THE WOMEN OF MANILA.

MANY OF THEM ARE VERY HANDSOME AND INTELLIGENT.

They are Experts at the Sewing Machine and in Making Toys—They Dress Prettily, but Do Not Lace—Many Superior Bread Makers in Manila.

Perhaps one of the most interesting studies in this part of the world is the native and the development of his racial features. Those who are given to the study of physiognomy are impressed with the intellectual superiority of the female native over the male. She shows it plainly in her face and manner, and when she speaks it is even more unmistakably apparent. As a rule the native women are more industrious, and to acquire a knowledge of languages, and make most excellent house servants. They are very expert with the needle and learn much with scarcely an effort; in fact the whole race is naturally musical, and there are probably more really excellent musical talents in Manila than in any other city of its size on the face of the earth. Nearly every district has its brass band, and each regiment of soldiers has one that would do credit to any country. That attached to the artillery regiment, and that the first prize at the last Paris exposition, and several cities in the orient have bands of natives of the Philippines who furnish the best music to be had.

EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN.

Some years ago sewing machines were introduced here and the native women very soon learned to run them as easily as any white woman. Now no well regulated household is completely equipped without a sewing machine and a native woman to run it. An excellent seamstress can be had for twenty cents a day, and nearly every European family has one the year round. Of course, they lose quite a number of days, as the church feasts are numerous and they are most diligent workers when there is a chance to go to church, so that, taking it altogether, they probably are paid for less than two-thirds of the year.

They live in their own homes—little nipa huts, with one or two rooms—and a native woman to run it. An excellent seamstress can be had for twenty cents a day, and nearly every European family has one the year round. Of course, they lose quite a number of days, as the church feasts are numerous and they are most diligent workers when there is a chance to go to church, so that, taking it altogether, they probably are paid for less than two-thirds of the year.

STREETS FULL OF BEAUTIES.

The natives are a branch of the Malay race, and more so than any other race very dark brown. They have some of the characteristics of the American Indian, among which are the high cheek bones, which, however, are not as a rule prominent in the female face. A native belle has a bright, expressive face, dark black eyes, full of animation, and a mouth that would be beautiful but for a suggestion of sensuality. Yet she is modest and drops her eyes bashfully in the presence of strangers, but has for her intimate friends a fascinating smile in the extreme. And there are many other faces among the natives; one can see them at almost any hour of the day on the streets wearing goods of various kinds, returning to or from their places of employment or peeping coyly out of the one window of a new house. Their forms are never tall nor awkward, but their forms are just as nature made them, for they are not distorted and deformed by the fashionable dress appliances of civilized life. They are ignorant of the ways of the western world, are guileless and confiding, and it is not strange, considering the class of foreigners who usually come to this far off place, that the Eurasian, or half cast element, is constantly growing.

HOW VANILLA GROWS.

Two Methods of Preparing the Pods for Market—The First.

Vanilla belongs to the orchid family and is a serotinous plant furnished with thick, oblong, glaucous green leaves. The vine sometimes attains a height of forty-five feet. It begins to bear the third year after planting and continues bearing thirty years. Each vine annually produces from forty to fifty-five capsules or seed pods, which are gathered before reaching complete maturity between April and June.

MEN WHO HATE WOMEN.

A PHYSICIAN TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE WITH MISOGYNISTS.

A Head Waiter's Flight Over His Fidelity—Frightened by the Sight of a Woman—Prohibited by Being Assailed. Strange Case of Avulsion.

"Women haters! Plenty of them!" A Journal reporter had met a well known physician in an uptown cafe and interrupted a conversation that the doctor was concluding with a friend over a cigar and a bottle of claret. He spoke easily and with confidence that he knew his subject.

THE MARRIAGE TOOK PLACE.

"Darling Bessie," said Mr. Hoover to his lady typewriter, "will you marry me? Since you have come, like a gleam of sunshine, to gladden my existence I have lived in the radiant light of your ethereal presence, and passionately—" "Please speak a little slower, Mr. Hoover," said the fair typewriter, interrupting him, while her fingers continued to fly over the keys of her machine. "Ethereal—presence—passionately—Now I am ready to proceed."

Abolishing a Business.

The railroads of Germany are under the control of the government, and it seems that the practice of giving and accepting gratuities has led to so many abuses that it has been determined to pass a law to abolish it. The law in administration has accordingly notified all employees that they will not be allowed to accept the smallest gratuity or favor of any description upon penalty of summary dismissal. Prosecution is also threatened against those who may offer gratuities to railway employees. A long suffering traveling public will rise up and call the government blessed for this putting an end to one of the most unpleasant features of continental travel. The example would certainly be followed by other railways elsewhere.—San Francisco Chronicle.

OLD AND CURIOUS COINS.

PIECES OF SCARCE KINDS OF MONEY AND THEIR FANCY PRICES.

The Goddess of Liberty in Different Positions—Coins from American States That Have Been Printed There Than That Were Current in the Days of the Census.

A cross which of late years has greatly developed and at this time shows no sign of falling off, is that of collecting rare coins. Chicago leads all western cities in the number of its numismatists and boasts some fine collections. It might be supposed that the demand would be principally for coins of great antiquity, but this is not the case. The chief inquiry is for sets of American coins, and some numbers are so rare as to readily command fancy prices. In certain years some descriptions of coins were not minted at all, while in other cases few copies were issued. Other coins are valued because of some error or peculiarity in the die; in fact, any variation from the ordinary type, if in good condition, will bring more than its face value.
