

The Commercial Appeal

VOL. XVIII.—NO. 1.

COLUMBUS, NEB., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27, 1887.

WHOLE NO. 885.

COLUMBUS

STATE BANK.

Cash Capital - $75,000.

LEANDER GERRARD, Pres't.
GEO. W. HULST, Vice Pres't.
JULIUS A. REED,
R. H. HENRY,
J. E. FANKER, Cashier.

Bank of Deposit, Discount and Exchange.

Collections Promptly Made on all Points.

Pay Interest on Time Deposits.

COLUMBUS

Savings Bank,

LOAN & TRUST COMPANY.

Capital Stock, $100,000.

OFFICERS:
A. ANDERSON, Pres't.
O. W. SHELDON, Vice Pres't.
O. T. ROSEN, Treas'r.
ROBERT UHLIO, Sec'y.

Will receive time deposits on $100 and any amount upwards, and will pay the customary rate of interest.

Will particularly draw your attention to our facilities for making loans on real estate, at the lowest rate of interest.

City, School and County Bonds, and individual securities are bought.

FOR THE WESTERN COTTAGE ORGAN

A. & M. TURNER

Travelling Salesman.

SCHAFFROTH & PLATH,

CHALLENGE

WIND MILLS,

AND PUMPS.

McCoy's Mower, combined, Self Binder, wire or twine.

Pumps Repaired on short notice.

HENRY GASS,

UNDERTAKER!

COFFINS AND METALLIC CASES

AND DEALER IN Furniture, Chairs, Bedsteads, Bureaus, Tables, Safes, Lounges, &c. Picture Frames and Mouldings.

Repairing of all kinds of Upholstered Goods.

PATENTS

Obtain and sell all other business in the U. S. Patent Office attended to by HOBBS & CO. We advise you to register your name and make NO mistake in the Patent Office. We advise you to register your name and make NO mistake in the Patent Office. We advise you to register your name and make NO mistake in the Patent Office.

One Day.

The empty house is sad, and dark, and still, but by the show and of the fair, green hills are a soothing glow. I was born glow. And sitting back, I was born glow. The grand sun-setting—ah, we loved it so. When, in its light, we saw the sun set. We met and kissed one day.

THE RED STAR.

When I found myself stranded, so to speak, in the heart of Yucatan I was rather pleased than otherwise. I had been writing up the quaint old ruins of that strange land for a New York paper, and had received a letter requesting me to visit San Pablo for future instructions. San Pablo interested me. It was a sleepy old Spanish village, with a big cathedral, a plaza with the usual collection of adobe houses around it, and a background of snow-capped mountains rising boldly from a landscape of torrid summer heat.

TEACHING A ZULU.

The missionary Herold a short time ago, just before the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Zulu mission. That reminds me, writes a clergyman to the Springfield Republican, that I became a missionary to the Zulus in 1837. At one time, some years ago, and during that fifty years I have often had some of the occurrences of our first visit to Dingan, the chief, run through my mind. As he had no interest in the Zulus, he was almost unapproachable. He thought himself the greatest king in the world. Indeed, he was the greatest chief of all south Africa. He asked us if we had ever seen a large house as his, and to illustrate the truth of his idea asked us to stand on our feet and see if we could touch the roof with our hand.

MISSING LINKS.

A young lady is driving a cab in Berlin. She has three ordinary fares, because she sits by the side of her employer while she drives him.

CONGRESSMEN DEFENDED.

Gen. Logan, having spent nearly his whole mature life in the service of his country, has died poor. He has left but little property, and that not productive.

How He Slept.

