A BROOKLYN DISASTER

FALLING CHURCH WALLS CARRY DEATH TO FIVE.

A distressing calamity which should have been avoided—An Illinois Senator—A Kansas Man's Sentence Commuted—Other News Notes.

An appalling disaster occurred in Brooklyn, N. Y., on the 13th, in the height of a furious westerly gale and tremendous sea, the commander of the Yorktown made signals to the flag ship requesting permission to "leave to," which was granted. From that time the Yorktown dropped astern. The action of her commander is no more than could have been expected. The Yorktown is a comparatively light ship, carrying a very heavy battery. Thus it would have been the height of folly to have kept the vessel, with her peculiar design, running before such a heavy sea. Had one of the monstrous combs which from time to time rolled over the Atlantic and Boston's sterns ever plunged on the Yorktown's main deck it would have gutted her fore and aft. During the night and all next day the sea ran mountain high, but the Atlanta, in spite of her low draft and after parts, rode like a duck, as did also her sister ship, the Boston. Nothing could more readily convey to the mind the fury of the Atlantic than the sight of those huge cruisers tossed like the tiniest of playthings by the sea. Scudding under reefed fore and main topsails and forestay, braying the muzzles of the guns under water at every roll, it seemed incredible that their canvas would stand or that they could long continue to run before such a sea. No thought of "lying to," however, suggested itself to the mind of Admiral Walker. The Chicago rolled on and on and the two gallant frigates kept on, even if they did occasionally hide their entire fore and after parts under the green sea. On the morning of the 14th the wind lulled considerably, but before night fell it came to blow with renewed violence. At 6 a. m. on the 15th the Boston made signals that her boilers needed repairs, and the Chicago and Atlanta slowed down until the repairs were completed. Fog, heavy rain and a nasty, choppy sea were the principal features of the remainder of the voyage. A net of needles to the home of Hancock. A net of needles to the home of Hancock. OUR NAVY AFOAT.

Description by a Voyager of the Work of the United States Steamship Atlanta.

An Associated Press correspondent on board the United States steamship Atlanta, in a letter from Lisbon, describes the experience of the squadron in its trip across the Atlantic. Referring to the dropping behind of the Yorktown he says: "At 7 p. m. on the 13th, in the height of a furious westerly gale and tremendous sea, the commander of the Yorktown made signals to the flag ship requesting permission to 'leave to,' which was granted. From that time the Yorktown dropped astern. The action of her commander is no more than could have been expected. The Yorktown is a comparatively light ship, carrying a very heavy battery. A RIVER DISASTER.

Louisville Casuals Gave Down With Fatal Results.

The most appalling accident Louisville has known in many years occurred on Thursday, Jan. 11, about one hundred yards from the Kentucky shore, used in the construction of the new bridge between Louisville and Jeffersonville, suddenly gave way and the workmen employed in it were either drowned or crushed to death by the stone and timber. As the workmen at the pumping station were looking for the men in the caisson to put off in their boats on leaving for the night, they suddenly saw the low, dark structure disappear in the waves. The life saving station was immediately notified of the accident and three skiffs were manned and pulled to the scene of the wreck. The site of the bridge is at the upper end of the city, just below Tow Head island. Dozens of boats were plying about over the spot where the caisson had stood and lights danced to and fro with them, but there was no trace of the massive structure of stone and timber. It was soon known that only four of the eighteen men who were at work at the time of the accident had escaped.

SENATORIAL CONTEST.

The Montana Case Likely to Bring the Record.

The St. Louis Helms Again Abducted—John Grass Talks to the Congress—Other News of All Sorts.

The arrival of the two sets of Montana senators here will present a problem to the United States senate which that body has never before called upon to decide. There has never before been a contesting senatorial delegation, and no precedent has been established. The mode of procedure in these cases as suggested by senate leaders is that when the Montana senators arrive they will present their credentials to the President Morton. Before either set is sworn in objection will be made on account of the irregularity of the credentials. The matter will then be referred to the committee on privileges and elections, and a full and thorough investigation will be made. Nothing of the kind has ever been done before, but the senate leaders have determined upon this mode of procedure. It is possible that the matter will be referred to the whole senate for investigation, but as there will be considerable testimony to examine it is more likely that the committee will examine the cases.

NUMEROUS NEBRASKA MATTERS.

The Farmers' Alliance.

The Farmers' Alliance held a session at Grand Island. A year ago there were only forty local organizations in the state, with a membership of less than fifteen hundred. To-day nearly one hundred local alliances are scattered throughout Nebraska, with a membership aggregating 30,000, making it a strong factor in politics should it take part. Its chief grievances are the railroads and trusts that are the cause of the present and past depression in farm products, and the apportionment of legislative honors which is not outspoken in its opposition to these will not be likely to receive the support of the alliance. Every session was held with closed doors. Members of the press were unable to gain admission or get a synopsis of the work done.
