Mr. S. Swadlow, of the firm of Tryer & Swadlow, organ builders of Chicago, a gentleman who has traveled a very great deal, says that the last Nebraska state fair was the best he ever saw.

The congressional convention for the third district convenes at the opera house, this city, this evening at 8 o'clock. The indications are that Geo. W. E. Dorsey will receive a re-nomination on the first ballot.

A valued contributor has a few words to say in today's JOURNAL in the way of encouragement to sink artesian wells. The suggestions are well worth considering by those who have the means to invest.

The old Congregational church building has finally reached its permanent destination, corner of Thirteenth and Olive streets, and we understand will be renovated with brick and used for some kind of business.

Rev. H. L. Powers of Grand Island went through the city Monday bound for the M. E. conference at Wayne, Rev. Worley of this city went yesterday evening. Conference begins this morning at 9 o'clock, Bishop Bowman, senior bishop of St. Louis, presiding.

J. F. Bixby, editor of the Genoa Leader, has been granted the position of instructor in the printing establishment soon to be established at the Indian school. Johnny understands the business in all its details and his appointment is bound to give entire satisfaction.

Twenty years ago Mike Welch carried all the mail between here and Albion on horseback, now the sacks look as though it would take a pretty good four-horse team to lug them through.

The increase in the mail is about as good an indication as there is of the increasing thrift, enterprise and business of a community.

Rev. Father Ryan had an invitation to be present Sunday last at the laying of the corner stone of the new Orphan Asylum of the Sisters of Mercy at Omaha, but couldn't find the time to leave.

The new structure will cost $100,000 or more, and will greatly add to the facilities of the Sisters for taking care of the needy and distressed.

The Chicago Wagoning Union in its issue of August made the announcement that if printers would send their addresses they in return would send something useful. An employe of this office sent his address Monday last week and Wednesday afternoon received a finely polished printer's composing rack, a nice souvenir for which the Union has his thanks.

Miss Frances E. Willard's lecture takes place Friday evening, this week, at the opera house, at 7:30. Admission free. Everybody invited. It is understood that tickets enough (reserved) have been sold to pay expenses of the hall, and through this fact, it has been reported that admission is not free, but it is. Those who do not hear Miss Willard, will doubtless miss a rare intellectual treat.

A farmer, whose name we could not remember, called at the city Monday evening, and sitting in the rear of a wagon on a best leg, in turning the corner of E. Eleventh and Olive, was thrown heavily to the ground and after making several movements similar to a bounding foot ball, regained his footing and attracted the attention of the driver before out of hearing, who returned and reloaded his "freight" and both proceeded on their way.

There seems to be a man at Dunoon who wants to sell intoxicating liquors without having a license to do so. Such men invariably get into big trouble before they get to the end of the lane, and this one just has no exception to the rule. It is just such illegal business as this that rises people, and makes them ugly to the criminals. There is no safety except in compliance with the law. In the words of San Jones, "Quit your meanness."

Ed J. Niewohner has purchased the Hugh Hughes business lot on Olive street nearly opposite the Fleming hotel and will erect thereon immediately a fine two story structure 22x55 feet—brick front with corrugated iron sides—the first floor to be fitted up and occupied by Mr. N. as a jewelry store, living apartments in the rear for his family. The upper story will be specially fitted for the reception of Mr. Nostenew who will move his photo studio to that location.

Ed Garten, an employe at Crandall's restaurant, while out driving Monday evening with Nostenew, the photographer, was thrown from the cart in which they were riding, at the Olive street crossing, striking on his head, cutting quite a gash back of his left eye. He was taken to the office of Drs. Martyn & Evans, where his wound was attended to by Drs. Martyn and Arnold. The wound though painful is not considered dangerous. He is now at the Jenkins hotel, at which house he formerly held a position.

We find the following very truthful remarks going, without credit, the rounds of our exchanges. The sentiments are worth remembering: "The clean newspaper has, in the long run, the most permanent patronage and circulation. The paper which goes into the homes and is read by families is the paper which counts its subscribers by the year, instead of depending upon the fluctuating sales of alleged sensations, which brings the power and pays the advertisers."

W. B. Backus, superintendent of the Indian school at Genoa, was in the city Saturday. He informed us that Gen. T. J. Morgan, commissioner of Indian affairs visited the Genoa school last week and after a thorough investigation expressed himself as well pleased with affairs at his school. The general was accompanied by Mrs. Morgan and will visit the Pacific coast during the next six weeks after which he will make a tour of the Indian territory on official business and will be accompanied by Mr. Backus.

Friday morning last, the day of our first heavy frost this season, it was cold in several places hereabouts. The cold extended through northern Montana and Colorado, through North Dakota to St. Vincent, Minn. The latter place had a temperature of 30 with two inches of snow. At Helena the temperature was 26. Fort Carter 28. Cheyenne 28. Valentine 36. North Platte 24. Four inches of snow at Ordock. N. D. At Pierre the change from hot to cold was the most sudden ever known. It is reported that much wheat will be lost in the Red river valley.

Every young lad in the land will cut this and lay it away where it will not get lost. An exchange says that southern girls have for generations used the juice of watermelons to beautify their complexions. It is believed that nothing is so soothing to the face and hands after a long drive or summer outing than the water from both the pulp and rind. The first, crushed by dainty hands and rubbed on the face takes off the sunburn, while the application of the cool, white pulp next to the red meat removes the stickiness and gives a softness to the skin of the melon, to be obtained from nothing else. It is nature's own cosmetic.

