ALEX. McCLEURE has recently visited and interviewed Jefferson Davis at his beautiful home in Mississippi. The reason why we call it beautiful is the fact that his dwelling stands in a forest of green trees, and a profusion of vines and flowers. His interviewer describes him as the same positive man in all his convictions and purposes that made him the leader of a causeless rebellion. He well understands that he cast the die for empire or for failure that must make him an alien to his country and the world, and that he lost, and he knows he is to-day the most powerless of all men in the land to retrieve the fortunes of those who followed him to bereavement and sacrifice. He reads aright the inexorable judgment that makes him excommunicated for the confederacy, while his equally guilty subordinates have been welcomed to the fatted calf. His interviewer says Mr. Davis gave him a cordial welcome to the proverbial hospitality of the south. He confesses that he was disappointed in the general appearance of the man who stands in history as a soldier and statesman without a country. I expected to find the strongly marked traces of a grievously disappointed life and a severe civil and studied reticence in discussing all things of the past; but those who believe Mr. Davis to be misanthropic in temperament, and embittered against the nation and world, greatly misjudge him. Nor is he a broken invalid, as is generally regarded. His step is elastic and steady. He discussed many mooted questions relative to the late confederacy and said the reason why Beauregard was ordered to fire on Major Anderson in Fort Sumpter after his surrender, was given solely because faith had been broken by the Lincoln administration in attempting to re-inforce Maj. Anderson, and that the South needed no war to solidify its people.

Dr. HENRY, a dentist, and Dr. Schooley at New Alexandria, Jefferson county, Ohio, quarrelled at the supper table of a boarding house. A Mr. Buckingham being present took Henry's part, when Schooley drew a revolver and put a ball into Buckingham's head, inflicting a probably fatal wound. Henry seized a shovel and beat Schooley about the head, wounding him so that he cannot recover. All are among the best citizens of Ohio.

Miss Ada Heblen, of Chicago, a young lady of engaging manners and highly esteemed by acquaintances, on Christmas eve spent the evening at a neighbor's, and was among the merriest. On the morning of the 25th she arose, breakfasted and dressed as usual. Shortly after dinner, finding herself alone in the room, she went to a drawer, took from it a pistol fired a shot into her heart, and fell dead on the carpet.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, of Chicago, a boy about 14 years old, presents one of the most remarkable cases on record, of blood sweating. The fact is well attested and has been going on at times for the past seven years. His case puzzles the physicians, who think of sending him to Edinburgh, a London for examination. At these attacks, blood flows from his mouth, nose, eyes, stomach and even from the bladder and kidneys.

THERE was an auction sale of negroes in Virginia recently that reminded the old settlers of antebellum days, when negro property was as good as cotton in the bale. The sale was conducted under the vagrant act, which is, that the labor of persons unable to take care of themselves shall be sold to the highest bidder. There were three of them and they were knocked down at $4.

GORMAN BOWERS, the young man who was so brutally and without apparent cause beaten by L. Pickard, near Omaha, died on the 25th, and an inquest was held which revealed the fact that his skull was fractured about two inches long, from which pieces of bone were taken out. No doubt this fracture was the cause of his death.

In October last twelve members of the family of Clarke were taken suddenly ill, and at odd times the children died. There were symptoms of poisoning, and every effort was made to trace the cause. A score of physicians could throw no light upon the subject and a coroner's jury returned a verdict, "Death from unknown causes."

The citizens of Georgia are very jubilant, taking the newspapers of the State for authority, over their penitentiary system, by which convicts are hired out to the politicians, and worked in chain gangs on plantations. The numbers in the gangs are increasing yearly. Some years it reaches 1500.

GRATITUDE will never be much of an impediment to the ambition of the Sherman family. Here is Tecumseh growling with a very sore head at the thought of being nominally outranked by the only man who ever trusted him with an army, while all his other superiors thought he was crazy, while John after using every big gun in Ohio as a forlorn hope to press him for a week at Chicago, as the candidate for the Presidency, coolly crowds the whole posse one side, to secure for himself the next best place he finds vacant, resorting it is claimed, to the unfair advantage that it is possible for a candidate for office to take, a threat of disrupting the party in a close state if anybody blocks his way, and forcing Garfield to hand off Foster rather than to be embarrassed by his claims to retain his place in the Cabinet if he is not made Senator.—Lincoln Journal.

LAST week a fearful railway accident occurred on the Carolina Central railroad not far from Lincoln, N. C. The entire passenger train, except the engine, went thro' the trestle work, which is fifty feet high. Mail agent David Bloom, and J. W. Goodson, a passenger, were disabled by the accident and consequently burned up in the flames, the cars being set on fire from the stoves. Full particulars could not be learned at the time of the report and it is not known how many others were disabled or killed.

A REPORTER of the Inter-Ocean the other day interviewed "Uncle Tom," the hero of Mrs. Stowe's great book, who is said to be now ninety-two years of age. His home at present is at Kell, Canada, and he is on a visit to Chicago. His story of his experiences as a slave are thrilling.

STARKS and Weaver had quite a wordy tilt the other day in the house. Members interfered and prevented blows. Members will learn in due time that Weaver is as spunky as a rat, and will not permit any one to impose upon him, even if he does rub the fur the wrong way on democrats.

The Lincoln Globe says that Senator Paddock "has no earthly chance for election." Just how the conclusion is arrived at we are not informed, but the Globe is very confident of the fact, and also that Gov. Nance "may be considered as virtually out of the race." So and so!
