A Tea Talk. Doubtless there are few of us all but might mend our ways with profit to ourselves and our fellows.

The power which tea has to steady and exhilarate the nerves is not an imaginary one, but can be easily demonstrated by drinking a cup of strong and clear on retiring to rest.

It will be a pleasant sense of rest diffused through all the limbs, but the brain will be actively awake and clear-headed.

The thrifty householder has his chest of tools and keeps his house, his out-of-door life, his garden, his lawns, his walks, his lawns, his walks, his lawns, his walks.

The wear of our bodies can be best withstood by attention to what we are doing, and by the use of stimulants, drugs, overwork, worry, and providing everything necessary to comfort.

A Recent French Conquest in Cochinchina. The Tunisian game is being repeated by France in a quarter of the globe so distant as to attract but little attention.

When a lady's arm is not a lady's arm? When it is a little bare (baw). "The trouble and worry and wear and tear that comes from hating people makes hating unprofitable."

It is really very little use teaching a future grand man penmanship. When he gets to man's estate he is sure to write as if he were drawing a design for a coat of arms.

The Washington Monument. The approval by the President of the act for another appropriation for the Washington Monument has infused energy among the contractors and bosses having charge of its erection.

As soon as the fund available, proposals for bids will be issued by the engineer. In the meantime Superintendent P. H. McLaughlin is busy in erecting the iron work in the dome of the shaft, a force of twelve men having been put on only two days ago.

In about ten days the masons will be employed in putting the marble blocks in position. The superintendent is confident of adding seven-and-a-half feet to its present height before the new appropriation is expended, and thus reaching an altitude of 325 feet.

The summit of the shaft in its present unadorned condition is forty-five feet square, the walls being seven feet thick. At the base the monument is fifty-five feet square, thus decreasing in its upward course at the rate of one-quarter of an inch per foot.

The memorial blocks which were stored away during the thirty years the work was suspended, have been brought out and are ready to be put in position. Between forty and fifty stones have been put in the walls, and in passing up and down in the elevator, are studied to an advantage by the aid of a lamp.

Some of these have been mutilated by vandals. The most seriously defaced one is that which was presented by the Temple of the Sun, and is a large block of granite, and is a relic from the Grecian Archipelago, sent as a tribute from the islands of Paros and Naxos.

Italy's Start for Independence. There never was such a century as the nineteenth for looking back kindly on the past and commemorating events which can in some way be linked with the present.

Even the gloomy massacre at Palermo, the Sicilian revolt, and the war of 1848, and has been dug out of the congenial obscurity of remote history to be the occasion of a national fête.

Palermo was the happy city where the Italian began to adopt the republican form of government, and the war of 1848, and has been dug out of the congenial obscurity of remote history to be the occasion of a national fête.