A recent medical writer says: "Sleep wherever you can, anywhere when you get a chance; the great secret of life is sleep." This is not always safe advice to follow, as a friend of ours knows to his sorrow. He was recently afflicted with a cold, and to cure himself it resorted to the remedy of putting his feet in hot water and drinking a tumbler of strong whisky toddy, prescribed by an aged and respected friend of the family. Having got everything in order for carrying out the prescription, he sat down by the fire, his feet immersed in warm water, and a tumbler of smoking toddy by his side. In this condition a sense of enjoyment stole over him as he sipped the exhilarating liquid, and he fell asleep. His wife had gone to bed, and on awakening about 3 o'clock in the morning wondered why she was alone. Going downstairs she was horrified to find her legs long asleep in his chair, the fire out, his feet still immersed in the water, over which a cake of ice was forming, and an empty tumbler on the chair beside him. His cold isn't a bit better.

Women's Names.

It is curious how difficult it is to tell truly what a woman's name is. It is as puzzling as her age, for instance. Recently in England a woman died and left a sum of money to "my cousin, Harriet Cloak." As it happened, however, she had a cousin who had married Harriet Cloak before marriage, but had married someone with another name; and she had also a cousin named Cloak, who had married a girl named Harriet, so that she had become Harriet Cloak. Therefore when it came to deciding who was "my cousin, Harriet Cloak," the first judge who tried the case decided that it was the blood relation, Harriet Cloak, but the court to which the case was appealed decided the other way—that it was the Harriet Cloak of the present date.

Stonewall Jackson's Way.

It was customary for the corps of cadets to devote several weeks each spring to artillery drill. Gen. Jackson commanding the drill. We had four-gun battery; the carriage and caissons were trim and light; the pieces six pounds caliber. The cadets managed them by hand with ease and dexterity. One day a cadet at the gun, whose name I forbear to mention, but came off as Maj. Jackson, and when he thought he was unobserved, the major's back being turned toward the cadets, he took a brickbat at the major's head. The major did not notice the cowardly act. The next morning, when Maj. Jackson was coming to his class-room, he had to pass immediately under the archway of the barracks. The same cadet sought to gratify his base, cowardly nature by throwing a brickbat down upon him from the window of a room on the fourth story.

Homeopaths.

Homeopaths are a class of people who believe in the power of small doses of medicine to cure diseases. They are often called "water-curers" because they use so much water in their remedies. They are a very peculiar class of people, and their methods are often very strange.

The same answers, delivered in the very voice and manner of the first double.

Seeing the alcalde's embarrassment, I went to him and suggested that he imprison both men until the matter could be looked into.

MISSING LINKS.

A young lady is driving a cab in Berlin. She has three ordinary fares, because she sits by the side of her employer while she drives him.

CONGRESSMEN DEFENDED.

Gen. Logan, having spent nearly his whole mature life in the service of his country, has died poor. He has left but little property, and that not productive.

How He Slept.

A recent medical writer says: "Sleep wherever you can, anywhere when you get a chance; the great secret of life is sleep." This is not always safe advice to follow, as a friend of ours knows to his sorrow. He was recently afflicted with a cold, and to cure himself it resorted to the remedy of putting his feet in hot water and drinking a tumbler of strong whisky toddy, prescribed by an aged and respected friend of the family. Having got everything in order for carrying out the prescription, he sat down by the fire, his feet immersed in warm water, and a tumbler of smoking toddy by his side. In this condition a sense of enjoyment stole over him as he sipped the exhilarating liquid, and he fell asleep. His wife had gone to bed, and on awakening about 3 o'clock in the morning wondered why she was alone. Going downstairs she was horrified to find her legs long asleep in his chair, the fire out, his feet still immersed in the water, over which a cake of ice was forming, and an empty tumbler on the chair beside him. His cold isn't a bit better.

Women's Names.

It is curious how difficult it is to tell truly what a woman's name is. It is as puzzling as her age, for instance. Recently in England a woman died and left a sum of money to "my cousin, Harriet Cloak." As it happened, however, she had a cousin who had married Harriet Cloak before marriage, but had married someone with another name; and she had also a cousin named Cloak, who had married a girl named Harriet, so that she had become Harriet Cloak. Therefore when it came to deciding who was "my cousin, Harriet Cloak," the first judge who tried the case decided that it was the blood relation, Harriet Cloak, but the court to which the case was appealed decided the other way—that it was the Harriet Cloak of the present date.

