The Columbus teachers feel a little proud just now, because they have com pared school work with other schools in the state and find that the work of our True, Omaha was there with their se lected work (and she had a splendid showing) but the regular written work of the different grades in the Omaha schools were similar to ours and not a particle better. Lincoln fell behind failed to even get a place in the race. About 200 square feet was assigned the city schools. First came the kindergarten work, with weaving of all designs and shades: perforating, drawing, embroidary, etc. On the boards under the kintergarten work was displayed the written work of this grade, consisting of slate writing, pencil writing, number the second primary kindergarten, writtable along side. By beginning at the primary grade you could follow the development of the child as he passed on to the higher grades. This was one of the marked features of the Columbus ex-The other departments followed in regular order. All kinds of school work-the regular of the schools-was displayed and it was remarked by many present that the Columbus exhibit for style, arrangement and exactness surpassed any exhibit there. The Schuyler schools had some very fine drawings, but aside from this, their work was very poor. In fancy drawing Columbus lacked; she didn't have any moulding or paper folding, but every other department was represented in full. The teachers from the city all returned to school with renewed vigor feeling that they are not behind other cities in educational matters. -Sunday evening at 9:30, when Byron Compton was going home, he was attracted by groans to a telephone pole near Julius Rasmussen's residence. Here he found a man, evidently suffering a good deal, and whose underwear had for some reason or other, become all of his wear. He was taken to the Central House, where L. G. Zinnecker talked with him, and learned something of what was the matter. He is a German has been in America about a year roaming around, and lately had received letter from home telling of the death of his mother. He had become discouraged, disheartened, and determined to commit suicide. With this intent he had gone to the Loup river, taken his onter garments, containing his money, cast them into the river, and was about to sacrifice himself as a victim of the turbulent waters, when a sudden pain in the stomach attracted him back to life. and his wanderings had brought him where he was found. He did not seem like a "tramp," was cleanly and neat in appearance. The man's name is Nicholas Zimmer and his age 24. He was taken to the Hospital and was better the Frank Moran who resides in Grant next morning.

-Last Friday the jurors from the north part of the county accepted the invitation of Mr. Shaff, teacher in the Columbus public school, to visit the school and see the written work of the scholars then on exhibition. We were greatly surprised at the extent and horoughness of the work displayed, and to demonstrate the neatness of the work done by the litte hands, we will say that during one hour's examination of the work, we did not find a single written page that bore an ink blot. The kindergarten work of the school interested us greatly, as we saw in it a great advance over the old uninteresting and unprofitable way of endeavoring to drill in the minds of small children cold practical facts. By this new system, and also this plan of written work for exhibition, the cholars have an incentive for study and thorough work that is surprising in its result, and the pride exhibited by the small children in showing the visitors to the school the work of their hands, is in itself an evidence of the value of such exercises in the school room. It was the most complete general exhibit of school work we ever saw, and we were pleased to see that the parents of the children showed interest in the work by their bulk, on hands to supply you with what you may need. 45-6 ORELEICH BROS. This is the most PRACTICAL HIGH-CUT SHOE ever invented.
It is very GENTEEL and DRESSY and gives the same protection as a boot or over-gatter. It is convenient to put on and the top can be atjusted to fit any ankle by simply moving the buttons.
