A DESTRUCTIVE incendiary fire occurred the other night at Wahoo, Neb., and is claimed to be the fourth of the sort there within the last ten weeks. The fire was started in Stewart's skating rink, very close to the business center of the town. Before the fire could be got under control it consumed the Stewart building, Lubker's hotel, Frank Deane's law office, the commission house of Baldwin and Rand; J. W. Thomas, living over this building, lost all his household goods. Other families living over Manner's store lost all their goods, but the fire companies and citizens subdued the flames before the Manners store was consumed.

An accident occurred to the east-bound Cannon Ball train running between Denver and Kansas City Tuesday night, the 17th inst, about 9:30 o'clock which is supposed to be the work of train wreckers. The accident took place near Hubel, Neb., at an embankment some thirty feet high, a displaced rail causing the engine to fly the track, followed by the entire train. Fortunately only about thirty passengers were aboard the train, and of this number about twenty were more or less injured, some very seriously, but none fatally so. The displaced rail was found to have been attached to a barbed wire and four men were seen running away from near the place of accident, which is pretty conclusive evidence that the wreck was the work of human hands for whom hanging would be a light punishment.