Stonewall Jackson's Way.

It was customary for the corps of cadets to devote several weeks each spring to artillery drill. Gen. Jackson commanding the drill. We had four-gun battery; the carriage and caissons were trim and light; the pieces six pounds caliber. The cadets managed them by hand with ease and dexterity. One day a cadet at the gun, whose name I forbear to mention, but came off as Maj. Jackson, and when he thought he was unobserved, the major's back being turned toward the cadets, he took a brickbat at the major's head. The major did not notice the cowardly act. The next morning, when Maj. Jackson was coming to his class-room, he had to pass immediately under the archway of the barracks. The same cadet sought to gratify his base, cowardly nature by throwing a brickbat down upon him from the window of a room on the fourth story.

Homeopaths.

Homeopaths are a class of people who believe in the power of small doses of medicine to cure diseases. They are often called "water-curers" because they use so much water in their remedies. They are a very peculiar class of people, and their methods are often very strange.

The same answers, delivered in the very voice and manner of the first double.

Seeing the alcalde's embarrassment, I went to him and suggested that he imprison both men until the matter could be looked into.

MISSING LINKS.

A young lady is driving a cab in Berlin. She has three ordinary fares, because she sits by the side of her employer while she drives him.

CONGRESSMEN DEFENDED.

Gen. Logan, having spent nearly his whole mature life in the service of his country, has died poor. He has left but little property, and that not productive.

How He Slept.

A recent medical writer says: "Sleep wherever you can, anywhere when you get a chance; the great secret of life is sleep." This is not always safe advice to follow, as a friend of ours knows to his sorrow. He was recently afflicted with a cold, and to cure himself it resorted to the remedy of putting his feet in hot water and drinking a tumbler of strong whisky toddy, prescribed by an aged and respected friend of the family. Having got everything in order for carrying out the prescription, he sat down by the fire, his feet immersed in warm water, and a tumbler of smoking toddy by his side. In this condition a sense of enjoyment stole over him as he sipped the exhilarating liquid, and he fell asleep. His wife had gone to bed, and on awakening about 3 o'clock in the morning wondered why she was alone. Going downstairs she was horrified to find her legs long asleep in his chair, the fire out, his feet still immersed in the water, over which a cake of ice was forming, and an empty tumbler on the chair beside him. His cold isn't a bit better.

Women's Names.

It is curious how difficult it is to tell truly what a woman's name is. It is as puzzling as her age, for instance. Recently in England a woman died and left a sum of money to "my cousin, Harriet Cloak." As it happened, however, she had a cousin who had married Harriet Cloak before marriage, but had married someone with another name; and she had also a cousin named Cloak, who had married a girl named Harriet, so that she had become Harriet Cloak. Therefore when it came to deciding who was "my cousin, Harriet Cloak," the first judge who tried the case decided that it was the blood relation, Harriet Cloak, but the court to which the case was appealed decided the other way—that it was the Harriet Cloak of the present date.

Stonewall Jackson's Way.

It was customary for the corps of cadets to devote several weeks each spring to artillery drill. Gen. Jackson commanding the drill. We had four-gun battery; the carriage and caissons were trim and light; the pieces six pounds caliber. The cadets managed them by hand with ease and dexterity. One day a cadet at the gun, whose name I forbear to mention, but came off as Maj. Jackson, and when he thought he was unobserved, the major's back being turned toward the cadets, he took a brickbat at the major's head. The major did not notice the cowardly act. The next morning, when Maj. Jackson was coming to his class-room, he had to pass immediately under the archway of the barracks. The same cadet sought to gratify his base, cowardly nature by throwing a brickbat down upon him from the window of a room on the fourth story.

Homeopaths.