An old farmer talking of the opposition to monopolies, says that farmers are composed of about the same material as other classes of men, he along with the rest, and that they are as strong monopolists as live, when they get the chance, as for example, good corn for seed was scarce one year, and he made considerable money selling for $1.00 a bushel. Guy Barnum had considerable seed corn the same year, and said to a farmer friend that he might as well have a $1.25 a bushel. We don't repeat this to justify even a farmer's monopoly, but to kind of impress the fact that human nature is a good deal alike all around, and that monopolies are suggested by necessity to begin with, continued by force, and can be overturned when the sufferers combine to liberate themselves.

(Glorious) Stall, who now lives at Marengo, Ill., is on a ten days' sojourn to look after his property interests in Polk county.

L. E. Norton, representing the S. Worthington Paper Co., of Holyoke, Mass., was in town last Friday and gave this office a pleasant call.

Mr. Flishear, of Nance county, an old friend of Sheriff Caldwell, was in the city Monday, on his way to California, which he expects to make his future home.

Mrs. J. C. Caldwell has gone to Mountain Grove, Mo., for a month's visit. Her husband, the sheriff, will follow as soon as his court duties will allow of his absence.

were Mrs. J. Miller, mother, and Philip and Gus Metz, brothers of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. M. Hamilton, parents of the groom, Fred Metz, sr., Fred Metz, jr., R. P. Hamilton, Mrs. John Hamilton, Miss Roebuck, Mr. Bert Lawton and A. Frost. The parties left on the evening train for Omaha, where the happy couple will make their future home.

A Successful Year. The Methodist congregation has done exceedingly well, financially, the past year—better than any former one that we remember. The pastor winds up the year with the report that one of the receipts of the year. The financial statement read Sunday contained the following amounts of money disbursed during the year:

Table with columns for item and amount. Items include Pastor's salary, Home rent, Interest, Current expenses, etc.

A good round sum for a small congregation. The society is without the debt, except what it has borrowed of the church-extension fund. Rev. Worley is strongly talked of for presiding elder of this district, and if this appointment does not reach him, it is hoped he will be returned as pastor of this charge. He is a man of remarkably clear judgment and thoroughly imbued with the work set before him.

Stock Notes. The receipts of cattle Monday at South Omaha were almost entirely made up of westerns and very common cattle. There were very few corn-fed steers and the market was very slow and dull. The market has been glutted with the common grades for some time, and until the run lets up shippers need not look for better prices. Cows brought Monday 2.10x2.35; steers 2.50x4.15; stockers and feeders 2.40x3.00; high-grade feeders 3.50.

The bulk of the hogs on Monday's market sold at 4.35x4.40, a few choice loads bringing 4.50. The week opens with hogs 15c/20c higher than a week ago.

Kansas City reported 8,800 cattle, slow and weak. Fifty-five hundred hogs in Kansas City, Monday—market weak.

Shell Creek Markets. A great deal of corn is being cut and stocked for fodder. Perhaps the partial failure of the corn crop will tend to introduce this economic way more generally in Nebraska.

Seeing the corn in many fields scorched by the hot winds, and the sunflower by the wayside unharmed, reminds the writer of what he has said, again and again, in the columns of THE JOURNAL, viz: Why not cultivate the Russian or still better the California sunflower? Experiments are constantly being made with different crops—why not make a trial of this improved variety of the sunflower, our western grain? Some of the fields of sunflowers cultivated, and was informed that they were getting $4 per bushel for the seed.

The oldest child of Mr. S. Mahood is said to be very sick—not expected to live. Mr. Kilian of your city was in Platte Center the other day trying to get subscribers for his German paper. We also saw Mr. Brodtfeurer there.

Wm. Bloodorn is gone to Lincoln to see all the new farming machinery and implements so as to get the newest and best for his large and ever-increasing business.

The late rains have greatly benefited the pasture, the corn that was not scorched too much, late potatoes and vegetables. If a late, short or mild winter or early spring would come, people need not be afraid of wintering their stock well, the first rushing them to the market being already over.

Mr. David Thomas went to the state fair to see the lion in the form of fine stock, and he should not wonder if he would bring home something extra to improve his fine cattle and hogs.

The waves of politics are running high even in quiet rural districts. Every party and faction promises to bring the golden age to change the world into a paradise, and the leaders are pushed forward by their friends to relieve poor mankind of all their troubles. The writer is no politician but he knows this of one thing, viz: "He who would improve the condition of men must improve man himself, first." "Who will you vote for?" is a question put by friend to friend, neighbor to neighbor, cousin to cousin to the forty-eighth degree. The writer will vote for the best man regardless of any party lines—the best in his estimation, and he will vote for the amendment, there you have it! N. Y. Z.

J. J. Peterson is daily expecting his father and sister from Sweden. He is about to build a new house.

Mr. Frank Larson and Miss Lizzie Hazel will be married next Wednesday evening. A large number of invited guests will be present.

A heavy frost Friday night finished the corn that the drought left. There will be plenty of good corn for seed in this vicinity.

At the open meeting of the alliance Mr. Henderson of Mt. Pleasant spoke in place of Messrs. Saunders and Albert who were expected, word being received from them that they would be present a few hours before meeting time—but some unforeseen event prevented them from reaching here. Mr. Fred Jewell of Platte center was present; he had something to say and knew how to say it. If he did not convince his listeners it was because "none are so blind as those that won't see." Another open meeting will be on the second Friday in October. We hope nothing will prevent our speakers from being present on that date.

The Loyal and Elkhorn Baptist association will meet with the Palestine Baptist church Sept. 18-21. Ample accommodations will be made for delegates and visiting brethren through the meetings. All welcome. DAN.
