It is safe to say that wherever labor is free and enlightened the protection of interests, as distinguished from the interests of foreign merchants and manufacturers, will be the great issue of the coming campaign. The south has not yet got rid of the systems of thought generated by her former system of cheap slave labor, and while not "solid" for the non-progressive, non-American system as it used to be, still it is practically a unit for the policy that caters to English business influences, and can be so reckoned. Not until the men who labor there can intelligently take the reins in their own hands and change the course of political action can anything better be expected, but in the north, in the great west, in the states and sections where the men at the plow, the forge, the wheel know the intricacies of the labor, wage and capital problem, and where the independent spirit asserts itself at the polls, the contest of this year will be intelligently fought and won, and it will be well enough to lay aside every extraneous matter and make the victory so complete that in many long years to come, if not for all time, it will be settled that the interests of our own farmers, laborers, manufacturers, merchants and consumers, all told, are to be held first in estimation, foremost in regard.

The late victory in Oregon, regarded by an independent paper, the Portland Oregonian, as the most significant triumph ever gained by the republicans of the state, means a good deal as an indicator. Along the line thus indicated republicans everywhere should push their forces; at the end of the road lies success for the great American people, and success to the party which believes in free institutions for free men, and a fair field of work for all. Says the Oregonian: "In all parts of the state the republicans appeared at the polls with extraordinary spirit; the efforts made by the administration at Washington, through its agents and office holders to carry the state stimulated the republicans to unusual activity. In the majority of cases, too, many democrats in all parts of the state, condemning the policy of the administration on the tariff question, have voted with the republicans. From first to last in the discussion the democrats have lost and the republicans have gained. It is certain from the result that Oregon is a protection state. It may now be accepted as a fixed fact that protection of the industries and products of the state, through a tariff adjusted to secure them against foreign competition, will be maintained, so far as the votes of the people of Oregon can help to maintain it. This vote in Oregon points to a like result in all the northern states. The people of these states will not, indeed, reject of the weather has passed a comfortable day. His pulse continues strong, though irregular. His respiration more even." "It was reported on the 19th inst., from Mexico City, that the steamer, from the line of the Mexican Central. Over 300 horses are killed, many always lost. There are serious frosts on the railways between Overton and Leon. Two forty-foot spars were washed out near Trampato, the branch from Silas to Guanajuato. There are other places covered with high water. A terrible case of poisoning was unearthed last week at Philadelphia, Pa. A wife to get her children and servants "rough on rats" to John Whiting, Bertha Whiting and Willie Whiting. John died on March 25. After a long and painful illness Mrs. Whiting made confession to poisoning the children, but stated that her husband committed suicide by taking the poison. "A dispatch from Jasper, Ind., says: "Miracle of grasshoppers have appeared in many parts of southern Indiana and are devouring all vegetation as they go. They destroy meadows first, then the foliage of the trees, and next corn, oats and garden vegetables. Thousands of acres of meadow have been destroyed by them. A dispatch from St. Paul says: "Governor Millard received a telegram from Battle Creek, Ottumwa county, on the 18th, announcing the appearance of grasshoppers at that point in large numbers. This is in the same county with Peruham, the point where the grasshoppers were reported three a few days ago."

The political party whose history has been more for the hurt of the country than for its benefit, is the party of the government, as they are to be continued in power for another term. They merit defeat; they ought to be voted out of office; their methods disapproved of; their aims thwarted; and let it be done so well that they will not forget the reason why they were voted out. Those who cannot see and those who will not see are not good leaders through dangerous places. The democracy, as a consequence of the misadventure, has groped in the darkness on vital matters and gone wrong entirely on others. The American people, we think, are as a jury ready to return their verdict. One of the incidents at Chicago was a remarkable oration to Mrs. John A. Logan by the Rev. Dr. C. F. Johnson, which made a visit to the wife of Stephen P. Elkins, and as soon as it became known that Mrs. Logan was at Elkins' rooms, she was surrounded by a number of distinguished leaders as Chairman M. Depue, Thomas T. Platt, Frank H. Coakley, F. J. Jones, Joseph J. Manly and J. W. Farwell. The latter part of it followed included General Green B. Raum, J. V. Farwell, Attorney General Michael W. Reilly, United States Senators H. C. Burnett and H. A. Hoar of New Jersey, Samuel Fessenden of Connecticut, Walker and Emmons Blaine, Crocker and Kerns of St. Louis and Col. Crocker of San Francisco.

SECRETARY ESTIMOTT has given a large order for army blankets to an English manufacturer whose bid was thirty cents lower than that of his American competitors. By not paying any duty to himself the government gets the goods slightly below cost in this country. American enterprises and labor are left in the lurch, and the price of the blankets goes to the people. From this instance the people can learn the effects of "free trade." No doubt there are many who will argue that the secretary acted in the best interests of the country. Some how or other the present administration seems to be in love with Great Britain and everything that is English. "She may suit Mr. Cleveland and his cabinet, but the people do not endorse such a course."—[Hastings Gazette-Journal.] A Paris letter describes a very singular occurrence that took place at sea not long ago. Passenger in the French steamer Abbe Kader, during the passage from Marseilles to Algiers, when about two hours out, noticed that the sky became quite black with swallows, and that the air was full of them. He saw them then about 6 o'clock in the evening. The birds alighted in thousands on the sails, ropes and yards of the vessel. After looking over the situation they descended on deck, hopped about among the sailors and passengers, and eventually found their way into the cabin fore and aft. The birds were then fired out and allowed the passengers to catch and handle them. The people of the ship gave them a hearty welcome and provided them with food, which they relished greatly to enjoy, and they remained all night on the vessel, and about 7 o'clock the next morning took flight on their journey.
