REAPER TRIAL AT DERBY, ENGLAND. McCormick, as Usual, Carries Off the Royal Agricultural Society's Gold Medal at the Great Derby Reaper Trial in England - Over Thirty Com-

The Tribune learns by special cable nessage that the great Dechy trial, under the auspices of t e Royal Agricultural Society of England, of which the Prince of Wales is President, has resulted in a complete walk-away for our fellow-citizen, the Hon. C. H. Me-

There were over thirty entries at this battle of the reaper giants, including the Samuel Johnston, Walter A. Wood, etc. After the most impartial of trials for which the English Agricultural So icties are always famed, the award of the highest prize-a gold medal-was cago for the best sheaf-binding harvester. The Johnston and Samuelson machines were awarded silver medals. One little incident connected with the machine that won this great victory is on the ill-fated Brittanic that sank of the Irish coast, and lay under fifteen fathous of water for a week or more. - Chicago Tribune, Aug. 12.
