WILLIAM MCGARRELL, the missing Chicago bootler, has been recently seen on the Omaha side.

MISS ROSE CLEVELAND, the President's sister, will take the vice principalship of a Fifth avenue private school in New York at its fall opening in September.

THESHIP Faith of Oma, has been lost in a cyclone in Java waters. The entire crew, numbering twenty-five, perished.

CITIZENS of California are discussing the question of dividing the state, and forming the new state out of southern California.

THE inter-state commerce commission has decided that mileage tickets are not to all purchasers.

A COVERED wagon was run into the other morning by a train on the Pennsylvania road at Ridgewood station, Pa., and four persons killed.

A CYCLOPE in the bay of Bengal struck the steamer Sir John Lawrence and she sank, carrying with her eight hundred passengers down to death.

A LARGO, six-story, brick building occupied by W. E. Steele & Co. at Minneapolis, was destroyed by fire the other night. The losses will not fall below $50,000.

LATE advices from Sicily to London say that fugitives from Catania are spreading chaos throughout the island. Business is at a standstill everywhere in the island.

LORENZO KERO, of Chicago, was found guilty by the jury of poisoning his niece, Lucy Middleton. The jury fixed the strange punishment at eighteen years in the penitentiary.

SIR JOHN HAMILTON, at Washington, has received a telegram from Surgeon Gutierrez, dated Key West, July 28, saying that there had been 173 cases of yellow fever and forty-one deaths to date.

LAST week there were several hundred storms and rains in various places in New York state, and much damage done to property by lightning and floods and a number of persons seriously injured by electric bolts.

THE Republican State Convention of Ohio, in session at Toledo on the 25th ult., renominated Foraker for governor by acclamation. The convention unanimously endorsed John Sherman as their candidate for president.

A COLLISION occurred the other day on the Grandford branch, near Hopkiss, Ill., on the Alton road, between a construction train and a freight train which resulted in the death of ten men recovered and eight more reported in the rains.

WILFORD WOODRUFF, now president of the twelve apostles, since the death of President Taylor, is about seventy-five years old, yet is said to be vigorous and in possession of all his faculties. He is an educated man, a forcible speaker and a historian of the church.

P. P. CLEMENT, president of the Citizens' Savings bank at Leavenworth, Kas., was charged the other morning with being a defaulter in a large amount and had absconded, created great excitement among the citizens. The bank had already closed its doors.

THE St. Louis delegation headed by the mayor of the city called upon President Cleveland one day last week and presented their invitation in person. The president accepted in these words, "I don't feel now that I can do otherwise than accept your invitation."

Laura Home, a young girl at Leavenworth, Ind., has been missing from her home for some time, and O. Shaw, a young man whom the parents objected to her daughter going with, was arrested the other day charged with abducting her.

Healthy Hogs. The problem of successful farming in Nebraska is readily solved with good corn crops and a healthy line of hogs. So far as the corn is concerned, Nebraska farmers have been reasonably successful; with more attention to the selection of best varieties for seed and a good deal better dressing of manure given to the land to be planted to corn, we think the corn part of the problem will be well under way towards a satisfactory solution.

But the hogs need more attention than has ever yet been given them, and they need it all along the line. Nebraska can take a lot of healthy hogs and fatten them for the market, as well as do anywhere, and she probably manages the hog industry as well as is done elsewhere, but she can do far better, and doubtless will do so. Among the points of improvement, in the opinion of the JOURNAL, are less breeding in and in, larger and better pastures, with good, fresh, clean well water readily accessible, cleanly sleeping quarters, and greater variety of feed. Generation after generation of hogs raised on corn and water, with an occasional bucket of slop, will not do. Every few years some ailment strikes the hogs and sweeps them off, and takes all, or a considerable portion of the profits of the farm for the year.

