might say. Now, I don't think this farmers' alliance is a very good thing, that is as an independent political party. Of course it is all right for us to join together to protect ourselves against anything that we can make right by joining together.

But I think there are a good many acres. reasons why we can't do any good, in Platte county, by going into a farmers' alliance political party.

One reason is that most of the alliance men come from the republican party; as I understand it there are very few democrats that ever leave their party for anything, at least it is said by people who are posted that they always vote with their party, and if they do join the alliance it is only for a trick or dodge to get the republicans to go into the alliance and make the republican party weak at election time. Didn't it look like that last fall when most of the democrat alliance men voted the democratic

Of course there were some alliance democrats who had joined the alli ance party, that the democratic leaders could not force into such an act of treachery, and that voted the alliance ticket; but last fall's election figures show that there were not very many | Chas. D. Smith to Henry Strong.

And another thing; there are about eleven hundred democratic voters in Platte county to about seven or eight hundred republican voters, and if the alliance gets the most of its members from the republican party, what good does it do us to leave the republican 20, 1w, 400 acres. party? We should be breaking up the republican party without making a new party that can ever elect a single man. Now, isn't that true?

But what good would it do, even if the alliance should take in the whole August Helb, w. d. $550; lot 2 blk 60. republican party of Platte county, if there are any tricksters in it, it would not make them any better to change from republican to alliance. I tell you, alliance men, there is far more monopoly in the democrats than there is in the republicans.
