Nearly every night may be seen a gang of boys, somewhere on the streets, now here and now there, and, while we have not heard of the commission of any crime by them, we know they are being educated in a way that their parents are probably not aware of.

Washington Irving says: 'There is something noble, simple and pure in the taste for the vegetable, the fruit or the flower, shrub, vine or tree, to be known by his or her name.'

Such offspring they will watch with pride, as every month or year new beauties appear. The educational effect of such work, the aesthetic influence, the growth of mind and heart, this secured by the habit of tree planting is a grand discipline of foresight. It is planting and planning for the future.

SUGAR BEETS. An interesting meeting with substantial results. Some farmers will try beets.

Frank Postal, representing the Oxford beet sugar company at Grand Island, was in the city Saturday to confer with such farmers as might desire to try the raising of beets this season. He is a well-informed man and was ready to answer all the queries of the farmers on the subject, from the preparation of the ground to the marketing of the crop. Among matters of general interest referred to by Mr. Postal were these: Ground good for the raising of corn is good for beets. The sugar beet is of the same family as the ordinary beet, but improved with special reference to the saccharine. This special attention has increased the amount of sugar in the beet from 6 to 22 per cent. One man had raised ten tons of beets, after the plants have been thinned out, a reasonable estimate of crop and quality gives a man $25 an acre clear of all expense, besides which the part left on the ground is no insignificant fertilizer. He explained, in a very general way, the raising of the beets at the factory into 'chips,' which were soaked in water to extract the juice, the 'chips' being a product good for stock, after the fashion of the oil cake.

He said that the raising of sugar beets, rotating with other crops, was an excellent thing for the soil, as the roots went deep down and made the ground porous.

The blank contracts, which the company furnish, show all minor details, and arrangements have been made with J. N. Taylor to look after the business here.

The following have entered into contract: J. N. Taylor ten acres; A. Coffee five; J. H. Reed and Whitehall Bros. two each, and one each for Geo. Morris, G. C. Barnum, Wm. Will, John Sissle, and Craig and Ralph Turner.

If Senator Padlock's proposed measure becomes a law, the government will pay a bounty of $1 a ton for sugar beets raised.

Nebraska soil, it has been demonstrated, is very well adapted to raising sugar beets, and it promises to become one of our very greatest and best paying industries. Let everything be done to make this season's work a success. The men who own Nebraska should be getting it broke up ready for cultivation. It can be done, and at a profit, by raising flax on the soil. If the sugar beet turns out one half of what the prospect now is, that fact alone will make many a holder of Nebraska land rich in rentals. A dense population on these prairies (all the people supporting millions) will make the country a rich garden spot, the pleasant home of prosperous, happy people.

Arbor Day. Tuesday next, the 22d, is Arbor Day in Nebraska. The governor has had his say and State Superintendent of Schools Geo. B. Lane, has issued a circular calling upon officers, teachers, patrons and pupils of the public schools to make a tree-day in the morning by speeches, recitations, etc. concerning trees; in the afternoon by the practical work of planting. He adds: 'These exercises will lead our children to observe and admire our noble trees, and to realize that they are the grandest products of nature, and form the finest legacy that nature has ever given to the children of the world. Let us raise and plant trees, and let them be the noblest and most useful of our children, and let them be the noblest and most useful of our children, and let them be the noblest and most useful of our children.'
