Why is it that the tail of comet always point from the sun, when in his vicinity, and increase in volume icans at Vera Cruz. One hundred as they approach him, and then decrease as they recede? And why approach him head foremost, and recede from him tail foremost?

Dr. Lardner says, "It seems that there is a very subtle atmosphere surrounding the sun to a great distance, for comets are retarded in their velocity as they approach the sun, as though they were wading through some such "Doc." No other man, to my knowledge, has ever tried to give a reason for this, so I will give what I am satisfied is a correct solution of it.

At that time the planet Jupiter's moons had got collected (in their orbits) all or most of them on the same side of Jupiter, and, had not this comet been sent in between him and them, they would have collided and all life on them been extinguished

Then, at that time, our solar system needed the intervention of its regulative nature to save our solar system from the same calamity; for comets d. $960; sw 1/4 and w 1/4 se 1/4, 35, 19, are nothing but nebulae of small 4 w, 240 acres. particles of anti-matter, (fire) and while it is between any two bodies of matter such as suns or suns and d, $160; se 1/4 nw 1/4, 35, 19, 4 w, 40 planets, their former attractions are actually turned into repulsion.
