He will be secured from the Mexican authorities and brought back to Nebraska, to receive his legal deserts.

Mon. G. W. Dorsey.

Some time since Congressman Dorsey cast a vote that has been the subject of considerable comment in some of the newspapers and otherwise.

There is too much readiness to believe charges against public officials, and why it is that men of common sense and honesty who would not believe a charge of mean conduct against a good neighbor, will believe such a thing readily against the same neighbor in the discharge of a public duty, is hard to tell, but the fact remains, while the truth is that honesty is the rule and dishonesty the exception; fealty to his fellow-citizens who supported him for office and whose interests as well as those of his political opponents are alike temporarily in his keeping, is the guiding motive of the office-holder; he desires, more than anything else, to "make a good record," to stand well with his constituents, to be known and recognized by his fellow-citizens, as worthy of the trust confided in him.

To get back to our knitting: many who read the criticisms upon Mr. Dorsey's vote wondered why he should support a rebel claim for damages, assuming that he had done so.

Mr. D. Anderson of this place wrote to Mr. Dorsey concerning the matter, and received the following reply, which will serve to stop the "bad talk" until Mr. Dorsey finishes copies of the bill for publication:

"HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES U. S. WASHINGTON, D. C. January 12th, 1887.

FRIEND ANDERSON:—I did not vote for aid to any rebel institution. I did vote to authorize the Quartermaster General to settle with the McMeniville & Manchester Road, which was owned, operated and controlled by Union men, and to allow them a credit on a judgment the government holds against the Co.

I will in a day or two send the state papers copies of bill, reports etc., that will explain fully and to your satisfaction I am sure. I am opposed to and will vote against all rebel claims.

Yours,
GEO. W. E. DORSEY."

The Battle On.
The voting on U. S. Senator begins at noon to-day, (Tuesday.) Nobody expects an election by this vote or the next. About Thursday, we predict, the elements will begin to be in commotion.

It is just as evident now as it was when the campaign for nominating state senators and legislators began, that the party machines are not so constructed as to grind out votes for the people's favorite, Charles H. Van Wyck. Party drivers of the Democratic persuasion are endeavoring to hold votes from Van Wyck, by urging Democrats who were elected as being favorable to him, to violate their honorable pledges and be headed into party fields for a monopoly Democrat first, or a monopoly Republican second.

Party drivers of the Republican persuasion are no less strenuous to defeat Van Wyck, and are bringing every consideration, good and bad, to bear upon Republican members elected by a constituency strongly favorable to Senator Van Wyck's return, to turn traitor to their constituents.

The people have done their duty, or attempted it; if any man thinks he can disregard their plainly-spoken will, or do it violence without exciting their just wrath, he reckons wrongly.

Senator Van Wyck's general course in the U. S. Senate has been such as to attract the favorable attention of patriotic citizens in every part of the Union. He deserves to be re-elected. The State of Nebraska will be honored by his re-election, and the senator or representative who votes against him and defeats his return will hear from the people of this commonwealth in no uncertain language.

Another Instance.
Every once in a while some fellow says, "if you don't get favorable rates of transportation from the railroads, you have the privilege of going a foot or hiring an ox team," all oblivious of the fact that, like the Sabbath, railroads are made for man, and not man made for railroads.

If rates were reasonably low, there are thousands of things that could be accomplished which are now utterly impracticable. If the government, in some manner, could assume the ownership of the roads and run them at a nominal rate to cover cost, there would be a revolution in transportation matters that would be greatly to the interests of the public.

The Schuyler Herald gives the following instance of how to present legal system works. It is only one more of the innumerable processes that have gone before:

"Smith & Fuller bought the engine formerly used by the creamery, to place in their elevator at Leigh. After loading it on a car for shipment it was learned that the U. P. were going to charge them forty cents a hundred for taking it to Fremont. And if the other road fixed their prices in proportion to the distance necessary for them to haul it to its destination, the entire cost would foot up about $1.25 per hundred. The engine was unloaded and hauled across the country for fifteen cents per hundred."

Washington Letter.
(FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 11, 1886.

During the past week there was a creditable amount of legislation by Congress and an unusual amount of speech-making and debate. Several regular appropriation bills were pushed through the House, dozens of private pension bills were passed, among them one giving Mrs. Logan $2,000 a year, the public buildings bill came up for attention, and also that relating to a reorganization of the navy. In the Senate, secret sessions were devoted to the Mexican Reciprocity treaty, and open sessions to the long lingering question of Inter-State Commerce, with its long haul, short haul and other prominent features.

