wedding, Mrs. Harmon called to see that I would make for the church fair. I replied, with a feeling of discouragement, that I would do what I could, mentally resolving not to worry or tax myself too severely even if I did nothing for it.
I knew many a faithful wife and mother will say, the theory and arguments in favor of occasional relaxation from a certain round of duties is all proper and well enough for those who can do their own work, but for those convenience, but my work would never be done if I failed to employ every wakeful moment, and I should hardly dare declare my mistake. But need the work be done that day? Is there not too often an unwholesome ambition urging us on rather than a real necessity?One day, soon after my evening of
