On Saturday morning Herman Hell bush, of Stearns prairie, was found dead on the prairie near Mathis's bridge, being first discovered by Fred Loseke. Mr. Hellbush had been to Columbus the evening before with a oad of hogs and was returning home about dark, when, it is supposed, one of his horses, a vicious animal, got to kicking and entangled the lines in some way, and that in reaching out, Mr. Hellbush became so entangled in the lines that he could not extricate himself. His face showed the marks of a hoof where he had been kicked, Elm. and his clothes had on them gray hairs | Maple, from the animal. The team had gone in a circle quite a distance, and blood April 1st. and clothes were scattered all around. The accident occurred on Jno. Loseke's farm. Mr. H. was about twenty years years old, and the son of Henry Hellbush. The Coroner, A. Heintz, held an inquest Saturday, and the jurors, A. Mathis, Jno. Kumpf, C. Zeiter, Jno. Loseke, G. Rope Machine.

Mr. Jno. Harris has received notice of the allowance of a patent on his rope machine. The allowance was made on the second of Feb. He writes that he will soon be ready to start the stock company proposed by him, and model of which did excellent work. We hope that some of our citizens who have the necessary means to back the enterprise, will take an interest in it. If we could have here a manufactutory that would do half so well as this machine gives promise of doing, it would add greatly to the business of the city. We want all we can get of those industries that add to the value of our lands by using here, at good prices, the product of the lands, and by the sale of manufactured articles, brings money here from a distance. Those not in business can scarcely imagine the large amount of rope that is used in the western country, and the promise of Mr. Harris's machine is such that it ought to be manufactured rapidly and sold at lower prices than now, with large profit to the manufacturer The JOURNAL purposes in this matter as in all others, to labor on the theory that every judicious addition to our manufacturing force helps to
