The affair of Wednesday last was the third of a series between the same men in the last two weeks, Klanschi having twice run O'Herne, with a large knife in hand, one time when O'Herne was riding a stubborn | Am't paid, up 1st April, '81 mule that he couldn't compel to go fast, and when he was afraid that City Treas'r reports as collect-Klanschi, any moment, would plunge his knife into him. He, however, The tax collector (Co. Treas'r) escaped unburt both times.

The last time, Klanschi appeared at the line with a gun and a spade, having sent word previously by boy (so we are credibly informed) that if O'Herne drove his stock down there he would shoot him. When O'Herne did go down, he says that Klanschi pointed his gun at him. After this there is nothing positive except the condition of the men after the affray. O'Herne is unscratched, and Klanschi was fearfully pounded, particularly on the surgeon who dressed his wounds, says that there are fourteen holes in his head and face, and that his lungs has two cuts in it; his eyes were fearfully bunged up, and for several days he could neither speak nor see. The Dr. tells us that he is now considerably better.

Complaint was entered before Justice Millett of this place, by Charles Wake, April 27th, against O'Herne, churging assault and battery, and the case set for hearing May 13th at 815 a. m., it being supposed that Klanschi would not able to appear as a witness before

The Missing Polander.

Last week we gave the facts then known in regard to the disappearance of one John Keiphus, a Polander living near Humphrey. Since then additional facts have come to light that go to prove that his death | reported. was purely accidental. On Tuesday of last week, the Sheriff, acting as Coroner, taking Louis Schwarz of this place as interpreter, proceeded to hold an inquest upon the body of the dead man, which had been found in the water in Elm creek, by a son of David Murphy. We only give now such additional facts as have not heretofore been published. Brick and Starsetz, two of the Polanders who had been in company with Kiphus, testified that after walking some distance out from Platte Center, they, with Kosol, sat down to rest, lighting their pipes and asking Kiphus to stay with them, which he refused to do, but went forward along the road. This was about 9 o'clock on the night of the 25th of March, and was the last time the unfortunate man was seen alive. As he had to cross two bridges before reaching home, and as the water of Elm creek was ten to twelve feet deep, it was not strange that his neighbors should conclude that he had fallen from one of the bridges. Such appears to be the undoubted fact, for the body was found down stream about a mile and a half, without a single mark of violence upon it, well preserved, and in the clothes $19.10 in moneypaper, gold and silver. Relatives and friends had no trouble, whatever, in identifying the body as that of John Keiphus.
