It was my privilege, during the last days of his strangely prosperous career, to see a good deal of the late Mr. Thomas Carlyle. "True Thomas," as he was affectionately called by those to whom he was so many a grim truth.

HOME, FARM AND GARDEN.

—Salt hay is perhaps the very best food for stock in the winter. It is made by salting hay with salt water, either by the finger or a piece of linen. —For tooth-ache put a piece of butter on some cotton and apply it. This suggestion from the correspondent of the Rural New Yorker is worth a trial at least.

—To remove stains from cups or other articles of tableware or marbled or other articles that are difficult to clean, wash them with a solution of salutarin, either with the finger or a piece of linen. —Pinching vines back simply increases their fruitfulness, since it causes them to throw out many more side shoots. With melons, the yield may by this means be increased to one hundred barrels or more per acre. —Chicago Tribune.

—If the bars of your wire gridiron are too far apart too hold oysters, you can remedy the matter by getting two pieces of the wire netting fast at hard-core stores or fish shops. Have them cut to the length of the gridiron, and place the oysters on one and cover them with the other, and place between the double gridiron.

—Mr. O. S. Bliss tells the New York Tribune that he believes the most profitable slaked lime will check any tendency to rot in potatoes. He has for several years sprinkled a small quantity of such lime over the tops of the potatoes, and the result has been a marked increase in the yield. —The lime is not to be used in the soil, but on the surface of the plants.

—A mixture of twenty parts of hard soap, forty parts of kerosene, and one part of salarol has been found to be a very effective remedy for the rust of the orange tree. It is applied to the leaves of the tree, and the rust is destroyed. —The mixture is made by dissolving the soap in the kerosene, and then adding the salarol.

—The utility of birds in agriculture, particularly the utility of certain species of birds, has been the subject of much discussion for many years. It is now generally admitted that the birds are of great value to the farmer, and that the farmer should take care to protect them.

—The variety of opinions held by different persons concerning the real value of the English sparrow brought to this country, has been the subject of much discussion. It is now generally admitted that the sparrow is of great value to the farmer, and that the farmer should take care to protect them.
