

Getting Married.

It is very unfortunate for many that a subject so practical and important as marriage is often spoken of as if it were a mere jocular incident in human life.

Marriage has its social side. Persons rise or fall, or are kept from falling, in a great measure by the companions for life whom they select.

Marriage has its prudential side. When the young people set out in disregard of the first principles of honest living, they lay the basis of many a bitter sorrow.

Marriage has its intellectual side. A man with a handsome face and figure, but without brains or any acquirement, makes it hard for a wife of average capacity to maintain the "looking up" attitude.

Marriage has a moral side. Harry Bell admired his "girl," but he did not respect her. There was nothing wrong about her, but he did not in his heart do honor to her principles.

Marriage has a personal side. A little high temper, a little dull moroseness, a little looseness of the tongue, a little—a very little—jealousy of disposition, may be the hand and feet of a devil.

and provoking no criticism. They are beginning as they mean to end. They will not be the "talk of the town." They will never occupy the time of a divorce court.

Some Physical Fruits of Idleness. The mind should be always occupied; it is strengthened and preserved in a healthy state by work; whereas it decays or becomes impoverished by idleness; or, what is even worse, since it is impossible to keep the brain absolutely at rest, its powers should be profitably employed, or they react on the system, and give rise to the numberless ailments, physical, mental, and moral, known as hysteria.

Striker Stowe's Way. Striker Stowe was a tall, powerful Scotchman, whose position as "Boss Striker" at the steel works made him generally known.

The knowing ones smiled, and said, "Wait a bit. Wait until hot weather—until July. When he gets as dry as a gravel-pit he will give in. He can't help it."

Night Life of Young Men. One night often destroys a whole life. Night is sin's harvesting time. More sin and crime are committed in one night than in all the days of the week.

Commissioners' Proceedings. TUESDAY, NOV. 15th, 1881. Board of Commissioners met as per adjournment, on Tuesday, November 15th, 1881.

THE DIGNITY OF HOUSEKEEPING. Where is there any station higher than the ordering of the house? While the husband has to vex himself with outward matters, while he has wealth to gather and secure, while perhaps he takes part in the administration of the State, and everywhere depends on circumstances; ruling nothing, I may say, while he conceives that he is ruling much; compelled to be but politic where he would willingly be reasonable, to dissemble where he would be open, to be false where he would be upright; while thus, for the sake of an object which he never reaches, he must every moment sacrifice the first of objects, harmony with himself—a reasonable housewife is actually governing in the interior of her family.
