INDIVIDUALS and parties in certain localities, as well as a very few newspapers of this State are disposed to harp about the election of Van Wyck from this State to the United States senate. There is very little doubt but that his election resulted from the combination of the friends of certain ambitious aspirants for the same office, when it was made manifest that they could not reach to the same exalted position as United States senator. Before the election of Mr. Van Wyck the public knew very little about his opinions and feelings in regard to the great interests of this State, but since his election he has given expression to opinions that no true friend of Nebraska can fairly and reasonably object to, be he republican, democrat or greenbacker. THE Schuyler Sun expresses the truth pretty faithfully in the followbraska senators and representatives ing paragraph. It may as well be remarked right-here that the Senator elect knows his real friends, and has, of course, a great deal more respect for an open, honest foe than a scheming, secret enemy :

General C. H. Van Wyck has been elected United States Senator to succeed Algernon S. Paddeck. Mr. Van Wyck is a gentleman of considerable public experience, of unblemished personal character, and will without doubt render as valuable service to the state as have any of his predecessors. His own campaign was honorable. His election was the result of a caucus of a caucus of the so-called anti-Paddock forces or factions. Some of these factions on the basis of land office appointments, district attorneyships, etc. The very eminent men composing them succeeded in doing just what they were most desirous of not doing-electing General Van Wyck.

A BEAUTIFUL mirage last Wednesday morning gave to the city the appearance of being in the center of a mammoth basin, the surrounding country seemingly rising with a gentle slope in every direction.
