this resolution was unanimously car-somebody to show what kind of an "understanding" this was, and the parties to the "understanding." The job work, is one of those things that is hard to find out, except upon one theory, and we leave our Platte county readers to infer what that theory is, which they can do as well as we can. When the Board asked for proposals to do the newspaper work only, and refused to consider the job work, it was very natural to infer that they meant to have the job work bid on separately. There being three job offices in the city, and only two newspapers, we expected (?) to see more lively bidding for the job work, but lo and behold!-there was an "understanding," it seems. Suppose bids had been asked, for the construction of bridges, and some weeks after the contract was let, the successful bidder should come and say, "It was my understanding that I should have the construction of all the culverts rates," there would be just as much propriety in letting him do the work, as there was in this matter of job tion resting upon two whereases.
