To me this little waif, lving there alone and in such a state, was 20 most painful sight in the whole hospital, and I do not mind confessing-why should I?-that for a moment I had to bite my lips pretty hard, and choke down something that would have been very malapropos in a person viewing the cases in quite a professional capacity. In this ward I had a chat with one of the sisters, a bright, bonny woman, whose very presence must have been of, one would think, as much efficacy as the physic. After my chat I was conducted up a large staircase to see the six new cases which had come in and been put to bed. They were all girls, and all in mates of the orphan school here: one ot two of them seemed to be in pain, convulsively lifting their arms and drawing and in addition to twenty-five up their legs. The other day a dog which was following a carriage turned aside and ran into a vard on Park street. He might have expected to pick up a fall and winter stock of bones, but in this he was disappointed. He was about turning away when a dog owned in the house flew out and rushed upon him in the most reckless manner, and in the course of ten seconds there was a bite-as-bitecan contest of the fiercest description. A woman considerably past the prime of life came out of the house as the dogs rolled around, picked up a club lying on the grass near by, and seemed about to enter the struggle. She raised the club two or three times, but let it fall as oft, and finally stood an interested spectator He could talk of nothing else, and beg-