The recent publication in a New York paper announcing that the Pacific railroads had been bribing congressmen in a wholesale fashion, naturally attracted some attention on Capitol Hill, and emphatic denials were heard on every side. Said one member who had served in the Forty-fourth, Fifth, Eighth, and Ninth Congresses, "There has been less lobbying in the present Congress than in any of the others, and if it should be proven that any member has accepted bribes as claimed in that report, he would, of course, be expelled."

The President's message to the Senate on his re-appointment of Mr. Matthews, the colored Recorder of Deeds, from Albany, has not had the effect he expected. Mr. Cleveland did not think the citizens of the District of Columbia would protest against the confirmation of this appointment a second time. But they are more determined now that this stranger shall not stay than they were at first. Colored people, North and South, without regard to politics, are working in behalf of Matthews. Senators have received appeals from colored societies and prominent colored men. They seem to have lost sight of political considerations in the belief that the Senate rejected Mr. Matthews because of his color.

It is impossible to say now what may be done in this Congress towards Revenue Reform, but it is quite certain that the Republicans and the Randall men are nearing an agreement and maturing a raid on the internal revenue, which will probably be made this week. Their aim will be to remove the tax on tobacco, alcohol used in the arts, and fruit brandies, whether any attempt be made to alter the tariff or not.

The Democrats have repeatedly proven that they can do nothing of themselves. They lack both harmony and leadership. Said one of them yesterday, "we haven't time to fool away on tariff matters, reduction of revenue can wait." Said another, a few moments later, "The one thing that cannot wait is the reduction of the surplus by a repeal of tariff."

Presidential aspirants like Carlisle, Morrison and Randall, have sacrificed opportunities for reducing taxation, it would seem, to prevent the elevation of one of themselves above the other. They have certainly acted in such a way as to convince the people that they will prevent any legislation which they cannot have all their own way.

With a resolution urging the repeal of internal revenue taxation, strong resolutions in favor of the Blair Educational bill have been introduced in the North Carolina Legislature. The fact seems to have been overlooked that if the Blair bill is passed, there will be no need to worry about the treasury surplus. If education, coast defense, the new navy, and other things were attended to on the liberal scale proposed, reduction would follow expeditiously, without touching the whiskey and tobacco tax.

It looks as if there would be a temperance experiment in this city sooner or later. Great effort has been made to keep prohibition out of Washington, but it is thought useless to try much longer. Congress dictates to the District of Columbia, and these days the petition boxes of the Senate and House are crowded with memorials on the subject of temperance. And from the little canvassing that has been attempted among members of both branches of Congress, it is thought a large majority are now ready to vote in favor of a stringent prohibitory law for this little square of the public domain.

The Washington Permanent Exposition project is now being agitated by a Congressional committee, and the subject of Public Printer Benedict's confirmation by the Senate is being agitated by some members of the Typographical Union. The Public Printer, under the act creating the position, must be a practical printer and binder, and be able to demonstrate his fitness and capacity. This it is said the present incumbent cannot do, and if he cannot, he will not get through the Senate, if vigorous protests will do any good.

Angliomiasia has died out entirely in Washington. The real Duke of Sutherland spent all last week at one of the best hotels here, and nobody called to see him. He was so certain that the social world of the Capitol would want to lionize him by storm, that he took the unnecessary precaution of saying he would decline to receive any cards. He is the same nobleman who went to a wedding at the house of Hon. John Bigelow, in New York, attired in a rusty, checked morning suit, under the impression that "it doesn't make any difference what one wears in America, you know."

At Portsmouth, O., occurred a fire the other night which burned several stores and an old man.

Testimony from the Seaboard.

I have been suffering with rheumatism for about twenty-five years. I am now forty-two years old. My pains were so great that I have been confined to my bed for eight to ten months at a time, and two years ago I was in bed nineteen months perfectly helpless, being afflicted all over. At that time, having tried every known remedy before, I commenced the use of Swift's Specific. I used about two dozen bottles. My health and vigor were restored; I can walk and ride as well as when a boy. My business is such that I keep me on my feet about fourteen hours during the day, but I go through without any inconvenience. I can cheerfully recommend S. S. F. to those who suffer with rheumatism.
