Thanksgiving Proclamation by the President. It has long been the pious custom of our people, with the closing of assassin. the year, to look back upon the blessings brought to them in the changing course of seasons and resource from whom they flow. And although at this period when the falling leaf admonishes us that the time of our sacred duty is at hand, our nation still lies in the shadow of the great bereavement and mourning which has filled our hearts, still finds us hopeful expression toward the God before whom we lately bowed in grief and supplication, ye the countless benefits which have showered upon us during the past twelve months call for our fervent gratitude, and make it fitting that we should rejoice with thankfulness that the Lord in His infinite mercy has signally favored our country and people. Peace without and prosperity within has been vouchsafed to us. No pestilence has visited our shores. The abundant privileges of freedom which our fathers left in elements of the party in the State. their wisdom are still our increasing heritage, and if in parts of the vast domain some afflictions have visited our brethren in their forest homes, yet even this calamity has been tempered in a manner sanctified by the generous compassion for the sufferers which has been called throughout our country. For all these the nation should go up to God in fervent homage.

Wherefore, I, Chester A. Arthur, recommend that all people observe rescued. the 24th day of November inst., as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, by ceasing so far as maybe from their secular labors and meeting in their several places of worship, there to join in asserting honor and praise to Almity God, whose goodness has been so manifest in our history and our lives, and offering earnest prayers that his bounties may continue to us and to our chil-

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the city of Washington, this thousand eight hundred and eighty one, and of the indethe one hundred and fifth. CHESTER A. ARTHUR.
