A WONDERFUL AMUSEMENT FEDERATION. John B. Doris' Great Inter-Ocean Circus, Monster Menagerie, Museum and Elevated Stage, combined with E. D. Colvin's Grand Roman Hippodrome and Colossal New Wild West.

The coming of the above-named monster amusement enterprise is a cause of enjoyment already among our show-going readers, and we are now authorizing to state that the Great Shows, in all their combined unity, will positively exhibit at Columbus on Thursday, Sept. 15. It is safe to predict a large crowd for the circus on that day as wherever the Shows have exhibited they have been attended by tens of thousands.

Such leading papers as the Chicago Times, Cincinnati Enquirer, St. Louis Times-Democrat, Boston Globe and Herald speak in glowing terms of the Monster Unification, and say that it is the largest, best equipped, best managed and most truthful show on the road.

In connection with the Great Inter-Ocean Circus, Menagerie, Museum and Elevated Stage, will be exhibited a grand Roman Hippodrome, and a magnificent New Wild West. The stars connected with the Circus number fully 200, the riders in the Hippodrome count nearly as many, while the Wild West rodeo contains in its vast organization Indians, scouts, hunters, Indian slayers, cowboy boys, frontiersmen, and Mexican vaqueros and matadors to complete it.

One price of admission and one ordinary ticket admits to all shows. Excursion rates at very low rates are made on all railroads. Doors will open at 7 and 7 p. m., daily. The performance commences one hour later.

Pianos, Organs and Sewing Machines. In all the creations of man's genius no two are alike. For the purpose intended there are all degrees of merit, from the poorest to the best. The test of merit is actual use, and when you are to be the purchaser, it is yourself that should be satisfied, pleased, delighted with your purchase. It happens that these articles mentioned above are sold mostly by canvassing agents. Some of these canvassing agents are very fair and attend strictly to the business of showing the good qualities of their own wares, and when necessary, the actual defects of some others;—all are by no means bad;—other canvassing agents are thoroughly unscrupulous, and make such misrepresentations as they think will secure a sale of their goods. What we wish to suggest in this, we are selling pianos, organs and sewing machines. If you wish to buy either, please notify us in person or by mail, and we will place it in your house, free of any cost to you, or any obligation whatever; we will fairly set forth its merits, and, if you purchase, we will guarantee satisfaction. All warranted first-class. Don't buy until you see us or our traveling salesman, G. W. Kibler. Address, A. & M. TURNER, Columbus, Neb.

Luther Brown of Merrick county was apprised of the fact by men returning from church last Sunday evening a week ago, near Central City, of a man in the dark riding one of his farm horses, and after halting the rider found that he had no reply, and immediately went and walked Brown up, and he taking the horse's mane and sewing machine. The horse had taken the "cake" at a corn field, and when 200 yards apart the horse's mate, influenced by good "horse sense," whinnied and the mate replied. Thief and horse were secured and Jack Lisco deputy sheriff took the offender to Central City jail.

Miss Clara Anderson is quite ill—Dr. Fory is attending her. Mrs. J. M. Pierce's baby has recovered from its recent illness. Peter Walen had five hogs killed by lightning week before last. David Davis of Shell Creek dined at Palestine last Thursday. Mrs. Nels Anderson's little daughter has been quite sick for some time. Rev. Llewellyn preached at the school house on the last Sunday in August. Martha Hanchett has gone to Columbus to attend the fall term of the High School. Miss Gertrude Jones commenced the full term of school in district 62, last Monday. Herman Berndt lost a horse today, Friday, his son was plowing in the field with it when it dropped dead. Mr. Walen's large and commodious corn-crib is nearly completed. Mr. W. has very fine buildings on his farm. Hans Christensen was married last Thursday to a young lady of Omaha, by the pastor of the Danish Lutheran church. We congratulate you, neighbor Hans. Messrs. Thos. E. Pierce, cousin of J. M. Pierce, and James Lisk, of Equality, Ill., are visiting at J. M.'s, and expect to remain through the winter in this vicinity. E. A. Gorrard was expected to speak at the prohibition meeting last Friday night, but the roads were in such a condition he could not get here. We shall expect him next Friday evening, Sept. 16. We understand that during the hardest part of the rain on Thursday night the sod house of Mr. Perrson commenced to fall in and they were compelled to move themselves and goods into the new frame house, which fortunately was enclosed, or they might have been compelled to seek shelter of their neighbors. In common with all other scribblers we must say something about the storm of last week, which was the most severe we have known in Nebraska. Fences, bridges, hog-pens washed away, hay and grain stacks badly injured. Sod houses and cellars caved in, pumpkins, potatoes, cabbage and melons all that could wash out of or from the ground went on a sail to see their neighbors—in short we experienced the same as in other places where the storm raged. DANN.

