The lesson of patriotism now learned, would then become practical. Not only in San Francisco, but throughout the State was the reception, one grand ovation.

At San Jose the citizens had countiful feast provided, and tables spread for five thousand to eat at one Everything that could be thought of almost in the meat, fruit and pastry line, was on the tables. These tables were all filled, first and partly the second time.

This is but a sample of the recep tions at Santa Cruz, Oakland, Sacramento, and other places. Of course, peaches, apricots, apples, nectarines, all varieties of grapes, plums, pears, etc., etc., abounded, while the boys who wished to taste the various kinds of California wines, had no trouble in finding opportunity.

The torch-light procession of the second day, was comparatively failure, for the reason that one of the dense fogs, of almost daily occurrence in San Francisco, prevailed. The brightest sky rockets seemed but s small speck of fire. The banquet of the third night was one of the fines that quite a panic had been created at ever served. The bills of fare (to say Blair, Neb., by the announcement nothing of the fare itself), cost $2.75 each. They were faced with satin. with silver plated mounted souvenirs. Of course these were retained by the boys as mementoes of the "twentieth National Encampment." It is hardly possible that any we mean that a majority of candi- place, in the future, can ever as royally entertain the boys, as they have been in California this time.