If this can be wholly or measurably prevented, it is wise to do so. In conversation with H. Ellis of this vicinity, we learned from him that he had used for years a certain recipe as a preventive of hog cholera, and had never lost any from so-called hog cholera. He obtained the recipe from the St. James Journal of A. C. Moore, Canton, Fulton county, Ill. Mr. M. is the noted dealer in hogs, has used the recipe for more than thirty years, and has never lost by hog cholera. A gentleman of this city, who has dealt largely in hogs, got his recipe several years ago, when his herd began to die off, from cholera, began its use at once, and had no more deaths there or since from the disease, and he keeps the mixture on hand all the time.

We give, below, the recipe as furnished us by Mr. Ellis, and hope that these of our readers engaged in the business of raising hogs, may save money by its use.

1 bushel wood shavings, small pieces; 3 bushels wood chaff; 1 bushel slack lime; 1 bushel salt; 2 lbs. Spanish brown; 5 lbs. sulphur; 1 lb. saltpetre; 1 lb. pepper.

Pulverize the last two thoroughly, mix all in a bin, box or barrel and keep in an open trough, where the hogs can have free access to it, and keep well moistened with good swill or milk. If your herd is not large or you lack a sufficient amount of some of the ingredients, mix smaller amounts of each in the same proportion; aim to keep these articles on hand all the time, and do not neglect their use. They contain certain chemical elements, which are wanting in every hog predisposed to disease. You will soon observe, by careful watching, that the animal which looks the worst, and with which, as you say, there seems to be something the matter, is the one that will call on you to fill the trough the oftener, and that will usually visit it either as it goes or returns from feed.

Two cents a mile. The important thing, of course, in the national discussion, is the retention of freight rates to a proper basis, on which all interests can flourish. The total sum expended for freight is far beyond that paid for passenger fare, but there are not so many intricacies appear upon the surface when considering the adjustment of the passenger rates, and every one, almost, is inclined to think himself capable of forming a just judgment on the tendency right along has been toward reduction. From ten to five, to four, to three, we have seen, and now there is talk that two is enough, and so, we reckon, it is. Of course there will be loss in carrying passengers, but nobody, inside or outside railroad circles, believes that two cents a mile is that little.

Of all the arguments advanced to convince the railroads that it would be to their interest to reduce the rate to two cents some strikes us so forcibly as that the increased travel will bring more than enough extra profit to make up the deduction of one cent a mile from the now usual three-cent rate.

The railroads are undoubtedly convinced that the people are now earnest in their endeavors to grasp for justice, and their methods are simply those of a man who pushes the day of judgment as far away as possible; the dilatory plea is all that they are making just now, and it is about all that is left for them. They know they are losing the general public, except in so far as they succeed in employing the people's official servants to betray the trusts of their constituents, and do the will of the railroads; but even this species of railroad engineering is becoming so well known that hereafter it certainly cannot be so successful as heretofore. Even the politician must now look to the people for preferment. The bootlickers are taking a back seat and some of them are being pushed pretty far back, even into the penitentiary. The man who reaps illicit private gains from public enterprises is being looked upon as a dangerous member of society, not to be encouraged. What has been done in the closet is being heralded from the housetop, and as business methods take the place of corruption; as fair dealing with all, supplants discrimination in favor of a few, the railroads can well afford to come down to two cents a mile.

THE Hiawatha (Kansas) Democrat is a democratic paper, and publishes the following paragraph; if it be true, it is an argument with millions in it for a more stringent regulation of the liquor traffic: "One reason that Kansas towns are enjoying such a boom and spending so much money in improvements, is that before prohibition she sent out more than $27,000,000 for liquors; last year she sent out but $7,000,000. The difference is used at home, and the results are seen every day."

GEORGE GRIFFITH, living near Amsterdam, N. Y., owns a vicious dog that chased a hen under a piazza; Griffith crawled under in pursuit when the dog turned upon him grabbing him by the neck, and before he could be relieved, the brute had severed two arteries in his neck. The wounds caused paralysis to set in, and Griffith is reported in a critical condition.