Homeopaths are a class of people who believe in the power of small doses of medicine to cure diseases. They are often called "water-curers" because they use so much water in their remedies. They are a very peculiar class of people, and their methods are often very strange.

The same answers, delivered in the very voice and manner of the first double.

Seeing the alcalde's embarrassment, I went to him and suggested that he imprison both men until the matter could be looked into.

MISSING LINKS.

A young lady is driving a cab in Berlin. She has three ordinary fares, because she sits by the side of her employer while she drives him.

CONGRESSMEN DEFENDED.

Gen. Logan, having spent nearly his whole mature life in the service of his country, has died poor. He has left but little property, and that not productive.

How He Slept.

A recent medical writer says: "Sleep wherever you can, anywhere when you get a chance; the great secret of life is sleep." This is not always safe advice to follow, as a friend of ours knows to his sorrow. He was recently afflicted with a cold, and to cure himself it resorted to the remedy of putting his feet in hot water and drinking a tumbler of strong whisky toddy, prescribed by an aged and respected friend of the family. Having got everything in order for carrying out the prescription, he sat down by the fire, his feet immersed in warm water, and a tumbler of smoking toddy by his side. In this condition a sense of enjoyment stole over him as he sipped the exhilarating liquid, and he fell asleep. His wife had gone to bed, and on awakening about 3 o'clock in the morning wondered why she was alone. Going downstairs she was horrified to find her legs long asleep in his chair, the fire out, his feet still immersed in the water, over which a cake of ice was forming, and an empty tumbler on the chair beside him. His cold isn't a bit better.

Women's Names.

It is curious how difficult it is to tell truly what a woman's name is. It is as puzzling as her age, for instance. Recently in England a woman died and left a sum of money to "my cousin, Harriet Cloak." As it happened, however, she had a cousin who had married Harriet Cloak before marriage, but had married someone with another name; and she had also a cousin named Cloak, who had married a girl named Harriet, so that she had become Harriet Cloak. Therefore when it came to deciding who was "my cousin, Harriet Cloak," the first judge who tried the case decided that it was the blood relation, Harriet Cloak, but the court to which the case was appealed decided the other way—that it was the Harriet Cloak of the present date.

Stonewall Jackson's Way.

It was customary for the corps of cadets to devote several weeks each spring to artillery drill. Gen. Jackson commanding the drill. We had four-gun battery; the carriage and caissons were trim and light; the pieces six pounds caliber. The cadets managed them by hand with ease and dexterity. One day a cadet at the gun, whose name I forbear to mention, but came off as Maj. Jackson, and when he thought he was unobserved, the major's back being turned toward the cadets, he took a brickbat at the major's head. The major did not notice the cowardly act. The next morning, when Maj. Jackson was coming to his class-room, he had to pass immediately under the archway of the barracks. The same cadet sought to gratify his base, cowardly nature by throwing a brickbat down upon him from the window of a room on the fourth story.

Homeopaths.

Homeopaths are a class of people who believe in the power of small doses of medicine to cure diseases. They are often called "water-curers" because they use so much water in their remedies. They are a very peculiar class of people, and their methods are often very strange.

The same answers, delivered in the very voice and manner of the first double.

Seeing the alcalde's embarrassment, I went to him and suggested that he imprison both men until the matter could be looked into.

MISSING LINKS.

A young lady is driving a cab in Berlin. She has three ordinary fares, because she sits by the side of her employer while she drives him.

CONGRESSMEN DEFENDED.

Gen. Logan, having spent nearly his whole mature life in the service of his country, has died poor. He has left but little property, and that not productive.

How He Slept.

A recent medical writer says: "Sleep wherever you can, anywhere when you get a chance; the great secret of life is sleep." This is not always safe advice to follow, as a friend of ours knows to his sorrow. He was recently afflicted with a cold, and to cure himself it resorted to the remedy of putting his feet in hot water and drinking a tumbler of strong whisky toddy, prescribed by an aged and respected friend of the family. Having got everything in order for carrying out the prescription, he sat down by the fire, his feet immersed in warm water, and a tumbler of smoking toddy by his side. In this condition a sense of enjoyment stole over him as he sipped the exhilarating liquid, and he fell asleep. His wife had gone to bed, and on awakening about 3 o'clock in the morning wondered why she was alone. Going downstairs she was horrified to find her legs long asleep in his chair, the fire out, his feet still immersed in the water, over which a cake of ice was forming, and an empty tumbler on the chair beside him. His cold isn't a bit better.

Women's Names.

It is curious how difficult it is to tell truly what a woman's name is. It is as puzzling as her age, for instance. Recently in England a woman died and left a sum of money to "my cousin, Harriet Cloak." As it happened, however, she had a cousin who had married Harriet Cloak before marriage, but had married someone with another name; and she had also a cousin named Cloak, who had married a girl named Harriet, so that she had become Harriet Cloak. Therefore when it came to deciding who was "my cousin, Harriet Cloak," the first judge who tried the case decided that it was the blood relation, Harriet Cloak, but the court to which the case was appealed decided the other way—that it was the Harriet Cloak of the present date.

Stonewall Jackson's Way.

It was customary for the corps of cadets to devote several weeks each spring to artillery drill. Gen. Jackson commanding the drill. We had four-gun battery; the carriage and caissons were trim and light; the pieces six pounds caliber. The cadets managed them by hand with ease and dexterity. One day a cadet at the gun, whose name I forbear to mention, but came off as Maj. Jackson, and when he thought he was unobserved, the major's back being turned toward the cadets, he took a brickbat at the major's head. The major did not notice the cowardly act. The next morning, when Maj. Jackson was coming to his class-room, he had to pass immediately under the archway of the barracks. The same cadet sought to gratify his base, cowardly nature by throwing a brickbat down upon him from the window of a room on the fourth story.

Homeopaths.

Homeopaths are a class of people who believe in the power of small doses of medicine to cure diseases. They are often called "water-curers" because they use so much water in their remedies. They are a very peculiar class of people, and their methods are often very strange.

The same answers, delivered in the very voice and manner of the first double.

Seeing the alcalde's embarrassment, I went to him and suggested that he imprison both men until the matter could be looked into.

MISSING LINKS.

A young lady is driving a cab in Berlin. She has three ordinary fares, because she sits by the side of her employer while she drives him.

CONGRESSMEN DEFENDED.

Gen. Logan, having spent nearly his whole mature life in the service of his country, has died poor. He has left but little property, and that not productive.

How He Slept.

A recent medical writer says: "Sleep wherever you can, anywhere when you get a chance; the great secret of life is sleep." This is not always safe advice to follow, as a friend of ours knows to his sorrow. He was recently afflicted with a cold, and to cure himself it resorted to the remedy of putting his feet in hot water and drinking a tumbler of strong whisky toddy, prescribed by an aged and respected friend of the family. Having got everything in order for carrying out the prescription, he sat down by the fire, his feet immersed in warm water, and a tumbler of smoking toddy by his side. In this condition a sense of enjoyment stole over him as he sipped the exhilarating liquid, and he fell asleep. His wife had gone to bed, and on awakening about 3 o'clock in the morning wondered why she was alone. Going downstairs she was horrified to find her legs long asleep in his chair, the fire out, his feet still immersed in the water, over which a cake of ice was forming, and an empty tumbler on the chair beside him. His cold isn't a bit better.

Women's Names.

It is curious how difficult it is to tell truly what a woman's name is. It is as puzzling as her age, for instance. Recently in England a woman died and left a sum of money to "my cousin, Harriet Cloak." As it happened, however, she had a cousin who had married Harriet Cloak before marriage, but had married someone with another name; and she had also a cousin named Cloak, who had married a girl named Harriet, so that she had become Harriet Cloak. Therefore when it came to deciding who was "my cousin, Harriet Cloak," the first judge who tried the case decided that it was the blood relation, Harriet Cloak, but the court to which the case was appealed decided the other way—that it was the Harriet Cloak of the present date.

Stonewall Jackson's Way.

It was customary for the corps of cadets to devote several weeks each spring to artillery drill. Gen. Jackson commanding the drill. We had four-gun battery; the carriage and caissons were trim and light; the pieces six pounds caliber. The cadets managed them by hand with ease and dexterity. One day a cadet at the gun, whose name I forbear to mention, but came off as Maj. Jackson, and when he thought he was unobserved, the major's back being turned toward the cadets, he took a brickbat at the major's head. The major did not notice the cowardly act. The next morning, when Maj. Jackson was coming to his class-room, he had to pass immediately under the archway of the barracks. The same cadet sought to gratify his base, cowardly nature by throwing a brickbat down upon him from the window of a room on the fourth story.

Homeopaths.

Homeopaths are a class of people who believe in the power of small doses of medicine to cure diseases. They are often called "water-curers" because they use so much water in their remedies. They are a very peculiar class of people, and their methods are often very strange.

THE FIRST

National Bank!

—HAS AN—

And the largest Paid in Cash Capital of any bank in this part of the State.

Authorized Capital of $250,000, A Surplus Fund of - $20,000.

Deposits received and interest paid on time deposits.

Drafts on the principal cities in this country and Europe bought and sold.

Collections and all other business given prompt and careful attention.

OFFICERS:
A. ANDERSON, Pres't.
HERMAN P. O'NEILL, Cashier.
O. T. ROSEN, Treas'r.
J. E. FANKER, Vice Pres't.
J. P. BROWN, J. H. GARDNER, J. S. HULL, J. W. MALLISTER, J. W. WELCH, G. ANDERSON, ROBERT UHLIO, CARL REINKE.

Business Cards.

D. T. MARTY, M. D. F. J. SCROO, M. D.

DR. HARTY & SCROO.

U. S. Examining Surgeons.

Local Surgeons, Union Pacific, O. & N. R. R. and H. & M. R. R.

Consultation in German and English. Telephone at office and residence.

Office on Olive street, next to Broadstreet. J. W. Jewell Store.

COLUMBUS, NEBRASKA.

HAMILTON HEADS, M. D.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.

Plate Court, Nebraska.

W. M. CORNELIUS.

LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE.

Upstairs East building, 11th street.

SULLIVAN & REEBER.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

Office over First National Bank, Columbus, Nebraska.

C. D. EVANS, M. D.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.

227 Office and rooms, Clark building, 11th street. Telephone communication.

M. CALLESTER, M. D.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

Office upstairs in Henry's building, corner of Olive and 11th streets. W. A. Scallister, Notary Public.

J. T. EUSTON.

COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Parties desiring surveying can address me at Columbus, Neb., or call at my office, Court House.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS.

W. H. Tedrow, Co. Sup't.

I will be at my office in the Court House, on the third Saturday of each month for the examination of teachers.

D. E. CHAN, M. D.

DEUTSCHER ARZT.

Columbus, Nebraska.

Office 11th Street, Consultation in English, French and German.

JOHN G. HIGGINS, C. J. GARLOW.

HIGGINS & GARLOW.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

Specialty made of Collections by C. J. Garlow.

F. F. RUNNER, M. D.

HOMOEOPATHIST.

Chronic Diseases and Diseases of Children a Specialty.

Office on Olive street, three doors north of First National Bank.

F. M. RUNNER.

11th St., opposite Lindell Hotel.

Sells Harmon, Eddies, Collars, White, Blankets, Curry Combs, Brushes, Trunks, Valises, Luggage, Toys, Caskets, Carriage Trimmings, &c., at the lowest possible prices. Repairs promptly attended to.

J. M. MACFARLAND.

ATTORNEY AND NOTARY PUBLIC.

LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE.

J. M. MACFARLAND.

Columbus, Nebraska.