An Astounding Organization. Probably the greatest amusement enterprise ever organized is the new union of Doris & Colvin's Shows. Both of these managers are well known to the showing public. Mr. John B. Doris through his successful management of his great Inter-Ocean Circus and Menagerie, and Mr. Colvin through his great Doris & Colvin's Shows will have this year consolidated, and the amount of show property thus amassed is indeed wonderful. The Great Doris & Colvin's Shows will positively exhibit at Columbus on Thursday, Sept. 15, and then will be seen an astonishing organization, consisting of a huge Three-Ring Circus, Menagerie, Museum, Theatre Stage, Grand Roman Hippodrome, and New Wild West. In the Circus proper will be found 200 all-star artists, heroes supreme from every land and clime. In the Menagerie will be found every epical beast, bird and reptile, and in the Museum wonders animate and inanimate. The colossal Roman Hippodrome en-ployes over a hundred trained equestrians and jockeys, male and female, and the New Wild West contains in its vast organization Indians, scouts, hunters, Indian slayers, cowboy boys, frontiersmen, and Mexican vaqueros and matadors to complete it.

J. PARKER & CO. domain in the west, who have made it by their efforts "blossom as the rose." But I beg leave to present to your readers another side to the question. Suppose that these agencies have done all this, does it necessarily follow that they have the right to "exploit" from the producers one-third the value they create? Certainly not; any more than in the case of an individual, in a new country, who shows the settler a nice piece of land, on which he is induced to locate; then, after he shall have cultivated the land, so that it yielded bountifully, would it be just for the party who discovered the land, to go to the farmer's bins and eribs, year after year, and appropriate one-third of his grain and produce? Have you considered that the railroad kings can raise or lower the valuation of property millions of dollars?

In 1874, the Senate of the U. S. in response to a general demand, appointed a special committee on transportation composed of William Windom, of Minnesota; John Sherman, of Ohio; Roscoe Conkling, of New York; J. Bayne West Virginia; T. M. Norwood, of Georgia; J. W. Johnson, of Virginia; John H. Mitchell, of Oregon, and S. B. Cooper, of Florida. This committee occupied the entire summer of 1874 in making an exhaustive examination of the subject, and in their report we find the following: "In the matter of transportation, there are today four men, representing four great trunk lines between Chicago and New York, who possess, and who are not unreasonably exercising powers, which the Congress of the United States would not venture to exert. They may at any time, and for any reason satisfactory to themselves, by a single stroke of the pen, reduce the value of property in this country by hundreds of millions of dollars. An additional charge of five cents per bushel, on the transportation of cereals, would have been equivalent to a tax of forty-five millions of dollars on the crop of 1874. No Congress would dare exercise so vast a power except on a necessity of the most imperative nature, and yet these gentlemen exercise it, whenever it suits their supreme will and pleasure, without explanation or apology. With the rapid and inevitable progress of combination and consolidation, these colossal organizations are daily becoming stronger and more impetuous. The day is not distant, if it has not already arrived, when it will be the duty of the statesman to inquire whether there is less danger in leaving the property and industrial interests of the people thus wholly at the mercy of a few men, who recognize no responsibility but to their stockholders, and no principle of action, but personal and corporate aggrandizement, than in adding somewhat to the power and patronage of a government directly responsible to the people, and entirely under their control."

Report of U. S. Senate Committee on Transportation routes, page 158. See Scribner's Monthly for December, 1880. Just here a few illustrations may not be out of place. Take the case of two mine owners in Arizona, who desire to send their ore to San Francisco for the purpose of fixing and smelting it. One says to the railroad company: "I want to send my ore up to Frisco. What will you charge me a ton?" "R. R. Co. "How much does it assay." "No, it is not, we want to know, in order to say how much we will charge you." "Thirty dollars per ton." "Well, we will charge you ten dollars per ton." The other fellow puts the same question to the company, and is told that he, too, must tell how much his ore assays. He replies three hundred dollars per ton. He answers, "We will charge you one hundred dollars per ton to take your ore to San Francisco, which will leave you two-thirds."

How is it with the farmer? We will suppose that Mr. Ernst, one of our most well-to-do farmers, puts one hundred and sixty acres of his best land wholly into wheat; by the aid of a good season and hard work, he is enabled to raise three thousand bushels therefrom. He contracts with a Chicago buyer to deliver it there for eighty cents per bushel. He figures that at that price, he will clear three hundred dollars over and above all expenses, freight remaining the same. Now comes the trans-portion monopoly before he loads his grain on the cars and puts up the tariff five cents per bushel between the shipping and receiving points. The result is his three hundred dollars anticipated profits are reduced one-half to one hundred and fifty dollars. Again, suppose a purchaser wanted to buy this land. At one time Mr. Ernst could truthfully have informed him that it would yield ten per cent, or three thousand dollars and was worth that sum, but on the next day only five per cent, or ten per cent, on fifteen hundred dollars, after the raising of the tariff rates. Can you see the point? Is it not plain to you now how railroads can raise or lower the valuation of property by the millions? The JOURNAL advises the farmers to hold on to their grain till next spring, that owing to the scarcity of crops in the northwest, it will bring a better price than. Suppose it does, and the railways put up the tariff, the farmers will not be benefited, but the "other fellows." It is a great mistake to suppose that the farmers are the only sufferers in such cases for whatever part of their produce the railroads get, the resident business men receive no benefit from it. It goes out of the country to swell the profits of a railroad king. The "railroad commission" of Nebraska seems to be having a little misunderstanding with some of your local roads. I am of the opinion that a commission with simply "advisory powers" is a fraud. But the people desire to be "humbugged" and such an institution will accomplish that result very effectually.
