MAN you could nominate. I refer to GEN. JAMES A. GARFIELD, of Ohio.—Thomas A. Hendricks.

I have been his devoted friend for many years, and I am resolved that I never will believe that he does not deserve the affection I have bestowed upon him. If we would carry the principles which regulate his private life into his public conduct, he would make the best Chief Magistrate we have ever had.—Judge Jere Black.

In the midst of the organized carnival of corruption which has been going on now so many weary months and years at Washington, it is really satisfactory to catch glimpses now and then of honesty for honesty's sake, and without considerations of party. Gen. Garfield, of Ohio, is a Republican of Republicans, but it is his simple duty, which we gladly pay him, to admit that he has done more than any other single member of his party, during the late session of Congress, to show that it is not impossible for a man to act with a Congressional majority and yet to keep his self-respect and the respect of honest men.—New York World, Democratic.

Wade Hampton is not the only South Carolinian whom Democrats ought to shut up. Mr. B. F. Perry, who was Provisional Governor of the State under Andrew Johnson, has written a letter to a citizen of that State, which is printed in the Green-ville News. The following is a fair specimen:

"Every true Democrat and every honorable man should rise up in the majesty of his strength and swear on the altar of his country and God that this (Republican success) shall not be, let the consequences be what they will. The poor miserable unprincipled white man who tries to restore the Radical party to power in South Carolina, should be socially ostracised, and not even spoken to on the streets. He should be treated as an enemy to his race.