JOHN TAYLOR, president of the Mormon church, died at Salt Lake, Utah, on the evening of July 25th. He was born in Westwoodland county, England, November 1, 1808 which made him nearly 79 years old. In 1838 Joseph Smith had a "revelation," naming Taylor and others for members of the quorum of twelve apostles to fill vacancies. It is said that Taylor was one of the earliest and firmest adherents of polygamy.

D. R. ANTHONY, editor of the Times at Leavenworth, Kas., published a scurrilous article denouncing Bond, and calling him among other names a skunk. Bond met Anthony the other day while driving along the street, and demanded a retraction which was refused, and a wordy war ensued; while this was going on Bond grabbed Anthony's buggy whip and administered several smart cuffs across Anthony's head and shoulders. Bond was arrested.

The State Republican convention of Ohio declares in favor of a protective tariff to secure to American citizens the privilege of supplying every article which can be produced as well in the United States as other countries, and sufficiently to supply American wants. Such a tariff makes a demand for give employment to all the labor of American citizens, and thereby aids in securing just compensation for labor.

The Rev. T. A. West is charged with murdering Miss Susie Beck, with whom he eloped not long ago by the use of arsenic which has been found in her liver. The police of Chesterton, Ind., have sent out a circular for his arrest, containing a picture of the accused and a description of his person, which will be sent to every police station in the United States and Canada.

The death of two little sons of Joseph Cox, aged ten and twelve years, occurred near Sherwood post office in Smith county, Kas., one day last week. Their father had sent the boys to the pasture for the cows. When found, one of the cows, with a boy on each side of her, were lying on the ground all dead. Probably all killed by the same flash of lightning.

ALBERT JONES, a car cleaner, found the other night behind the heater in a postal car at the Grand Central depot, New York, six official envelopes containing checks from New York banks, aggregating $6,000. The pouch in which the letters came from Albany contained a number of money packages which were not distributed.

PERRY EAGY and his brother were in bathing the other morning in Burdwood creek, not far from Benkelman. He got into deep water, cried for help and his brother and a man near by did all they could, but still he drowned. He was about eight years old. His body was afterwards found in water fifteen feet deep.

The ex-confederate reunion will be held at Mexico, Mo., September 14. Major Newman of Randolph county and Capt. Henry Gilbur, of St. Louis, and Capt. O. F. Guthrie, of St. Louis, committee on arrangements were in that city the other day making arrangements for that event.

A FREIGHT train the other morning while passing over Mount Savage bridge near Cumberland, Md., on the Pittsburg division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, fell through, and several cars were thrown into the river. The engineer and driver were instantly killed, and one brakeman seriously injured.

An accident occurred the other day to the Philadelphia and Chicago express on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, caused by a misplaced switch. The express ran into a freight train standing on the sidetrack at York, killing the engineer and fireman of the express and seriously injuring the engineer of the freight.

Two pleasure yachts both filled with people, were capsized in a squall off Yorkmouth on the 28th ult., and ten persons drowned.

NEBRASKA NOTES.

Work on the street railway at Fremont, it is reported, will commence right away.

An unknown man was run over by a coal train the other morning in the B. & M. yards at Omaha and killed.

Somebody is trying to start a vice presidential boom for Manderson, but by St. Michael it won't work. Norfolk News.

On account of increased population and size, Custer county is about to take the necessary steps to divide and make two counties.

The Omaha Republican makes a guess that sixty thousand men are expected to be at the reunion to be held at Omaha September 5th to 10th.

At Nebraska City, July 29, the thermometer registered 109 in the shade, and 125 in the sun. Two slight cases of sunstroke were reported.

H. L. Weatherall, the old man hurt while adjusting the power of the plattic mill at Beatrice the other day, died on the morning of the 25th ult.

Frank Holvea, Bohemian farmer residing some eight or ten miles northwest of Tobias, was arrested one day last week on a charge of forgery.

Mrs. Hurst, wife of C. S. Hurst, of Plumb Creek was frightened to death during a storm of severe lightning and gusts of wind, one night last week.

