tion opening to settlers and homestea newly ceded lands in the Sac and Fox, Iowa newly ceded lands in the Sac and Fox, lowal and Pottawatamie Indian reservations in the eastern part of Oklahoma. These lands may be entered upon Tuesday, September 22, at 12 o'clock, noon, central standard time. The proclamation reviews in detail the agreement between the government and the several tribes and hands of Indians, and also the acts of congress authorizing the accepting and confirming of these agreements, and providing for the proclamation. Notice is given in the proclamation that no erson shall be permitted to enter upon and occupy the land until the time stated and no person violating this provision shall be rmitted to enter any of said lands or acquire a right thereto. Further notice is given that these lands included in the procamation will be attached to the Eastern and Oklahoma land districts. Attached to the proclamation is a schedule giving a description of the lands to be opened, the aggregate of which is 266,243 acres. The ceded reservations comprise almost as much territory as Oklahoma proper. The land lies directly east of Oklahoma. The two egions are separated by the Indian meridan line and the north fork of the Canadian river runs directly through the country. Phousands of people have been camped on the meridian line for days. Companies A and D of the Thirteenth infantry and troop of the Fiftieth cavalry are in the new territory driving out the boomers and aintaining order. Everbody already waiting for next Tuesday. In the reaty with the Sac and Fox Indians the ords "open to white settlement" occur. These words are apt to cause some trouble, as the Indians say they will insist on their stipulation and will not permit the negroes to take lands in their country. Turkey Stands by Her New Freinds. The sultan han deemed the moment opportune to emphasize the entente between the porte and the Franco-Russian alliance by conferring upon M. Detalls of the recent floods in Spain reveal a frightful situation. In the province of Toledo the rush of water was so great that hundreds were drowned in their beds. Thousands altogether must have perished. A large number of corpses still rest where they were washed and epidemic is following the slaughter by the flood. Official reports indicate that there will be a short potato crop in several countries in Europe, as well as a short crop of cereals, and the representatives of several foreign governments, as well as the United States officials who are familiar with the subject, do not hesitate to express the belief that there will be great suffering among the people of other countries besides Russia, unless the customs regulations shall be so mod ified as to admit both vegetables and breadstuffs from the United States on more favorable terms. Whether that will be done is still uncertain.

CORN PALACE OF 1891.

The fifth antittal Corn Palace festival, which opens October 1 and closes Octo ber 17, at Sloux City, arouses far more interest and enthusiasm than any for mer occasion, because it is thoroughly understood that the palace and all the entertainments and attractions connected with it are to be better and brighter and on a far greater scale than ever before. It will retain all the excellent features of former festivals. adding many new ones, unprecedented in their interest and scope. The Central and South American exhibits will be in themselves equal to a department in the grandest world's fair. The Mexican band, that marvelous organization they had ever seen. A list of some of the premiums awarded is given below: festival, giving such concerts in the palace as never were heard aside from the places where they have appeared.
The abundant and unprecedented crops in the northwest will make the agricultural exhibit absolutely unsurpassed.

The Corn Palace of this year is larger and grander in every respect than any of its four predecessors and will cost $100,000. Some of the important items of this year's palace, as compared with last year's, are shown by the following table, which was lately printed in a Sloux City paper: Length of building (feet) Number of yards of exterior decorations.... Bushels of corn used.... ost of grasses and grains for decorations...... Cost of printed matter.. Number of feet floor $10,000 Number of feet of lum-

Number of men en-There is little doubt that the Corn Palace as an attraction stands out as an iginal and unique exhibition without a rival. There is nothing with which it compared, as there has never been a Corn Palace outside of Sioux COLUMBUS, NEB. City. The usual excursions from New England and every other part of the great additions this year. The railroads are interested in the matter, heart and lar excursions and provide every comfort and convenience for their patrons.
The Corn Palace of 1891 is bound to se a world-famed success.

The person who has not seen a Corn Palace has a vague idea that it is a structure of corn, but how it is built and decorated he does not know. Nor to see the completed palace, and not to make a minute examination of its structure, would one realize the vast amount of work required to make it the thing of beauty and significance it is. First is erected an immense frame structure, mostly of pine boards and planks. The planks nailed together, thus giving far greater strength than if the timbers were solid. The entire outline of the palace is thus made. Then, upon the outside, all the various parts and forms of corn and the other native cereals are nailed, blending in wonderful harmony of color and making many a unique design. The variety of grains, grasses and parts of corn used is wonderful, and never was imagined until after experience was gained in Corn Palace building. Many whole ears of corn are split.

sawed in two lengthwise and nailed upon the boards. The green or yellow stalks, in all shades, are also em-ployed; the individual kernels are used: the blades and leaves are brought into play, and in every way, shape and manner the exterior of the palace is eloquent of the productive and golden northwest. The person who comes upon the Corn Palace for the first time and sees it in all its magnificence and beauty, feels that it is a revelation.
It inspires thoughts which are not given to men to describe; it provides its own

But if the exterior of the palace i grand and beautiful, the interior is even more so. It is here that the decorative ossibilities of the cereals have been most fully realized, and have taken the most delicate forms. But the inside of the palace is even harder to describe than the outside. It must be sufficient o say that it is a perfect bower of beauty, and at each new turn and in

A grand display from Central and South America will prove of great interest to everyone visiting the palace. Amongst the collection will be over forty varieties of fine woods, such as mahogany, rosewood, oilwood, etc.; coffee bushes growing and loaded down with coffee, pineapples just as they are transplanted, coco muts on a section of the tree; India rubber plants and India rubber in the crude and manufactured state, banana plants, and a score of other varieties of tropical plants; Indian relics and souvenirs, views of country and city life, etc. In the space devoted to this unique exhibit will be erected of cane or bamboo, with thatched roof, a characteristic Central America hut, which will be presided over by a family of natives from that country, clothed i their own peculiar costumes. The splendid floor of hard wood which will be laid in the east wing will make the finest dancing surface possible, and it will contain over 4,000 square feet. Invitations to the ball will be sent to the people of neighboring towns. The Mexican band will furnish music.

One of the features of the wheelmen's parade during the Corn Palace tourna-ment will be the ladies' division. It is expected that thirty to fifty ladies on wheels will be in line. Each lady taking part will be presented with a hand-some Corn Palace souvenir spoon. To say that the Corn Palace must be seen to be appreciated is a trite expressee its pictures, photographs, the dupli-cate of the real, accurately-colored lithographs, or fine engravings; he may read that it is a frame-work of wood, covered with corn in all its shades and hapes, corn in the ear, corn in the husks, the stalks of corn, the leaves of corn; he may realize that with nature's own products the marvelous golden temples of Ind are rivalled; he may believe that within its walls are veritable will be ou tel. It is further reported of human art and infinite skill; but fairy bowers, wrought by a combination hat the s prame tribunal will hand after all he must see it himself to feel dow , a decision in the case immediately the thrill of its indescribable beauty.
