Nebraska State Farmers' Alli-

We think that every republican in this state who feels an interest in the success of the principles which that party advocate, should especially take notice and investigate the contents of a circular recently issued from the secretary's office of Nebraska State Farmers' Alliance at Melroy, and signed .by E. P. Ingersoll, president, J. Burrows, secretary, and H. C. Bigelow, chairman executive committee. This circular speaks out plainly what the State Alliance wants upon the subject of political action by local alliances. Last year was not regarded so important, as only local officers were to be elected, and it was thought inexpedient to risk independent movements save in counties where the alliance was exceptionally strong, but this year a United States senator and a full state ticket are to be elected: and the circular claims that the A MAN by the name of Griffith was alliances throughout the State are much more fully organized, and it is essential that men devoted to the principles of the alliance should be as he was wanted in David City to placed in every elective office. The circular recommends, where the alliance is strong in the county, to take independent action and alliance tickets should, in every case, be nominated. The circular also suggests that where they hold the balance of power it should be so handled through the primaries and nominating conventions as to secure alliance men to all the important offices. But should the alliance fail to secure proper nominations, then they are recommended to bolt the ticket.

Every county that has three allicounty alliance at once.

No one connected with the republican party in this State need misunderstand what the State Alliance recommends to its political followers, and neither should such duliness take nossession of the party as not to comprehend that in the action of the alliance there is more or less danger insignificant that you have nothing to Van Wyck, under an arrangement

It is expected that instruction as to the manner of introducing and using the course will be given in all the teachers' institutes held this coming summer so that it may be put into practical operation at the beginning of next year's work.

This move on the part of Superindent Jones commends itself to al thoughtful persons. That invaluable element of success, system, in every branch of trade or work of any description, has its essential place in educational labor as well, and the grand possibilities which lie in our common schools and are yet to be achieved can never be attained until the importance of working for the accomplishment of certain definite ends is realized Anyone acquainted with the ordinary hap-hazard manner of conducting country schools must know that the abominable practice of dingdonging over the same work, term after term, can not result in anything beneficial and the time is almost as much as squandered. We hope to see the new system speedily adopted and are satisfied that it will produce gratifying results when once thoroughly tried.—Lincoln Journal.

A Suggestion.

All arrangements for the management of political affairs in the Third District remain yet to be made. There is no provision by law or any established precedent by which an organization may be effected, and as everything yet remains to be done and the fall elections are not many months in the future, the Tribune suggests that the chairman of the various county central committees in this district assemble at an early date and make all the preliminary provisions for the Republican convention. This plan commends itself from the fact that the committee would be composed of a sufficient number—the whole number being 32 and a majority 17-and a class of men to whom the business could be safely entrusted-this being the most expedient manner of securing almost a direct expression of the people. The important questions to be settled by this self-constituted committee would be about as follows: First, the time of holding the con-City that ex-Senator Paddock will receive the appointment of Commis-Second, the place of holding it. sioner of Indian affairs.