Henry Brueggeman, the German editor who assaulted and whipped his rival, J. D. Klutche, on last Thursday at Lincoln, was fined $20 and costs in the police court.

S. D. Lyster and J. M. Muma have had a hearing before Judge Dundy at Omaha; Lyster was bound over to answer the charge of passing counterfeit money, and is now in jail, but Muma was discharged for want of evidence.

J. A. Stewart of Ravenna, who lost his right hand by a premature explosion, while firing the salute at that place July 4th, died on the evening of the 27th ult., of blood poisoning, resulting from the wound.

St. Joe must be greatly disappointed at his failure to obtain a packing house through the efforts of Mr. Armar, as he has determined to make his establishment so extensive at Omaha, that he cannot conduct a similar business at St. Joe.

The Blair Pilot said a short time ago that their canning factory was running on full time, putting up pease and beans. One day they put up between five and six thousand cans, and they have on an average about 225 women and girls at work in the factory every day.

The proper authorities at Lincoln and Lancaster county are about to erect a court house, for that city and county. Judging from the estimated cost it will be a magnificent building. The plans call for a $170,000 building, with a guarantee that the cost shall not exceed $190,000. Bids will be advertised for it on the 10th.

The citizens of Lincoln were excited the other evening by the exhibition on the street of Henry Brueggeman, editor of the Staats Anzeiger, horse-whipping through the street J. D. Kinetzch, editor of the Erie Press. The Erie Press had published that the Staats Anzeiger would be sold at sheriff's sale in the near future. Brueggeman was arrested and awaits a hearing.

The preliminary trial of O. H. Buchecker, the editor of the Omaha Republican, on the charge of criminal libel preferred by G. M. Hitchcock, the editor of the World, took place the other afternoon in police court in Omaha. The examination of the testimony resulted in Judge Barka binding Hitchcock over to answer in the district court in the charge, in the sum of $800, bond furnished.

Governor Thayer was tendered a grand reception in Holt county on the 28th ult., Stewart, Atkins and O'Neill meeting him at the train with bands and flags. A large crowd assembled at O'Neill. The Governor made a very appropriate speech, thanking the people and wishing them prosperity. Commander Russell, of the G. A. R., was by the Governor and was presented to the people.

The gospel army street meeting was broken up the other night in Lincoln by the police, who arrested the noisy army and put them into the cooler, on an order issued by the mayor of the city, to stop the noise created by their drums and tambourines. The arrest and imprisonment created considerable excitement among the citizens, some being for, and some against the action of the city authorities.

Thomas Martin, who a few weeks ago was arrested at Courtland, for conspiring to rob the state bank, is again in the hands of justice. He went home the other night and drove his family out of the house with an ax, followed them to the next house, where they were protected from him. He returned home and destroyed all the furniture in the house. He was soon after arrested by the marshal, and is now in jail to be dealt with according to law.

Walker & Lockwood, while putting down a drive well on the farm of M. E. Norton, on Cache creek, last Friday struck a vein which furnishes an artesian well the pressure of which is strong enough to force the water out at a rate of a barrel a minute. Mr. Norton says much is due John Otter, who he had employed to sink the well. The finding of this well is worth hundreds of dollars to Mr. Norton on his cattle ranch, "Elding Hill."

A number of persons residing in Nebraska were granted pensions the other day by the government at Washington. Their names and residence are given below: Alice J. Kelso, Phebe, Hannah D. mother of Joseph B. Wilgus, David City, Ann Cory, Tecumseh, Joseph Burt, Fairfield, William Watson, Lincoln, Aquilla W. Stanley, Minden, Henry R. Merrill, Lou Piny, Samuel Gher, Stanton, Samuel K. Guy, Wood River, William Campbell, Central City, James E. Gilmore (deceased), Phebe, Stephen K. Keyes, Cambridge, and Mexican war, David Will.

Mr. Hoags, one of the proprietors of the canning factory, is in the city looking over the plant here. He says we have by odds the best canning factory in Nebraska, and much more convenient and well arranged building than the one at Council Bluffs. He says they will operate at least one hundred to one hundred and fifty hands here during the canning season; and fully as many more next year, when provisions are made for canning tomatoes, pears, etc. There are about 800 acres of corn under cultivation, to be canned at the factory here this year, and while much of it has not been cultivated according to instructions they are very well satisfied with the outlook. Grand Island Independent.

A strange coincidence occurred the other day at Hastings. An old man by the name of McCannely expected a son to arrive from Ireland, and went to the B. & M. depot to meet his son, but instead of finding him alive, he found him in a coffin, having been killed in the wreck at St. Thomas, Ont. The corpse was buried. The old man was sad and grief stricken, and went to his bed sick. The other morning a young man who claims to be the same son arrived in Hastings. The old man McCannely was dumfounded, and not having seen him since he was two years old, he is not able to recognize him. He doesn't know which one is his son. The living one has letters and papers to prove he is the genuine son expected.

A very nice question is about to be brought up from the complaints of citizens of western Nebraska and eastern Colorado, who have erected numerous irrigation dams over the South Platte, which drain the river bed entirely dry across the line into Nebraska, diverting the natural flow of the water in the bed of the river into Nebraska, and thus preventing her citizens from the use and benefits of the water as they found it in the past. The question has properly been presented to the governor of this state and he has laid the complaint before the governor of Colorado. What further action has been taken in the matter we have not heard. If the question should prove too intricate for state sovereignty to dispose of, the parties whose interests are most deeply affected by these irritating dams, will have to present their case to the highest sovereignty in the Union. Nebraska citizens have equities involved in their complaint, but whether any rule of action can reach and dispose of them, except the laws of nature and the golden rule, is now the important question.

Quite an interesting and romantic story was published not long ago in the Omaha Bee, relating to George Ziegler and Miss Maggie E. Ithor, a handsome young woman of Georgia, Va., which is worth reading and carefully phrasing in your scrap book. The story goes on to tell that away back in Virginia young Ziegler won the girl's love of this handsome maid. How the crowded east gave the ambitious young man no chance to rise, and he determined to go the far west to carve out a home, and to do this he was forced to part with his promised bride. How the years passed and financial success crowned his efforts. And now, in the ripeness of womanhood she comes to Omaha to meet her affianced lover George Ziegler, of Arlington, which must have been a happy meeting indeed, as Judge McCullough noted them as man and wife in the holy books of wedlock on the 23d of July '95. We wish them all the blessings and joys attainable in this life, and should they ever, in the future, celebrate the event of their marriage and any member of the JOURNAL family should receive an invitation, we would be happy to attend and form the acquaintance of this noble couple.

Washington Letter. [From our regular correspondent.] Among many other peculiarities that distinguish it over all of the large cities of the United States, Washington can claim the unenviable notoriety of being the grand focus of most of the cranks of the country; they seem to drift here as naturally as water finds its level. Perhaps the poor creatures are attracted by the big stone buildings and those high in authority, but fancied grievances are doubtless the chief impelling forces, which influence them to cast their fortunes with the denizens of the Capitol. The imaginary wrongs and the impossible desires of these miserable and misguided beings assume many forms and shapes first, and most dangerous, is the wild-eyed individual of the Guinean type, we have had at least two of these to the front in the last month—one was confined in the lunatic asylum for threatening the President's life, another was no sooner dismissed from the same institution than he deliberately, and without a word of warning, numbered one of the best and oldest citizens of Washington, on a crowded street in broad daylight; and only two days since, still another crank was found kneeling on the steps of the White House and still in a hysterical manner. Other classes of cranks are the would-be inventors of perpetual motion, and of ocean ballooning, who haunt the patent office; office-seekers, and female claimants who habitually hang around the doors of the heads of departments, seeking in vain, month after month, to unburden themselves of their stories of sorrow and suffering and of hopes long cherished, but still as bright as ever. I know, that as a rule, women do not commit crimes against the person, but I often notice dark and ominous gleams in the hollow, sunken eyes of these unfortunate, behind which seem to lurk shadows of desperate deeds, and some day their diseased brains will develop the murder on a man—then was to the victims of the lunatic type.

The count of the cash in the treasury, begun about two months ago, was completed this week, and was only found short $2,400, in a bag containing gold coin, which is believed to be the result of an error when the amount was first counted; the tag showed the name of the clerk, who made the original count, and he promptly made good the deficiency. The sum is so small that the Democrats can make no political capital out of the count.

The late Republican chief clerk of the patent office having resigned, he feels free to speak of the Bason matter and explain the deficiency. He declares that the published statements have been misleading, and that the committee made an inventory of the contents of the books, but did not examine the books. The apparent discrepancy of $11,000 may be a mistake, when accounts involving $11,000,000, and covering 25,000 pages are carefully reviewed. The clerk further says "that the practice of making audits to employees of the office had existed during Bacon's entire term, and it was with the knowledge of his superiors." Secretary Lassar and Commissioner Hall have persistently refused to permit the publication of a list of the employees to whom advances were made, because the custom had been continued under Democratic Administration, and Democrats of prominence were often the beneficiaries.

The heads of the several departments and the local telephone company are having their same old dispute over the excessive rates exacted for that service in the city, and so far, the former decline to submit to the company's new scheme of equalization, which, as a matter of course, involves an increase of charges. The postmaster general, under whose direction the contract for all government telephoning is made throughout the whole country, is authorized for the announcement that the entire expense of telephoning in that country is in the sum now paid by the United States for telephoning in the District of Columbia alone.

Like Banquo's ghost, the Todd clerical scandal will not down. It will be remembered by your readers, that the reverend gentleman was lately tried in this city, by a number of his ministerial brethren, on the charge of unchastity. Rev. Dr. Sunderland, the President's pastor defending the accused—the verdict being "not proven." After the old Scotch fashion. This was unsatisfactory to the defendant—though considering himself partially vindicated, and he appeals the case. Pending this action, the people of the whole country, where Mr. Todd lives and preaches, hold an indignation meeting, produce some damaging affidavits, which they allege had been suppressed by the clerical court, and adopt resolutions denouncing Mr. Todd, as a moral leper and advising him to leave for the good of the community as well as for his own. The fallen minister is aggressive and determined, the outcome of the affair will be watched with great and general interest. There are those who say that the treatment of Mr. Todd is an outburst of sectional feeling, as he is a northern man and has a southern congregation. E.

Drunkness or the Lignor Habit Positively Cured by Administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific. It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it; it is absolutely harmless and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge; they believe they quit drinking of their own free will. IT NEVER FAILS. The system once impregnated with the Specific it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. For full particulars, address GOLDEN SPECIFIC CO., 185 RACE STREET, CINCINNATI, O. Jan 12-87.

Fairbury voted bonds the other day in aid of the Denver line of the Chicago, Kansas & Northern road. Only six votes were cast in opposition. Unequalled—Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Inverate Case of Erysipelas Cured. Gentlemen—My little daughter was sorely afflicted with erysipelas every spring and fall for eleven years, continuing for about two months each attack. It affected the whole skin surface with redness, thickening of the skin and often followed by a pustular eruption. The physicians failed to relieve or arrest it, but the case grew worse every year for eleven years. At the beginning of one of her spells I commenced the use of Swift's Specific. In a few days it brought out a profuse pustular eruption, which in a few days passed away, leaving the child perfectly well, and she has not had an attack or a symptom of the disease since, now three years ago, and has been in perfect health. Have given her a few bottles every spring and fall, and she has had no return of the disease.

I know that S. S. S. cured her, for she had it every spring and fall from the age of three years to thirteen years. She is now sixteen years old, and has not had a spell in three years. Yours truly, J. W. Duxs. Bryansville, Ky., Feb. 24, 1887. Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free. The Swift Specific Co., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

Tax-Sale Notice.
