TARIFF AND TAX.

Speech of Senator Van Wyck Against the Tariff-and-Tax Commission Bill.

(Congressional Record, March 28.(The senate, as in committee of the whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 22) to provide for the appointment of a commission to investigate the question of the tariff and internal revenue laws. Mr. Van Wyck-Mr. President have not sought the floor this time for the purpose of making a speech upon the tariff bill, but rather of suomitting a few suggestions as to the necessity and propriety of a commission to examine and determine that matter which properly belongs to the congress of the United States itself to do Delegating the duties of congress to a commission cannot be defended. It has already been extended too far seldom producing any practical or beneficial results, and at large expenditures of money. When a perplexing matter, or one where it is desired to avoid responsibility, is introduced, the strategy of statesmenship at once resolves a commission. The occasion for creating may pass away, but the commission itself always clings with fearful tenacity to the purse strings. So when an interest or locality seems to need either aid or sympathy this is a healing panacea.

Take the case of the bug commis sion. In the dealing of Providence commission, without adding anything to relieve the calamity, for a long time thereafter continued. So the yellow fever came. Immediately a day, at an annual expense of $100,000. Congress was asked to exercise what power it possessed to regulate, control, or prohibit the liquor traffic. This being a troublesome intrusion the question is shirked, and to get rid of the annoyance a commission is suggested, which takes the whole subject out of congress and effectually buries it. If that was not the object of the projectors it will be the result. Does any one suppose, after that commission has journeyed for one year mode of exercising any power it may possess over the subject?

So a large majority of this nation are asking not only for a modification but reduction of tariff rates to revenue purposes. They do not believe that high tariff, that an additional tax reduces the price to the consumer. They do not believe that a tariff tax of for neglect of duty. The senator from Ohio insists upon immediate action. The proposed commission cannot report within one year; in the mean time these tariff rates go on, and another three million is not only lost but fraudulently taken from the revennes in the item of sugar alone. The senator was evidently more surprised than he expressed at the decision of the supreme court on the sugar problem. His experience should have demonstrated to him that the supreme court ever since the days of Dred Scott decision are entertaining the nation with frequent surprises; some of them with less reason, less justice, and, possibly, more serious results than this on the mode of determining the color or value of sugar. Gentlemen desire a commission to save congress from itself and protect the people from its blunders. But what tribunal or remedy is proposed to protect the people from the sureme court. A law is enacted. the department executes it; while doing so, ascertaining that frauds against the revenue are deliberately planned and really consummated, applies the means to prevent them, and in fact This law designates color as the indication of the value of sugar, what is known to the work as the Dutch standard. The foreign manufacturers combine to defraud, and by lime, molasses, and other devices to make not the Dutch standard, but an imitation. A fraudulent imitation because done with the criminal intent to deceive, to be used only for this nation, and for the open and notorious purpose of defrauding its revenues. And it really ceases to be the Dutch standard of color. Under protest the importers pay the duty required by the department, about three millions of dollars. This large sum is repaid to them by the consumers in the retail price of the sugar. Then the importers go to the courts to recover back the millions which the consumers, not they, had paid into the treasury. The court greets them with the pleasing announcement that no matter though the color of the sugar in its manufacture was fraudulently debased in color as an imitation of the Dutch standard, and done with the avowed notice of his intention to make final at one o'clock in the afterneon of said object to defraud the revenues, yet the department had no right to use clerk of the District Court of Platte to throughout the country and expended science, to use chemical tests, to use the $10,000 provided, a single new an instrument to demonstrate that Alois Kosch, Homestead No. 6675. the $10,000 provided, a single new an instrument to demonstrate that day, April 20, 1882, viz:
