with Mr. Flemming, Mr. Nichols and at John L. Taylor's, (brother of the Taylor Bros, of this place) Sunday week he was at John Taylor's staying until Tuesday morning. Between 8 and 9 he went to Ira Nichols's and left there about noon. They wanted him to re main for dinner, but he said he was going to Columbus. In the yard he met his daughter Myrtle, talked with her little while, and told her he was going to his place. This seems to be the last time he was seen alive, friends there supposing he had come to Columbus to visit the family of Lewis C. Taylor and writing him to look after him. Receiving the letter and knowing that Mr. E. had not been in Columbus, he supposed something was wrong, and went to Creston to see. The result was that the body was found Friday evening at 7.25, suspended in the barn on his farm, by a clothes line tied to the rafters.
